U. S. JUSTICE CARDOZO DIES

PRESIDENT HITS THOMAS' FOES IN OKLAHOMA

Man Seized; Fear Roosevelt Attack.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Worth, Tex., July 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, after thrusting himself and his administration into the heated battles of two more states—Arkansas and Oklahoma—today arrived here on his special train shortly before midnight and went immediately to the home of his son, Elliott Roosevelt. He will continue his tour to the west coast Monday.

Today his approach was cautious as compared with his speeches yesterday—in Ohio for Senator Robert J. Bulkley and in Kentucky for Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley.

As the Presidential cavalcade drove through the streets of Oklahoma City, Okla., this evening an incident which the President did not see threw a flurry of excitement into the local police. A man rushed through the crowd in an attempt to get into the President's car.

Fear Attack on President.

Police feared an attempt was being made on the President's life. Secret service men recognized the man as Woody Hockaday of Wichita, Kas., who once showered Secretary of War Harry Woodring with feathers. He came to the White House a year ago asking that he be permitted to shine the President's shoes. His rush toward the President's car today was another attempt to polish the presidential boots. He was overpowered and taken away.

At the fair grounds in Oklahoma City, where he spoke briefly over national radio hookups, the President did little more than mention the name of Senator Elmer Thomas. He was aware that Thomas is reported to be less popular than his two opponents for the Democratic nomination because he lacks color in a state where political pyrotechnics are more important than political principles.

Townsend Aid Has Edge.

The man conceded to have the inside track for the Democratic senatorial nomination, which is tantamount to election, is Representative Gomer Smith. Smith, former vice president of the Townsend old age pension movement, has the support of the followers of the movement and some conservatives because he opposed the governmental reorganization bill and the farm bill.

Smith has been campaigning against government interference in the lives of citizens. His favorite declaration from the stump is that if the administration continues, "government representatives will be sent around every time a calf is born or a sow delivers a litter."

Gov. E. W. Marland is the third senatorial candidate. In general he has been an administration supporter, but at times he has exhibited traces of conservatism, distasteful to the White House. It was Marland who first was to feel the sting of the presidential tongue.

Demands Congressional Liberals.

Mr. Roosevelt, in the first speech by a President in Oklahoma, got into the state's political battle by pointing out that in his fireside chat two weeks ago, he asserted the nation is living under a government "essentially liberal and nationally thinking in its outlook." He recalled that he said that people should chose representatives of that point of view.

"And I also suggested that it always is a good thing to look beyond the surface of things and into men's hearts.

"Do they really mean what they say or are they the kind that profess great devotion to the cause of bettering the lot of their fellow men, and, when the time for action comes, find all kinds of reasons why they should not support the action proposed. I refer to such people as 'Yes, but-people.'"

Hits Over-Night Reformers.

"In the same way we find others who seek office, sincerely or otherwise, on impossible pledges and platforms—people with panaceas for reforming the world over night—people who are not practical in an age which must be both practical and progressive.

"Theodore Roosevelt was perhaps a bit rough when he referred to such people as 'the lunatic fringe.' Strict-

7 MONTH HEART ILLNESS IS FATAL TO JURIST AT 68

Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow.

Port Chester, N. Y., July 9.—[Special.]—Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the United States Supreme court died here this afternoon of the chronic heart ailment which forced him to abandon work on the bench last December.

The justice, who was 68 years old, died at 5:40 p. m. [Chicago time] at the home of Justice Irving Lehman of the New York State Court of Appeals. Justice Lehman and Joseph Rauh, Cardozo's secretary, were at the bedside.

Unable to Attend Court.

A heart attack suffered in Washington made Justice Cardozo unable to attend the spring sessions of court. His condition improved sufficiently last month to permit him to come to the home of Justice Lehman, where he planned to spend the summer.

A week ago he suffered a relapse and was placed under an oxygen tent.

Private funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday at the Lehman home and burial will be at Cypress Hill, N. Y.

ACHIEVES LIFE'S AMBITION.

Benjamin Nathan Cardozo died happy. He met death with the calm joy of a philosopher who has achieved the firm purpose of his life, which was to erase what he felt was a stain left on the family escutcheon by his father, Albert Cardozo, who was a judge in favor with the Tweed ring in the most corrupt days of New York City.

It was to wipe away this record that shy, almost bashful Cardozo made law his career. This ambition dominated his life from the age of reason.

The justice was born in New York City May 24, 1870, of Sephardic Jewish ancestry. His maternal great-great-uncle, Rabbi Gershom Mendes Seizas, officiated at the inauguration of George Washington. On the paternal side his American ancestry went back to 1750, the family having come to the New World by way of England, where the Cardozos had paused following the expulsion of their race from Spain.

Most Solicitous of Women.

Justice Cardozo's mother died when he was 9 years old and her place in his life was taken by his sister, Nellie, who surrounded him with affection and care. He never married, yet was most solicitous and understanding of women.

His life was calm and unruffled, peculiarly suited to the blend of the aristocratic and ascetic that was Justice Cardozo. Outwards it had as few milestones as his mind had limitations. And even his friends stood in awe of his intellectual attainments.

Justice Cardozo received his A. B. from Columbia in 1889 and his M. A. in 1890. He was prepared for his college career by none other than Horatio Alger, author of "Phil the Fiddler," and a host of success sagas. Alger was retained as a tutor for the young Cardozo.

Never Obtained Law Degree.

Cardozo never took a law degree. He studied law for two years and passed the bar examination in 1891 easily. In 1913 he was elected to the New York state Supreme court—friends prevailed upon him to run. After a month on that bench he was

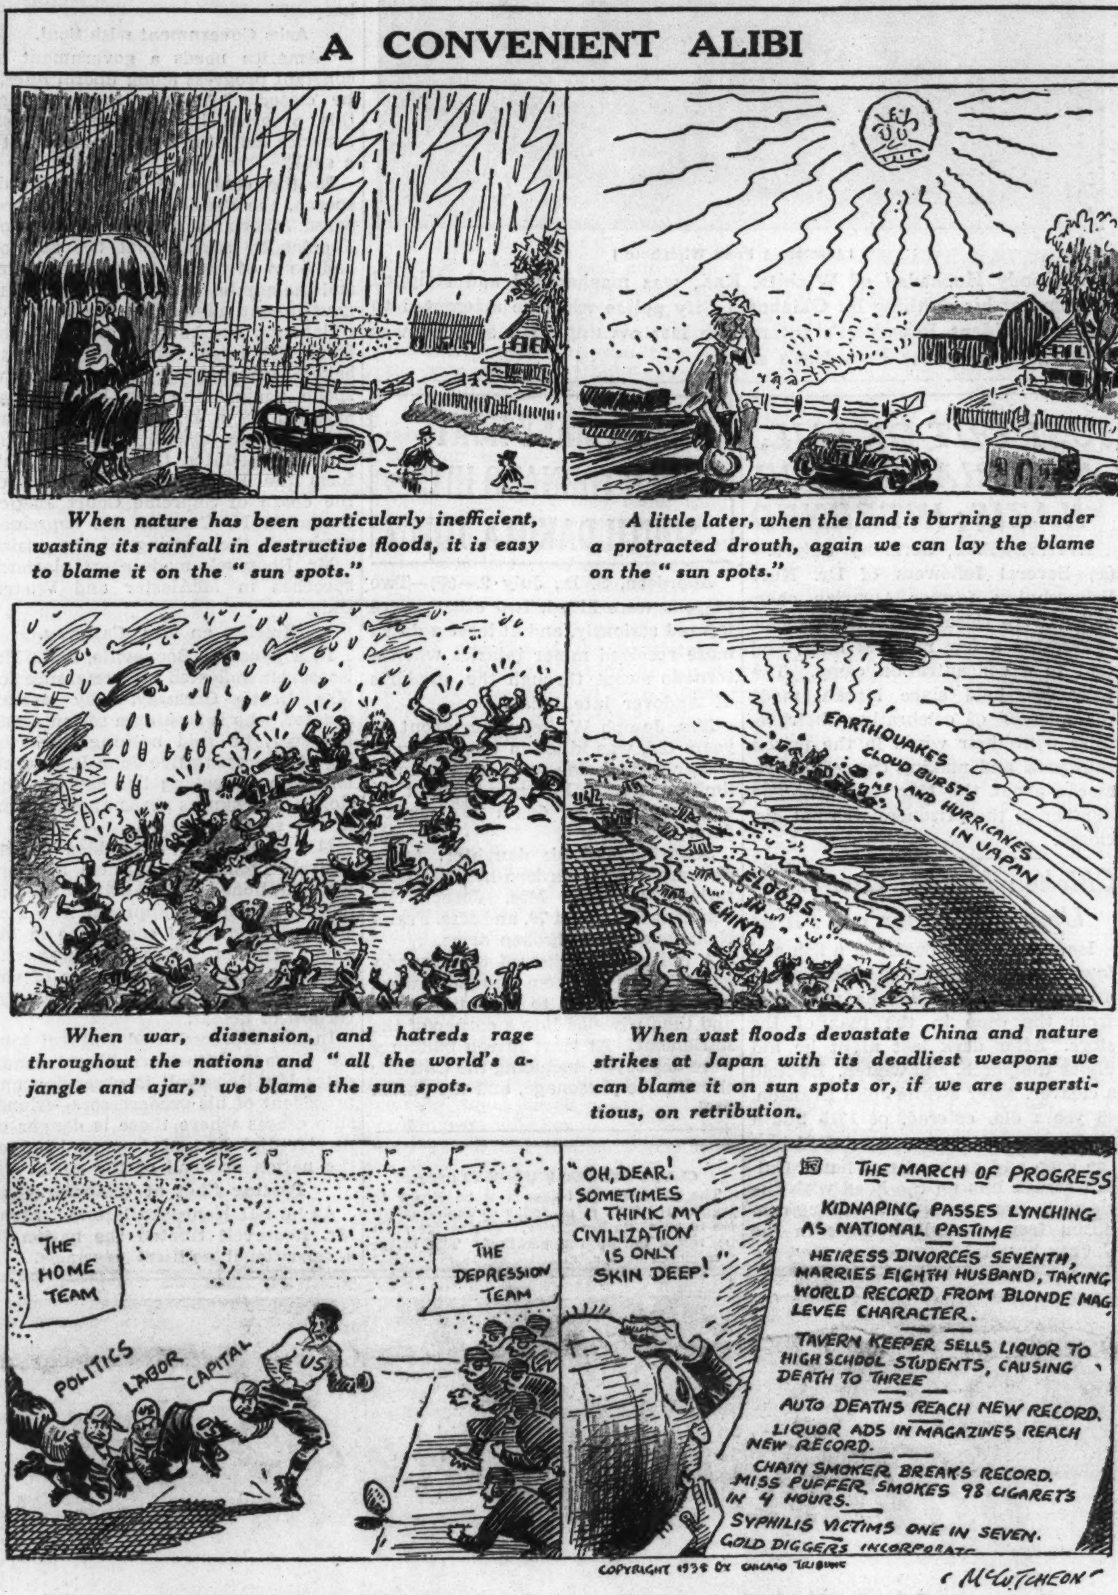
A CONVENIENT ALIBI



When nature has been particularly inefficient, wasting its rainfall in destructive floods, it is easy to blame it on the "sun spots."

A little later, when the land is burning up under a protracted drouth, again we can lay the blame on the "sun spots."

When war, dissension, and hatreds rage throughout the nations and "all the world's a-jangle and ajar," we blame the sun spots.

When vast floods devastate China and nature strikes at Japan with its deadliest weapons we can blame it on sun spots or, if we are superstitious, on retribution.

When we forget the principle of teamwork and begin tackling our own team, we hasten to blame the results on "sun spots," because they are too far away to protest.

As we watch the March of Progress and see civilization expressing itself in various ways, we may be quite sure it is not all due to sun spots.

TOM GIVES FATIGUED POLICE POINTERS ON DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Bay City, Mich., July 9.—[U. P.]—Police today wished they hadn't arrested Tom Massaro on a charge of disorderly conduct. It wasn't until Massaro was jailed that he showed how disorderly he could be. This is what he did in three weeks of custody:

Tore down the steam and water pipes in the city jail.

Set the county jail afire when he was transferred there.

Started three fires in the city jail when he was returned because Sherif's deputies thought he was too hot to handle.

Freed himself from his bonds of 100 feet of rope, slipped the keys from the pocket of a sleeping guard and escaped from the infirmary.

Led an attempted break of thirteen prisoners from the county jail by sawing the bars in the bullpen.

RIDERLESS CYCLE BREAKS THROUGH BOUL MICH TRAFIC

Lives of motorists and pedestrians were endangered yesterday when a riderless motorcycle sped through East Washington street at thirty miles an hour and crossed busy Michigan avenue against a red light. Its perilous trip came to an end when it crashed into a mass of shrubbery in Grant park.

Frank Henry, 1355 South Kominsky avenue, a delivery boy, is owner of the machine, which has a third wheel and a package compartment. He had parked it for a moment east of Wabash avenue. On his return he brushed against the clutch release, he said, and the cycle started.

It struck one parked car, then zigzaged past the public library. It narrowly missed a safety island and several automobiles. A dozen transients sunning themselves in the park fled hastily. Policemen Charles Fisher and Lester Rodgers, who saw the start and finish of the machine's career, declared it miraculous no one was hurt.

British Court Ponders Debs' Daring Gowns

LONDON, July 9.—(AP)—Budding debutantes and court dressmakers alike are waiting for a nod from Queen Elizabeth herself to answer the burning question whether the new reign is to let down the necklines of gowns worn at British court presentations.

The court, society, and, indirectly, every English girl who wears a "party dress," leaped to attention this week when several young women being presented at Buckingham palace made a daring break from the conservative styles handed down from the reign of the late George V. and Queen Mary.

Several of the more comely debutantes made their curtseys before King George VI. in startling gowns with "o the shoulder" necklines—one of them a square cut affair lower, said the Daily Mail, "than any seen at court since Victorian days."

Arbiter Orders Change.

This was Wednesday night. On Thursday night several others had planned to appear similarly gowned, but a quick order from the earl of Clarendon, the lord chamberlain and official arbiter of court etiquette, resulted in their curtseying with modest additions which toned down the daring effects.

At least seven debutantes wore scarves about the shoulders and at this, the last court of the season, there were no raised eyebrows. Now the problem will rest until next year.

It is a test of how closely the new queen and the new lord chamberlain are going to stick to customs prescribed by their predecessors, and a challenge from the new court dressmakers to the old guard.

Queen Absent From Court.

The queen, in mourning for her mother, did not see what caused the startled stares as the young ladies paid their respects to King George.

The most daring creation was a breath-taking gown in white with a close-fitting brassiere top and shoulder straps of narrow midnight blue lace. The Daily Mail's woman commentator said it was "so designed that it resembled a beach costume with brassiere and skirt." The low back of another claimed attention.

Dressmakers at Odds.

The new models stirred a lively controversy in court dressmaking circles. One old guard dress house said it wouldn't dream of making such a model. But a representative of the younger school saw nothing wrong. "This Puritanism is making England ridiculous," she said.

There the matter rests until early next year when the official court dressmaker takes sketches to Buckingham palace. The approved ones will be put on view for the "guidance" of dressmakers and debutantes as well, with written regulations.

Rigid Rules for Dress.

The court prescribes certain rigid rules for dress. Trains must not be longer than two yards; veils not over 45 inches. Gloves must be of specified length.

Feathers usually are the most annoying. They are mandatory and must be worn at the back of the head, slightly on the left, with the center feather a little higher than the two side ones.

HUGHES AND FOUR AIDS READY TO START 3,641 MILE FLIGHT TO PARIS

New York, July 10 [Sunday].—[Special.]—After motor difficulties had forced him, both yesterday and again last night, to postpone his projected flight from Floyd Bennett field to Paris, and then possibly around the world, Howard Hughes and his big Lockheed special monoplane New York World's Fair 1939 were set for a takeoff early this morning.

With eighteen new cylinders installed in the plane's two 1,100 horse power engines, Hughes and four companions awaited a final weather report, which was expected to be favorable, before taking off.

The 3,641 mile flight to Paris is expected to take about twenty-two hours.

Citizens Raid 243 Lake Co. Gaming Spots

More than 100 special constables swarmed over Lake county late yesterday and last night in one of the most astonishing mass gambling raids in the county's history. Within seven hours they invaded 243 gaming spots. Most of them operated slot machines and pin ball games. The others were handbooks. In all 85 slot machines, containing $301, were seized.

Directed neither by the sherif nor the state's attorney, the widespread raids remained for some time a mystery. When explained, they took on the hue of a Carrie Nation exploit. The inspiration for the raids came from a young man only 22 years old. The moral and presumably the financial backing came from the Women's Christian Temperance union, ministers, church members, and others.

Swears Out 243 Warants.

The young man is Douglas Warner, a radio mechanic of Zion. He appeared yesterday before Justice of the Peace Henry A. Hansen of Highland Park, and swore out 243 gambling warants. It was reported last night that Warner coöperated in this with his older brother, Claude Warner, a former private detective, and now an agent for a collection agency. Claude Warner was described as one of the leaders.

After swearing out warants, young Warner faded from sight. His place was taken by a small army of private detectives and retired policemen—most of them from Chicago. Justice Hansen promptly swore them in as deputies. He handed them the warants.

Then they started out on their raiding expedition. They carried crowbars as well as the warants. They left in squads in sedans. Several large trucks, to be used to carry away slot machines, followed.

600 Patrons Driven Out.

The raiders first struck in Waukegan, North Chicago and Highwood. Of the sixteen handbooks visited, most were in those communities. In one, Mitchell Bowden's at 346 Waukegan avenue, Highwood, 600 patrons were routed.

Within the next hour the constables were in Libertyville, Fox Lake, Antioch, Lake Villa, Wauconda, Round Lake, Barrington, Lake Zurich, and other towns. They broke, confiscated, or attempted to confiscate slot machines and pinball games Most of the slot machines were imbedded in concrete to foil hijackers. They also foiled the raiders. Unable to uproot them, the constables sealed them. Pinball games are licensed in Libertyville. The police there mistook a squad of raiders for hoodlums and arrested them. Credentials supplied by Justice Hansen straightened out the error.

Tavern Owner Resists.

Police in Barrington, Lake Zurich and Fox Lake also questioned the rights of the independent raiders. In

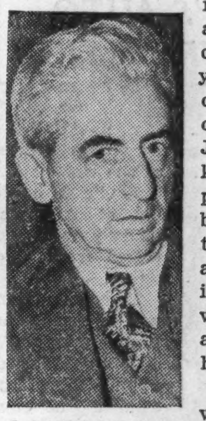
C. I. O. Pickets Slur Judge in Court

PASS HANDBILLS ASSAILING DADY STRIKE ORDERS

Prosecutor Orders Contempt Inquiry.

More than 200 C. I. O. union pickets, who had already refused to obey an injunction against strike disorders, marched yesterday into the courtroom of Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan. They passed out handbills attacking the judge as "reactionary" and indicating they would not pay any attention to his official orders.



Judge Ralph J. Dady.

Shortly afterward Judge Dady opened court. He took no cognizance of the handbills at the time, but cited ten pickets to show cause tomorrow why they should not be held in contempt for interfering with employés of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company at North Chicago, who several times have been prevented from going to work. The union, known as the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers, called a strike on June 6 and has kept the plant closed since.

Outrage, Says State's Attorney.

After the court session Judge Dady and State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county ordered an investigation to determine the identity of the bill passers, with the object of citing them also for contempt. Mason bitterly condemned the attitude of the C. I. O. men.

"This is an outrage," he said. "Men already charged with contempt come openly into court and commit more open acts of contempt. This whole situation will be laid before the grand jury. We have evidence to show that most of these disorders are being fomented by men who do not live in Lake county, but are agitating to prevent lawful orders being executed."

The prosecutor recalled that the strikers and their supporters stamped on Judge Dady's injunction last Tuesday and later, on Thursday, compelled seventy men who tried to go to work to retreat from the vicinity of the hardware plant.

Charge Disregard of Rights.

In part the handbills read: "A reactionary judge is serving the interests of reactionary employers. He is using the people's court to push an injunction designed to break the people's strike, disregarding civil and human rights." For themselves the strikers declared in their handbills they were trying to maintain high living standards, "thereby supporting President Roosevelt's program for the people."

Mason's opinion as to outside agitators was supported by Eugene Brunette, head of the independent union men who wish to work. He said that only forty or fifty out of approximately 300 of the pickets usually on the job are connected with the hardware company and that the others are "foreign communists" sent in to keep the strike alive.

"And we are tired of communists telling us we can't work," he added.

The present leader of the strike is Robert Woertz, an outside organizer for John L. Lewis' forces. His predecessor, Oakley Mills, has not appeared publicly since the injunction was issued Tuesday. Mills is already under sentence for contempt of court in a previous strike in Lake county, but his case has been appealed.

Strikers on Relief Rolls.

Many of the strikers are on the relief rolls now, and some of the outsiders, it is said, tried to get on but were barred by the Lake county authorities.

The strike has been marked by the use of force, but not of violence. When the would be workers tried to enter the plant the pickets locked arms and prevented their passage. When attempts were made to reach the plant with trucks and railroad cars, women and children lay down in front of the vehicles and declared they would be run over rather than move. Judge Dady has referred to these methods as illegal use of force.

Attorney Sidney Block, representing the company, said he would present an additional list of fifteen pickets tomorrow and ask that they be cited also for contempt. The strikers are represented by Attorneys Lester F. Collins and Thurlow Lewis, the latter a brother of Louie E. Lewis, speaker of the Illinois house of representatives.

State's Attorney Mason said that thirty witnesses would be taken before the grand jury, beginning today, to tell of the alleged acts of violence near the plant. Included will be officers of the company and the chauffeurs and trainmen, who were turned back. Indictments charging conspiracy, intimidation and inciting to riot will be sought, Mason said.

Claim Mandate from "People."

Already the strike leaders have asserted they do not fear the grand jury. Spokesmen have said that body can do nothing against so many in opposition. Their position is that they have a mandate from "the people" [strikers] and are justified in open defiance of the courts. On this point the issue is drawn. The strikers have called a massmeeting to be held at the factory gates this evening, to which the public is invited.

The strikers have demanded assurances against a 10 per cent pay cut, vacations with pay and a written contract. The company had never put the cut into effect, but had announced it would be necessary if the factory was to continue operating through the summer. The president, Edward B. Sherwin, has maintained that the granting of vacations is impossible while business is at its present low ebb.

Considerable damage was done to the company property by the recent heavy rains. Part of the plant was flooded and it has been estimated that the loss from this cause was more than $20,000, and is growing greater daily.

The workmen who were barred on Thursday were to have been used in repairing the flood damage, it was said. The pickets have not only refused to let Brunette's men by, but also have kept out all foremen and employés other than those engaged in office work.

MARTIN'S AUTO WORKERS' UNION STARTS PURGE

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—[U. P.]—George Addes, secretary and treasurer of the United Automobile Workers of America, today was expelled from the union.

George Addes.

The expulsion was President Homer Martin's first step toward completing his "purge" of enemies within the union. Addes was tried and found guilty by the union's executive board. He was the first of five high union officers suspended by Martin a month ago to be placed on trial.

Announcement of the expulsion was made by Martin. It was the most dramatic and severe action Martin has taken against his enemies in the strife torn automobile union. The other suspended officers—four vice presidents—are to go on trial shortly. They are Richard Frankensteen, Ed Hall, Wyndham Mortimer, and Walter Wells.

Specifically, the charges on which Addes was tried were filed by John Schiefelbein, president of local No. 283 at West Allis, Wis. He charged that Addes, after being ousted from office by Martin, wrote U. A. W. local unit officers and instructed them to mail the headquarters' share of union dues to him instead of to the international office.

DIES OF FARM INJURIES.

Mishawaka, Ind., July 9.—[Special.]—Vincent J. Brackrus, 57 years old, a farmhand, died in St. Joseph's hospital today of a fractured skull incurred July 7 when he was struck by a falling hay pulley at the farm home of J. H. Ort.

ROOSEVELT NOTE REVEALS PARTING DIG AT CHANDLER

Proposition on Judgeship Indicated in Letter.

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—A parting presidential shot at Gov. A. B. Chandler opponent of Senator Alben W. Barkley in Kentucky's Democratic senatorial primary, was revealed today when Senator M. M. Logan [D., Ky.] made public a letter from Mr. Roosevelt dated Feb. 1.

It said the governor had made a proposition to the President the day before. Mr. Roosevelt's letter did not say in so many words what Chandler's propositon was.

Judgeship Deal Hinted.

But, coupled with an announcement which Logan had just issued, it conveyed the idea that the governor had suggested that the junior senator from Kentucky be appointed to a federal judgeship.

This would have permitted Chandler to be appointed to succeed him in the senate, and would have left Barkley a clear field in his race for renomination.

"I want you to know how fine I think your statement of Monday was," the President wrote, referring to Logan's announcement that he would decline any judicial post offered him. "The governor put you and Alben and me into a most disagreeable situation, and wholly without any necessity therefor.

Tells of Request.

"I want you to know that the governor came to see me yesterday, repeated the same proposition, and seemed surprised when I told him that you and I would be the last people in the world to trafic in judicial appointments in order to satisfy the ambitions of one office seeker."

Settlement Is Reached in Co-op Creamery Strike

Richland Center, Wis., July 9.—(AP)—The Richland Coöperative creamery and National Labor Relations board representatives reached an agreement today concluding a four month old labor dispute at the plant. E. J. Brophy, board mediator, said the coöperative had agreed to bargain with the A. F. of L. teamsters' union and to give preference to a discharged employé. The dispute began when the union signed up ten of the twenty-one creamery workers. The issue came to a sharp climax when a crowd of 500 farmer patrons ousted nine of the union men from the plant two weeks ago.

Rushes at President; Halted Roughly

Woody Hockaday of Wichita, Kas., was manhandled and stripped of some of his clothing by Oklahoma City police when he attempted to enter President Roosevelt's automobile last evening. He said he was seeking to shine the President's shoes.

JUST OUT OF JAIL, AUSTRIANS SLUR NAZIS; INTERNED

KITZBUEHEL, Germany July 9.—(AP)—Several followers of Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, former Austrian chancellor, were released from jail today, re-arrested a few minutes later, and sent to a concentration camp. The prisoners, held since March, made the mistake of celebrating their release with their wives in the prison courtyard and making derogatory remarks about the Nazi régime. The number of the prisoners was not disclosed.

Chicken Market Owner Uses a Cleaver on Thief

Isadore Gutzait, owner of a fish and fowl market at 1304 South Kedzie avenue, missed two chickens yesterday from the coop in the rear of the store. After dark last night he hid under the porch, and waited. He held a cleaver. After awhile John Branson, 45 years old, colored, of 1315 South Kedzie avenue, appeared, reached into the coop and grabbed two hens. Gutzait struck him on the head with the cleaver. Branson is in a serious condition from a skull fracture in the County hospital.

2 DEAD, MANY HURT WHEN TORNADO HITS SOUTH DAKOTA TOWN

Aberdeen, S. D., July 9.—(AP)—Two persons were killed, two others were injured seriously, and at least a dozen more received minor injuries when a tornado swept through the outskirts of Andover late today.

Mrs. Joseph W. Schuring, about 55 years old, was killed in the wreckage of her farm home south of the town limits. Mrs. A. P. Bryant, about 75, was hurled to her death in a nearby field.

Schuring and his daughter, Anna, 22, were in an Aberdeen hospital with serious injuries. Mrs. Joseph W. Schuring Sr., about 79, and Mrs. Frank Neihaus suffered broken arms.

A hail storm followed the tornado, which came in from the northwest, veered as though to miss the town, and then wheeled into a corner of the settlement. At least fifteen buildings were destroyed, including the Catholic church, the parsonage, and the parish hall.

PRESIDENT HITS ELMER THOMAS' OKLAHOMA FOES

Police Seize Man Trying to Reach Roosevelt.

ly speaking, they are not lunatics, but in many cases a little push would shove them over the line."

He wound up his remarks to the milling thousands on the state fair grounds by asserting that under his administration the country had come to answer in the affirmative the old biblical question "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Asks Government with Soul.

"America needs a government of constant progress along liberal lines," he closed. "America requires that this progress be sane and honest. America calls for a government with a soul."

In the course of delivery of his speech, the President heated his prepared lukewarm mention of Senator Thomas by saying that the senator had been of tremendous help to him and the administration in keeping the government advised of the needs of Oklahoma. The bouquet drew a cheer from the huge throng in the sun baked grandstand. The President spoke against the sun but he was shielded by a bit of canvas strung between two poles.

As he mounted the speaking platform the President was notified of the death of Supreme Court Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo. He expressed regret at the passing of the jurist.

Mr. Roosevelt made short platform speeches in McAlester and Wister, Okla.

Blessing on Mrs. Caraway.

In a pause at Booneville, Ark., Mr. Roosevelt indicated his preference for Mrs. Hattie Caraway, only woman senator, who is seeking a second term. However, he said nothing disparaging of Representative John L. McClellan, who is seeking her seat on the slogan, "Arkansas needs another man in the senate."

Mr. Roosevelt was guided in his restraint today by political advisers who cautioned him against making his expressions of approval in either state a question of confidence in his administration. Mrs. Caraway, he was told, has an even chance of victory, while Senator Thomas is almost certain of defeat.

In his unprecedented political tour for those he considers liberal candidates Mr. Roosevelt is observing one precedent of his predecessors—friendship ceases where there is danger of presidential loss of face as head of the nation or head of the party.

Parting Shot at Chandler.

As he left Kentucky late last night Mr. Roosevelt treated the nation to a sensational political spectacle. In a rear platform speech he assailed, by indirection, Barkley's political opponent, Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler, for an attempt to tamper with the federal judiciary. He revived a story several months old that Chandler has sought to get a federal judgeship for Senator M. M. Logan so that he might take the latter's senate seat.

Mr. Roosevelt did not dip into the even more heated gubernatorial fight in Oklahoma, where his son, Elliott, scorched his fingers early last month. Elliott came to the state to speak against former Gov. William [Alfalfa Bill] Murray, long time foe of his father, and was called off by his father at the instance of Senator Thomas, who hopes for Murray support at Tuesday's primary.

Murray, who opposed the President in the Chicago convention in 1932 where he himself was a favorite son candidate, has been thundering against the administration from under his full bloomed, drooping red mustache. His antics, which are the delight of Oklahomans, have placed him far ahead in a field of five candidates, observers said.

His principal opponents are Lon C. [Red] Phillips, former speaker of the Oklahoma house of representatives, and W. S. Key, former Works Progress administrator of the state.

DECISION VOIDING PICKETING WRIT TO BE APPEALED

Kansas City, Mo., July 9.—[Special.]—Dismissal of a federal court injunction against picketing and a decision granting the right to attempt to organize employés of the Donnelly Garment company to the C. I. O. International Ladies' Garment Workers will be appealed to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, William S. Hogsett, chief counsel for the company, said today. A three judge court restrained picketing and the Supreme court sent the case back for hearing before Judge John C. Collett, who ruled against the company.

Employés of the company, headed by Mrs. Nell Donnelly Reed, wife of former United States Senator James A. Reed, intervened in the original case to ask the court for protection against molestation by the C. I. O. and to prohibit the company from dealing with C. I. O. representatives on the ground that the Donnelly union represented more than 51 per cent of the employés. A letter to Mrs. Reed expressed satisfacion with her management. Judge Colet ruled the Donnelly union had not chosen its representatives as provided by the Wagner act.

C. I. O. leaders said they had $100,000 to spend on organization of the Donnelly plant and would use every means at their command to get control of the 870 workers.

MAP PLATFORM; READY TO NAME VAN NUYS AGAIN

Hoosier Democrats to Hold Convention Tuesday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., July 9.—[Special.]—Work continued here tonight on the platform to be presented for adoption by the Democratic state convention on Tuesday. As tentatively drafted it reflects the wishes both of Senator Frederick Van Nuys, who probably will be renominated, and of the Townsend state house machine, which decided last year to dump the senator because he opposed some of the radical proposals of the Roosevelt administration, but now has undergone a change of heart.

From the conference room came word that the platform will contain a blanket indorsement of the Roosevelt administration but will not specifically approve the Supreme court packing plan and the reorganization bill. These measures were fought by Senator Van Nuys and before the platform carpenters he made it plain that he would not approve the document if it lauded either proposal.

Townsend Takes Hand.

Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, who led the assault on Van Nuys last year and predicted he never would be renominated, has, it is understood, instructed his spokesmen on the platform committee to include the Roosevelt indorsement.

Senator Van Nuys asked that the platform urge abandonment of the convention system of naming state candidates and return to the system of state-wide primaries.

Explaining his attitude toward the platform today, Senator Van Nuys said:

"Of course I will approve a plank indorsing the President and his policies, but I will not run on a platform inconsistent with my views on federal problems."

Minton Tells President.

Although the governor has not gone beyond his assertion to Senator Van Nuys that the convention will be wide open—which did not preclude the possibility of other candidates being placed in nomination—the general conclusion among the politicians is that it is all over but the shouting.

Senator Minton, a Roosevelt stalwart, went across into Kentucky yesterday and boarded the presidential train for a chat, and perhaps a report on the situation in the Hoosier state. When he left Mr. Roosevelt he was quoted as saying that it was a "100 to 1 shot" that Van Nuys would be renominated.

Two hundred residents of western Winnetka were still annoyed yesterday by the stench arising from last week's flood of the Skokie river lagoons. Charles C. Estes, chief engineer of the forest preserve district, blamed breaks in the nine foot dike along the east side of the lagoons as a large factor in the flooding of homes in Glencoe, Winnetka, and Wilmette.

Estes charged that Winnetka officials and a contractor working for the Skokie Country club were responsible for the breaks. He said the contractor had carelessly flattened out the dike for twenty yards along the edge of the club grounds. He also declared that Winnetka had not made the base of its dike solid enough.

Representatives of the Skokie club said there was no dike at the point designated.

Approve Plans for New Link to Northerly Island

Ralph H. Burke, chief engineer for the park district, was notified yesterday that war department engineers have approved plans to construct an earth embankment from the mainland to Northerly island at 12th street, along the line of the bridge leading to the planetarium. The embankment, or causeway, will be built with WPA labor. It will be wide enough for two roadways.

G. O. P. Nominee Dramatizes Tax Issue

State Representative Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, tells audience that taxes take portion of the price of a loaf of bread represented by the slices above the knife. He spoke at a picnic of the 47th Ward Republican club in Harms park.

SUSPENDS TWO STATE OFFICIALS FOR STAG SHOW

Horner Acts After 14 Are Indicted.

Rockford, Ill., July 9.—[Special.]—Winnebago county took strong action today in connection with a stag party. The county grand jury returned five indictments charging thirteen persons with immorality and one with a statutory offense.

Two of the thirteen were Floyd Heath, a state oil inspector, and Arthur Sagona, a deputy state fire marshal. Late tonight they were suspended by Gov. Henry Horner. The governor said the suspensions were effective pending investigation by "their superiors as to the correctness and truth of the charges."

Three Others Named.

Three others, named with them, were Donald Hilm, custodian of Germania hall where the stag was held; George Hondros and Ray Miller. James Knodle, 23 years old, was indicted on a charge of statutory rape.

Heath, Sagona, Hilm, Hondros, and Miller were arrested on the indictments, and released in bonds of $1,000 each. The names of the other defendants will not be given out until they are arrested, officials said.

Democrats Deny Sponsorship.

The stag party was given on June 8. It was sponsored by the county Democratic central committee. The committee has disclaimed connection with the girl show. That was a separately operated attraction, committee leaders said.

In returning the indictments, the grand jury urged that henceforth stag parties shall not be permitted in the county without express permission of proper authorities, and that indecency must be prevented.

Capt. Prendergast Chases Purse Snatcher in Vain

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of uniformed police, last night chased four boys who snatched the purse of Mrs. Mary Pfeffer, 55 years old, 7314 South Sangamon street, at 75th street and Normal avenue. They escaped. The purse contained $7. Capt. Prendergast was driving alone in the district at the time.

RECTOR DENIED PLEA TO GO TO JAIL WITH 2 YOUTHS OF HIS CHURCH

HAMILTON, Ont., July 9.—[U. P.]—The Rev. Griffin Thompson, rector of Holy Trinity Anglican church, pleaded today with Magistrate H. A. Burbidge of the Police court for permission to share the three to six months' sentences of two young parishioners he felt he had neglected.

They were John Kingston and John Smith, both 17 years old, convicted of car theft. The magistrate refused the clergyman's request.

"Perhaps we have neglected our opportunities for developing the mental and physical faculties of these boys," the clergyman said. "I feel I should share their sentences because of my neglect."

DELIVER FIRST OF STREAMLINED PATROL WAGONS

Streamlined, speedier patrol wagons will soon add to the efficiency of 15 Chicago police stations. The first one was delivered yesterday to the Jefferson Park station on the northwest side.

New features include shock absorbers to assure easy riding for accident victims, a siren instead of the old bell, a signal buzzer from the back to the driver's seat, windows which may be lowered for ventilation, and a rear step which also acts as a bumper.

The patrols have a speed of 80 miles an hour, according to Lieut. John J. Walsh. The word "Police" is painted in large letters on the front of the sloping roof, and it will be brightly lighted to make it visible several blocks away.

MARSHAL, NEGRO DIE IN GUN DUEL; MOB BURNS BODY

Arabi, Ga., July 9.—[U. P.]—A mob burned the body of a dying Negro today after he had killed the only policeman of this south Georgia village.

The Negro, John Dukes, 60 years old, was unconscious when the mob burned him to avenge the death of Freeman O. Epps, Arabi marshal, who had attempted to arrest Dukes earlier in the day.

Dukes pulled a pistol from his pocket when Epps tried to take him to jail for being drunk, the Negro shooting Epps three times. One of the bullets struck the officer in the neck, the other in the heart.

Before falling the marshal shot the Negro twice, once in the left arm and once in the chest. A mob soon formed.

TAXES DOUBLE COST OF BREAD, LYONS ASSERTS

Candidate Also Attacks Politics in Relief.

Why there is no longer a 5 cent loaf of bread was explained last night by Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for United States senator, in a speech at the annual picnic of the 47th Ward Republican club. The picnic was attended by more than two thousand persons at Harms grove, Berteau and Western avenues.

"What has become of the old 5 cent loaf of bread?" Lyons said. "There isn't any 5 cent loaf any more because 4 cents have been added to pay taxes."

The Roosevelt administration would have us believe that the rich are paying the cost of relief and government, he said, but this is all wrong, as the taxes on bread show.

Points to Taxes Everywhere.

"I bought a 10 cent loaf of bread today," the candidate declared. "It was already sliced. If I take nearly half of the slices and put them to one side, it shows how much of our bread money goes for taxes.

"You can find the same kind of thing in everything you buy, from the suspenders that hold your pants up to all the other necessities of life.

"No, the rich are not paying these taxes to keep up New Deal spending. It's your money and my money that goes into those billion dollar relief funds. Wait—are they relief funds? Or are they political campaign funds to buy the votes of the unfortunates who have to depend upon government aid for their bread and butter?"

Lyons, who voted for relief money to be given to the needy when he was a member of the legislature in Springfield, said that he knows that help must be given to people hungry through no fault of their own.

Calls Pump Priming Vicious.

"But I am opposed to using money appropriated for the poor and unemployed, to enable political bosses to drive these people to vote as the politicians dictate," Lyons said.

"I am willing to fight against any government program forced upon us through votes that are bought with relief funds. Buying votes with relief money keeps citizens from expressing their real sentiments. That is what the New Deal is attempting with its vicious pump priming bill."

Recent political campaigns in many states have been full of this kind of scandal, he said. But the time is coming, he declared, when members of congress will have to explain why they raised the cost of government.

Refers to Ancestry.

Lyons also referred to a remark said to have been made by Gov. Horner after the April primary to the effect that the Republicans erred in their choice for senator by nominating a man without social background.

"I am the son of a laborer and proud of it," Lyons said. "My father had no background, but he had backbone."

Other candidates who appeared at the picnic meeting were Stephen A. Day, candidate for congressman at large; William R. McCauley, candidate for state treasurer, and George E. Lambur Jr., candidate for clerk of the Illinois Supreme court.

In Battle for Baby

MRS. HELENE REYNOLDS.

New York, July 9.—[Special.]—"Outrageous and incredible," fumed Helene Fortescue Reynolds, society actress, today as she told how her husband, Julian L. Reynolds of the tobacco family, had kept their year old son Richard in his custody since June 14.

In an effort to get the boy back, Helene's attorneys have obtained a habeas corpus writ requiring her husband to bring the "kidnaped" child before Supreme Court Justice Percy D. Stoddart at Mineola, L. I., next Thursday.

The Mineola session will mark the fifth court appearance of the Reynoldses within three months. Mrs. Reynolds now has pending a suit for separation.

"Did you ever hear of a father thinking he is the right person to have the custody of a one year old child?" Mrs. Reynolds demanded today. She said she thought the boy was at the Glen Cove home of Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds, his paternal uncle and aunt, but that she wasn't certain.

INDIANA MILLER DIES.

Logansport, Ind., July 9.—[Special.]—William H. Gardner, 84 years old, a grist mill operator near here for fifty years, died today. The widow, five sons, and a daughter survive.

BLAME PAY ROLL RISE AT PRIMARY TIME ON SNOWS

F. Lynden Smith, state director of public works, said last night that all persons put on the state highway pay rolls during the spring primary performed some work for the money they got. The investigation by District Attorney Michael L. Igoe will not show any pay roll padding, Smith asserted.

The great increase of laborers in the Chicago area just before the April 12 primary resulted from blockades of most of the roads by snow storms, Smith said. It was necessary to send men to the Chicago area from as far as Paris, Ill., he added.

Igoe's investigation is uncalled for, Director Smith explained, because no government money went into the pay envelopes of the men being investigated. It was the contention of the federal prosecutor and his assistant, Warren Canaday, that 45 per cent of federal money went into the roadwork on which the men were employed.

Gov. Horner said of the investigation last night that the records of the highway division and all other agencies are open at all times and promised "hearty coöperation" in any investigation.

HITLER ORDERS HUGE FORTS ON FRENCH BORDER

Seen as Preparation for Drive to the East.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 9.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, convinced that Europe will not countenance changes in Germany's eastern border, has decided to create the German equivalent of the French Maginot line. The French Maginot line is a system of steel and concrete fortresses facing the German frontier. The purpose of the German fortifications will be to hold back a possible invasion from the west when and if Hitler decides to march east.

English and French warnings during the crisis last May, when Europe feared war between Germany and Czechoslovakia, convinced German statesmen and military experts that they must hasten work on permanent fortifications started after the remilitarization of the Rhineland in 1936. These fortifications are to be completed by 1939.

Build Temporary Line.

Pending completion of these fortifications, a temporary triple line of defense is being prepared. Nearly 500,000 men are working in three shifts to complete this line by next Sept. 1. The line will run along Germany's western frontier from Switzerland to the North sea. Among the men working on it are tradesmen and others drafted under the provisions of the decree recently issued empowering the government to conscript all able bodied men and women for labor duty.

Hitler himself gave the order for construction of the emergency defense line. For the last ten months he has devoted a great part of his time to the study of military affairs. In his summer capital, Obersalzberg, where he is supposed to be resting, he receives a steady stream of military experts.

Photographs which are allowed to appear occasionally in the German press show the Fuehrer inspecting troops in small garrisons and taking part in local maneuvers, especially those held at night. Foreign military experts say Hitler has attended so many night maneuvers that they assume Germany is developing new equipment and tactics for night battles.

Report Nazis Test Death Rays.

Many of Hitler's visits to the military forces have been kept secret, such as his visit to Schwerin, on the Warthe river, and towns in the vicinity. They are close to the Polish border and are situated in a sector which first drew international attention when the Germans prohibited airplane flights over it. This led to a report that the Germans are testing death rays which would enable them to halt invading planes.

In Aix la Chapelle travelers entering Germany this week were amazed to see miles of barbed wire entanglements stretched on the German side of the Belgian border, which were not there a few weeks ago.

The entanglements are all the more striking because for the last five weeks German motion picture houses have been showing movies of barbed wire entanglements which the Czechs put up during the May crisis. The pictures were accompanied by fiery denunciations of nations which use such tools of war in peacetime. The average German would be surprised if he knew that even more deadly looking entanglements were stretched along part of Germany's western border.

Defense Line Camouflaged.

The triple defense line is carefully camouflaged. Included are hundreds of camouflaged, disappearing turrets that can be covered with domelike revolving tops. The turrets are relatively small and are equipped with two to four heavy machine guns and light anti-aircraft guns.

Numerous concrete emplacements for heavier artillery have been built, while a network of roads and stores to facilitate movement of troops is under way. Foreign military experts in Berlin are convinced that the defense line also will be protected by electrical devices.

Foreigners living in the Rhineland, who formerly were invited frequently to hunt with their rich German friends, have been told that they cannot now be invited because the authorities have ruled that foreigners must be kept out of the forests for "reasons of military safety."

Building Slackens in Berlin.

In Berlin, building activities are slowing up. Laborers are working only one shift instead of the customary two. It is said that work has slowed up because much of the iron and steel required for building is being sent to the western border.

Hitler has instructed his diplomats to make clear to foreign powers, especially England, France, Belgium, Poland, Hungary, and Switzerland, that the German population in Czechoslovakia is waiting for the day when it can join the fatherland as Austria did, and that unless a satisfactory settlement can be found, the population will insist upon its "right of self-determination to join Germany."

The Fuehrer has instructed his diplomats to give solemn assurances that when the Sudeten German population "rises" he will see to it that only "absolutely German" districts will be allowed to join Germany. There is even talk of giving special guarantees to that effect.

Fear "Eastward Urge."

Hitler realizes that his assurances may prove insufficient because the powers may feel that once Germany has conquered the mountainous region dividing it from the fertile plains of Czechoslovakia, it will only be a matter of time until the "eastward urge" asserts itself.

Should the powers try to oppose what the Germans call "natural, unavoidable developments in the east," the Germans are convinced the triple defense line will prove a tremendous protection, though it is less expensive and complicated than France's Maginot line.

Germany and Hungary are reported to have reached an understanding that when and if war starts Hungary will remain neutral only as long as Russia keeps out of the struggle.

The Hungarians and Germans are reported to have reached an understanding that should a conflict begin Hungary will remain neutral only as long as Russia keeps out of the struggle.

Should the Russians march through Poland or Rumania to rescue the Czechs, it is said, the Hungarian army chiefs have agreed to accept "German reinforcements"—that is, to say, occupation by German troops.

Nazis Build German "Maginot Line"

Reichsfuehrer Hitler, convinced other European powers will march on Germany from the west when and if he marches east, has ordered the construction of permanent fortifications on the western German border to hold back a possible invasion from that quarter. Pending completion of this German "Maginot line," Germany is rushing a temporary triple defense line (1) from Switzerland to the North sea. France's "Maginot line" (2) is just across the border. Czechoslovakia also has a line of defenses (3) to hold back an expected German invasion.

Britain Sees Bombing of Ports in Spain as Test for Next War

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 9.—The bombings of harbors in Spain by German and Italian planes are being carefully watched by the British imperial general staf.

The reason is that these bombings represent an experiment which is of special importance to Great Britain. They are an attempt at blockade by air.

It is obvious that one chief objective of any nation at war with this country must be to blockade it, to cut sea communications. Sea action by surface shipping is out of the question while the British fleet holds its supremacy.

The submarine blockade which the Germans tried in the world war came uncomfortably near to succeeding. But the admiralty now is confident of its ability to meet a new submarine threat to communications. Nor are the Germans by any means confident of the contrary.

There remains, then, the air. The German general staf has been thinking over the possibility of paralyzing the sea communications of an enemy country by persistent aerial bombardment both of its merchant shipping and its mercantile harbors.

The experiment is being tried out on a small scale in Spain. The imperial general staf is watching and thinking of the countermove.

WORLD WAR STRATEGY.

The Germans, during the world war, were forced to find protective measures against air as well as warship attacks at Zeebrugge, Belgium, German world war submarine base. A dispatch to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE from Rotterdam, the Netherlands, dated May 15, 1917, said:

"Saturday's attacks on the Zeebrugge harbor defenses by the [British] naval and air forces were most severe and forced the Germans to the application of numerous defense tricks to escape the shells and bombs."

The dispatch pointed out that on early morning appearances of British bombing squadrons it had been the practice for German destroyers to "slink out of the harbor and take a position behind the outer mine fields. Several times, in performing this maneuver, they have suddenly found themselves under the guns of the big British flotillas, which shelled them back into the harbor."

Use Decoy Submarines.

"Now it is discovered," the dispatch said, "that the Germans leave wooden dummy decoy submarines floating in the harbor during the air raids, while the real submarines and destroyers take to flight up the canals to inland points, where the subsea craft find shelter in large bombproofs especially constructed in the sides of the canals.

"The recent daring activity of the British aircraft indicates that this last trick is known to the English flyers, who now carry the bombing operations inland to the submarine stations.

"Being forced to these elaborate defensive measures has greatly impeded the German use of Zeebrugge as a base of offensive operations."

Ostend, like Zeebrugge, was an outlet for German world war submarines and both were connected by canal to the inland town of Bruges. The covers along the canals under which submarines took refuge from airplane bomb attacks were made of heavy concrete.

On the night of April 22-23, 1918, a British naval raid partially closed the canal entrance at Zeebrugge for time. Two old cruisers were sunk in the canal's mouth. A simultaneous attempt failed at Ostend, but on May 9-10 a cruiser was sunk there.

NAZIS TIGHTEN BAN ON FOREIGN MONEY TRANSFER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 9.—As a result of Germany's shortage of foreign currencies, required for the purchase of raw materials and foodstuffs abroad, the ministry of economics has ruled that the granting of foreign exchange for traveling purposes will be greatly restricted. Applications of those desiring to travel abroad for their health will be considered only if the trip is approved by public health authorities, and only visits to close relatives will be financed. The ministry hopes the restrictive measures will help divert German tourists toward Austria, which has been deserted by foreign visitors since its incorporation into the reich.

MEMORIAL DAY STIRS FLAG ROW IN SOUTH AFRICA

Foes of Union Jack Balk at Rule to Fly It.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, July 9.—(AP)—The approach of Delville Wood day, South Africa's world war memorial day, on July 17, today unexpectedly stirred the union's stubborn controversy over two anthems and two flags.

A month ago the government sought to end the difficulty by ruling that both anthems, "God Save the King" and "Die Stem van Suid Afrika," be played and both the British union jack and the Union of South Africa flag be flown at future ceremonials.

Afrikanders [native whites] and British, however, making arrangements to observe Delville Wood day, ran into the same old dispute. The day is the anniversary of the heroism and annihilation of South African soldiers in France in 1916.

Pastor Refuses to Take Part.

At least one municipality was unable to make a decision whether one or both anthems should be played. At Kruegersdorp, in the Transvaal, the ceremony will be conducted by the mayor because the Dutch Reformed pastor refused to participate, describing the service as British.

Two Dutch clergymen refused to attend the services unless "Die Stem can Suid Afrika" only was played.

Parliament will meet July 22 in the shadow of the controversy. Some strong supporters of the British government are sure to make the controversy the subject of debate.

M. P.'s Support Two Flag View.

Most senior members of parliament supporting the government have accepted the decision to fly both flags and play both anthems. The step was taken when a cabinet minister resigned temporarily because "God Save the King" was not played at Union day ceremonies May 31.

a nonpolitical organization, announced it would petition parliament for an amendment to the flag act of 1927 to make compulsory the flying of both flags on all government buildings.

The union already has two official languages, English and Dutch.

ITALY IS READY FOR EUROPEAN OR WORLD WAR, DUCE DECLARES

ROME, July 9.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today announced Italy's readiness to combat bolshevism "on a European or world-wide scale" if such a combat should become necessary "to decide the fate of the continent."

Il Duce's statement was made in a preface he wrote to a volume of the Fascist grand council's acts covering decisions of the past three years. Declaring victory is within the grasp of the Spanish rebels, Mussolini continued:

"It [the Spanish war] is the first time—but will it be the last?—in which Blackshirts have confronted bolshevist forces and those of immortal principles on the international field. We do not know whether this clash may develop on a European or a world-wide scale tomorrow. What we do know is that Fascism does not fear a battle which must decide the fate of the continent."

Lithuanians to Give Dinner Wednesday for Mayor Kelly

Mayor Kelly will be honored at a testimonial banquet Wednesday evening in the Stevens hotel by the Lithuanians of Chicago. Petras Dauzvardis, Lithuanian counsel, will present him with a medal of the order of St. Gediminas. There will be a program of folk songs and dances in native costume. Municipal Judge John T. Zuris will be toastmaster.

HATE RULES HOLY LAND AS ARABS MASS FOR ATTACK

Natives of Transjordan Aroused, British Told.

JERUSALEM, July 9.—(AP)—Gunfire and new incidents of sabotage in Palestine today fanned the hatred between Jews and Arabs, which has cost fifty-eight lives in disorders since July 5. Great Britain took measures to increase further its augmented armed forces in the Holy Land.

Meanwhile, a sharp warning of the spreading enmity between Jew and Arabs came from Transjordan, British mandate east of Palestine, where an Arab administration rules. The Emir Abdullah Ibn Hussein, Transjordan ruler, sent a memorial to Sir Harold Alfred MacMichael, Palestine high commissioner, warning of possible trouble among his excited subjects unless strong measures were taken to bring the killers of twenty Arabs slain Wednesday in a market place bombing in Haifa to quick justice.

British troops, who fought a battle with 600 Arabs Thursday, said Transjordan tribesmen were massing on the frontier.

Summon Armored Cars.

The death toll from bombing, sniping, rioting, and armed clashes now includes forty-four Arabs and fourteen Jews. The number of injured mounted to 143 Arabs and forty-six Jews.

The British today ordered into Palestine the fleet of swift armored cars of the 11th Hussars regiment from Egypt, in addition to 1,600 infantrymen previously summoned from there. Already 8,500 British regulars, 1,500 police, and 1,700 marines and sailors are on duty.

[A dispatch from London said more than 5,000 additional British troops will pour into Palestine in the next few weeks for a long campaign to halt disorders. Three infantry battalions of 1,000 men each will leave Britain for the Holy Land about Sept. 1, the dispatch said.]

Freight Train Derailed.

Today's incidents were scattered. Saboteurs stopped trafic on the main Palestine to Egypt railway line by derailing a freight train near Tulkarm. The British deputy commissioner for Galilee fought a gun battle with attackers near Safed and escaped unhurt. Two Jewish hikers were stabbed and seriously wounded in an Arab village near Tel Aviv.

Three Jews were wounded when fired on near Tiberias. A German-Jew was beaten and stabbed in Haifa.

The British flag was raised in triumph over the police post at Sheframr, near Acre, after troops ousted a uniformed band which stormed the post, confiscated arms from police, and raised the red, white and green Arab national colors.

RULING ADDS ONE HOUR TO LIFE OF ROSS KIDNAPER

John Henry Seadlund, the kidnap-slayer of Charles S. Ross, was given an extra hour of life yesterday by order of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings. Seadlund is under sentence to die in the electric chair at the earliest possible moment next Thursday. In response to inquiries from federal authorities here, the attorney general ruled in Washington that the order means standard time—not Chicago daylight saving time. As a result the execution, in the Cook county jail, will not be carried out until after 1 a. m., Chicago time.

FORECASTER HAS PICNIC AFTER 3 DELAYS BY RAIN

Weather Forecaster C. A. Donnel was host yesterday at a picnic in Jackson park for the members of his staf and their families. The weather was good, for a change—the picnic had been delayed three times on account of rain.

It was indicated in the forecast that today will be generally fair and that the temperature will be between 80 and 85. Yesterday's high was 84 degrees at 1 p. m.

JAPS BEGIN DRIVE IN AREA U. S. WAS WARNED TO QUIT

Blast Chinese Along Yangtze River.

SHANGHAI, July 9.—(AP)—Japanese naval officers said today their "heavily operating "air forces were attempting to blast out Chinese defenders 30 miles above Kiukiang on the Yangtze river.

Stationed at Kiukiang, 135 miles below the provisional capital of Hankow, were the United States gunboat Monocacy and a British gunboat, remaining to protect their nationals despite Chinese and Japanese warnings of dangerous, thickly-mined waters.

The bombing operations followed by a few hours a Japanese note to foreign powers urging "voluntary evacuation" of an eighty mile area, from Kiukiang to Hwangshihkang, marked out for an intensified battleground. The Japanese announced they were rushing 20,000 troops for land operations in the zone.

Build New River Barrier.

The Chinese warning last Thursday said new booms across the river were being built 30 miles above Kiukiang, but the Japanese said they understood there was a channel through the obstructions and mine fields if the gunboats wished to withdraw.

Although there are booms and defenses at Kiukiang, the Japanese indicated that Chinese fortifications and positions 30 miles above that point were the main obstacle to the Japanese advance from Hukow to Hankow, a distance of 150 miles.

Dictator Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese forces were striking back at the Japanese in vigorous counterattacks. The Japanese admitted Chinese air raids on warships and troop concentrations above Anking were continuing, but contended the raids were ineffective. They said three Chinese bombers were shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

Chinese Claim a Victory.

The Chinese reported a victory at Huanmutang, where they said the Japanese lost several hundred men and ten armed launches, and reported counterattacks at Matowchen, Pengtseh, and Siangkow, points down river from the farthest Japanese advance.

The Japanese said their new offensive in Shansi province, north of the Yellow river, brought "new victories to Japanese arms."

BOLT LEAGUE OF NATIONS GROUP.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 9.—(AP)—Sudeten German and Hungarian minority delegates from Czechoslovakia walked out today as the International Congress of League of Nations Societies adopted a resolution scoring "economic and military pressure on Czechoslovakia." Delegates representing thirty countries attended the meeting.

LATIN NATIONS OFFER TO OPEN DOORS FOR JEWS FROM GERMANY

EVIAN-LES BAINS, France, July 9.—(AP)—Several Latin American nations today offered to open their doors to German refugees, most of whom are Jews. The offers were made at the thirty-two nation conference meeting here at the suggestion of President Roosevelt.

Mexico pledged asylum and promised opportunities for work. The Dominican republic announced that both agricultural and professional men would be accepted. He said large areas suitable for farming were available. Peru said it would welcome farmers, but would "place strict restriction on lawyers, doctors, and other professional emigrants." Colombia, Argentina, and Brazil limited immigration to farmers. Chile and Uruguay declined to increase their immigration quotas. Ecuador and Venezuela discouraged immigration.

Denmark announced it not only is unable to accept additional refugees, but would like to have some German refugees already settled in Denmark taken off its hands.

TRAPPING OF JAP BEETLES SOON TO START IN CHICAGO

The federal government's midsummer trapping of Japanese beetles will be started soon in Chicago. During the next few weeks traps will be set in residential sections. Residents are asked to coöperate by allowing them to be placed on their property. The traps will be visited at frequent intervals by inspectors.

Government entomologists explained that the Japanese beetle spends most of its life in the soil, where the grub feeds on the roots of plants. The adult, which is present in summer, is about one-quarter of an inch long with a green head and brown wings. It feeds on flowers, fruits, and foliage of many plants. The beetles first appear on the leaves of grapevines and in the blossoms of roses in this section.

GUEST AT PARTY KILLED BY FALL OFF PORCH RAIL

A house party of ten young couples ended in tragedy early today when Bruce Wille, 19 years old, 3909 Sheridan road, one of the guests, fell two floors to his death. The party was at the home of Richard Thomas, 20, 4154 Kimball avenue.

Wille was sitting on a rear porch railing talking with Arthur Hamilton, 21, 3654 Belle Plaine avenue, and a girl, both guests, when he suddenly toppled backwards and fell to the ground. Dr. A. Kushner, 3758 Irving Park boulevard, said the fall obviously caused death, but he could not find any fractures. Wille worked occasionally as a newspaper photographer.

HEART ATTACK CAUSES CAR DEATH.

Springfield, Ill., July 9.—(AP)—Charles Colman, 60 years old, of Salisbury, former member of the Sangamon county board of supervisors, was killed today when his car struck a telephone pole. Coroner W. L. Dragoo said Colman apparently suffered a heart attack.

AGREE ON PEACE IN CHACO; TREATY ALREADY IN PERIL

Neutral Nations Battle to Save Pact.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 9.—(AP)—Neutral mediators redoubled their peace efforts tonight to prevent the wrecking of a preliminary arbitration accord signed early this morning to end the century old Chaco dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The mediators sought quick ratification of the pact by Bolivia and Paraguay to prevent complications which might prevent its becoming final.

Politics Seen as Peril.

The mediators feared maneuvering by the "outs" in both countries who, for political reasons, might fight the pact.

The first step toward making the arbitration agreement effective must be ratification by the Bolivian and Paraguayan governments. Then will come the signing of a definite treaty in Buenos Aires, and finally ratification of that treaty by the constituent assembly in Bolivia and by a plebiscite in Paraguay.

Geronimo Zubizarretta, a possible Liberal candidate for the Paraguayan presidency, resigned his chairmanship of the Paraguayan Chaco arbitration delegation this week because the projected accord did not give Paraguay all its 1932-'35 conquests in the war with Bolivia over the Chaco jungleland.

Plan Permanent Boundary.

Neutral sources described the initialed arbitration draft as a "complete peace treaty" which, once ratified, would set up not only a permanent boundary by arbitration of the six neutral presidents but also would provide for nonaggression commitments, reëstablishment of normal diplomatic relations between Asuncion and La Paz, the disputing capitals, and pledges of mutual commercial transit facilities through and beyond the Chaco.

VICE CRUSADER SEIZED ON GIRL'S CHARGE KILLS SELF WITH DYNAMITE

Santa Rosa, Cal., July 9.—[U. P.]—Newton Kinley, a prominent apple grower and vice crusader who was arrested this week on a morals charge involving a girl 13 years old, committed suicide today by blowing himself up with dynamite in his orchard, the sherif's office reported.

Newton Kinley.

Kinley was released on bail yesterday. His body was found by his wife, who had stood by him when the charge against him was made. Kinley had denied the charge.

Sign Pact in 100 Year Old Chaco Dispute

Bolivia and Paraguay yesterday initialed an agreement to submit to arbitration their long dispute over the Gran Chaco territory, over which they fought a war from 1932 to 1935. Under the agreement a boundary is to be defined which Paraguay and Bolivia pledge themselves to accept.

YOUNG WIFE FOUND DEAD OF RIFLE SHOT IN HER HOTEL ROOM

Mrs. Betty Strange Mangano, 19 years old, was found shot to death yesterday in her room at the Saratoga hotel, 27 South Dearborn street. A .22 caliber rifle was found beside her and police said they believed she committed suicide.

Betty Mangano.

Mrs. Mangano had purchased the rifle several days ago from a loop sporting goods store. She had been employed in the Arlington Heights Country club until a week ago when she was dismissed. She then registered at the hotel.

Mrs. Mangano was married to Peter Mangano, a former student at Louisiana state university. The couple separated six months ago. Police learned that her parents live near Fort Worth, Tex.

GERMANY ORDERS DISSOLUTION OF GREAT ESTATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 9. — All entailed estates in Germany must be dissolved by the end of this year under a new Nazi law published tonight. A similar law was passed by the government shortly after the world war, but 910 entailed estates with a total of 3,750,000 acres escaped being broken up. To this must now be added another 750,000 acres in Austria. Explaining the necessity for dissolution of the estates, it is pointed out that "such estates are not in the interest of the national community, but serve to maintain, as in bygone days, the glamor and economic safety of individual families."

BAR JEWS FROM MORE JOBS UNDER A NEW NAZI RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 9.—In line with the Nazi policy to deprive Jews of every possibility of earning a living in Germany, authorities today introduced new Ghetto measures barring Jews from a number of occupations hitherto open to them.

Jews will be eliminated from real estate, administration of real estate and house properties, agencies for mortgages and loans, bureaus supplying information on personal data and the financial status of firms or private individuals, marriage bureaus unless they restrict their activities to Jewish clients, and companies supplying watchmen. Jews cannot engage in itinerant trade, involving peddlers and rag pickers, nor can they be guides for foreign tourists.

Dr. Wilhelm Frick, home minister, suggested to directors of spas that Jews can be excluded from use of medicinal baths, sun baths, public parks and beaches.

Husband of U. S. Singer Kills Himself in Vienna

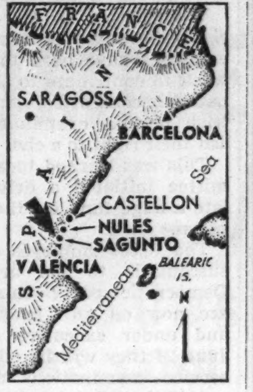
VIENNA, July 9.—George Strakosch, husband of the American singer, Renee Bullard, and son of an Austrian industrialist, committed suicide Thursday and was buried today. Strakosch, who was half Aryan, had been deprived of social privileges and had lost almost all of his fortune.

REBEL WARSHIPS, PLANES, TANKS BLAST FOE'S LINE

Spanish Loyalists Speed Valencia Defenses.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], July 9.—(AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent troops hammered from sea, land, and air today against the government defenders of Valencia in a coastal battle south of Nules. Hundreds of tanks and bombing planes were used in the conflict while insurgent warships shelled the militiamen's lines at right angles to the fire of rebel artillery on the shore.



Arrow indicates Sagunto, next rebel objective.

Government dispatches said Gen. Jose Miaja conferred hurriedly with provincial officials in Valencia to speed construction of the fortifications before the former provisional capital.

Battle on Mountain Slopes.

The insurgents were slightly more than twenty-five miles away after capturing Nules yesterday and pushing three miles southward along the road to Sagunto, their next objective, and Valencia.

Twelve miles northwest of Nules other insurgent columns from Onda and Tales attacked government lines southwest of Sueras. Fighting was heaviest on the slopes of the Sierra de Espadan.

The capture of Nules and Villavieja marked the principal insurgent gains last week along the front in eastern Spain, which extends southwest from Teruel to the Mediterranean. The insurgent advances were achieved at a heavy cost of lives.

It was estimated the insurgents lost 10,000 men. The government, following strictly defensive tactics, lost about 2,000, it was believed.

Rebels Bomb Badalona.

BARCELONA, July 9.—(AP)—In a morning air raid on Badalona, northern suburb of Barcelona, insurgent warplanes killed four persons, wounded five seriously, and slightly injured several others.

DIES AT 88 AFTER FALL.

Mrs. Isabelle O'Donnell, 88 years old, died in her home at 1431 North Menard avenue yesterday of injuries suffered a week ago in a fall. She had lived in Chicago forty-eight years.

70,000 WARNED BY DEMOCRATS TO KICK IN, OR—

U. S. Employes Told to Help Fill Party War Chest

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 9.—[Special.]—Seventy thousand government employés have been told in the last week to contribute to the Democratic national committee war chest if they wish to take examinations to establish their right to a civil service status.

This was learned today as the committee initiated a drive to accumulate a huge fund for the coming campaign.

The 70,000 employés are peculiarly susceptible to the urgings of the Democratic party chieftains. They are now on an "emergency" basis and under executive orders issued June 24 they will be eligible for civil service examinations next Feb. 1—provided that the head of the agency for which they work "certifies" them and states that they have given six months' prior satisfactory service.

WPA Employés Included.

"Kick in, or be kicked out," is the crude but forceful manner in which employés in the Works Progress administration, National Youth administration, and other agencies have been warned.

Employés, interviewed privately, declared that they have been told, quietly but firmly, that unless they send "a substantial check or two" to the national Democratic committee before Feb. 1, they probably will not be designated by agency heads to take the noncompetitive examinations to establish their right to a civil service status.

All the employés first received a circular letter from the Democratic national committee which has a list of workers dating back to 1933. The letter declared that "additional funds are needed to carry out an effective program throughout the nation."

Urged to Contribute.

"If you are willing to make your usual voluntary contribution of $5 or $10 or pledge $25 payable in two monthly instalments to help in this emergency," the letter read, "please inclose check in the attached envelope. A formal treasurer's receipt will be sent promptly as an acknowledgment of your gracious gift."

The executive order of President Roosevelt June 24 was hailed by friends of the administration as extending the merit system to all federal employés.

The President's order followed an act of congress passed in the last session which removed 15,000 postmasters of the first, second, and third classes from the patronage ranks. It was described as completing all reforms possible within the limitations of current law.

Forbids Political Activities.

Mr. Roosevelt directed that after Feb. 1, 1939, all employés and most officials be selected and promoted on merit alone. He forbade political activities by government employés or the use of political influence to gain government jobs. The civil service commission said that more than 100,000 additional positions would come under civil service, including the 70,000 in emergency agencies and corporations. At the present time, according to the commission, there are about 813,000 persons in federal positions, of whom 533,000 have been under civil service.

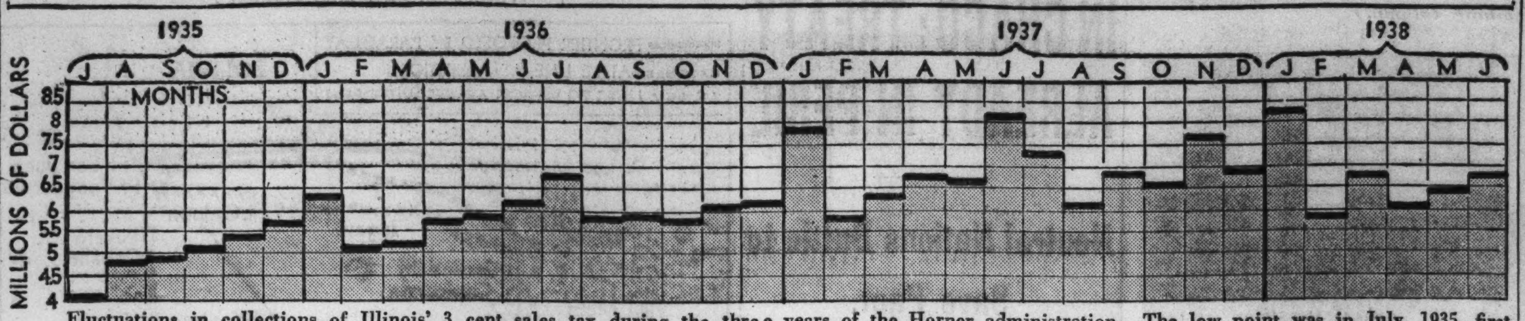
Ups and Downs of Illinois Sales Tax Collections Under Horner



Fluctuations in collections of Illinois' 3 cent sales tax during the three years of the Horner administration. The low point was in July, 1935, first month after raising of tax from 2 to 3 cents on the dollar. Collections crossed the 8 million dollar mark in June, 1937, and reached a record high last January.

15 ARRESTED IN SALES TAX DRIVE ON LIQUOR FIRM

Two of Capone's Pals Sought by State.

State's Attorney Courtney's police, continuing their drive against sales tax cheaters, yesterday arrested fifteen persons in an investigation of the United Liquor stores, Inc., which, it is charged, failed to pay the state $14,000 in sales taxes for fifteen months ending last April.

After several hours' questioning, Rocco de Stefano, 8000 Langley avenue, listed as the company's president, and Pasquale Trella, 5046 Federal street, general manager, were held under charges of conspiracy to defraud and filing of a fraudulent tax return. Vito and Frank de Stefano, Rocco's brothers, were released with the others, mostly store clerks and managers, subject to recall for further quizzing by Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan.

Hunt for Capone's Pals.

In addition, search was started for Ralph Buglio and Joe Fusco, former henchman of Al Capone, for questioning about their connection with the firm, which operates ten liquor stores in the city.

Early examination of the company's books, according to Investigator Gus Bartels, showed that a dummy set of entries was used to hide the real earnings. For the period involved, the total income was about $600,000, Bartels said, but the records showed only $131,826. He estimated the entire amount of taxes evaded since the organization of the company in 1934 might be $50,000.

Trella admitted falsifying the records, according to Bartels. "He said that the firm hadn't paid any taxes since it was organized and that when the heat was put on sales tax evaders last year he decided to 'fix things up,'" Bartels said. "So he made another set of entries."

Pays $4,000 in Taxes.

Bartels quoted Trella as saying: "I figured out that on the basis of what we took in since January, 1937, we were supposed to pay the state about $18,000, and I thought that was too much. So I fixed things up and we only paid $4,000."

Trella fought with Sergt. Patrick McNamara yesterday when he was placed under arrest in the company warehouse at 70 East 51st street.

Rocco de Stefano was indicted in February, 1936, with seven other men for highjacking trucks, according to police records. The state later dropped the charge when witnesses failed to show up.

Buglio and Fusco are being sought, Bartels said, because they have been operating a wholesale liquor concern which furnished the United Liquor Stores with their stock. Two other company officials being sought are Nick Patrizzo, the firm's treasurer, and Sam Cassano, a director.

POLICE LOCK UP 3 AFTER BURGLARY; 2 ARE WOUNDED

Three young men, two of whom were wounded by police while fleeing after a burglary early yesterday, were held by Jefferson Park police for a showup today. A woman bystander, Mrs. Loretta Haesch, 5883 Medina avenue, was slightly wounded by a ricocheting bullet.

The prisoners are James Kwasilorski, 17 years old, 1400 Bosworth avenue, and Harry Toyser, 21, 2432 Augusta boulevard, who were shot, and John Roster, alias Joseph Janka, 22, who gave his address as 2328 North Talman avenue. They were fired on by Policemen William Sommers and Randolph Stube after they broke into the plant of the Jack and Jill Ice Cream company at Moody and Milwaukee avenues.

Toyser was released from the Bridewell recently after serving six months on a larceny charge. Roster was sentenced to the Bridewell in 1933 for larceny, and again in the following year for tampering with an auto.

Young Chicago Mother Is Kidnaped and Raped by 2

A young Chicago housewife reported to Will county authorities in Joliet yesterday that two men forced her into an automobile outside a tavern near 63d and Halsted streets and drove her to a vacant house near Lockport where she was held prisoner over night and raped twice. She escaped, she said, when her abductors left her unguarded for a moment. The victim, the wife of a city employé, is the mother of two sons. One suspect was arrested.

Seized as Check Passer, Admits Evanston Holdup

FIVE MONTHS, AND ROURKE SLAYING STILL A MYSTERY

Five months after Lloyd Rourke, an independent deliveryman, was bludgeoned to death during a union strike, his slaying still remained a mystery last night. Capt. Ray Crane of the Hyde Park police reported that the killers are unknown although many clews have been investigated.

The strike at the Del Prado hotel, 5309 Hyde Park boulevard, was called the first week in February when the management refused to allow union agents in the hotel to organize the laundry workers. Rourke, who had a contract to deliver laundry from the hotel to another in the neighborhood, was warned to make no more deliveries.

On Feb. 10 he was slugged with a baseball bat near the Fairfax hotel, 1369 Hyde Park boulevard, when he ignored the union threats. More than a score of union officials were questioned by the police.

The strike was settled a month ago, ending four months of picketing at the Del Prado. The management agreed to reinstate former employés and to negotiate with the laundry workers' union.

"All Cars Must Have Brakes Like Hudson's BEFORE THEY CAN BE REALLY SAFE!"

"No 'Question-Mark' Brakes For Me," says E. B. Jay, Detroit

WHEN it comes to brakes, nobody can afford to take the slightest chance. You needn't . . . in a Hudson!

No one drives with finer brakes than good hydraulics. And no hydraulics are finer than Hudson's . . . self-energizing 4-wheel Bendix hydraulics.

But what if the hydraulic fluid should leak away, through some accident or carelessness? It can happen with hydraulics of any type! Yet with all the improvement that has been made in automobile braking, only Hudson has done the one thing necessary to make hydraulics the perfect brakes.

In a Hudson, the driver simply does the natural thing . . . presses the same foot pedal a little farther down. A separate mechanical reserve braking system takes hold automatically. He STOPS . . . safely, surely.

Double-Safe Brakes! The only brakes without a question mark! And with them, still a third braking application from the easy acting parking brake.

But Hudson's safety leadership doesn't stop there. It gives you single-unit bodies all of steel. Extra windshield width . . . clearest vision all around. Safety plate glass. Up front . . . massive forged radial arms for safer steering and extra strength.

Drive the cars that set the pace, not only in safety, but in roominess, performance and economy. Drive a Hudson Terraplane, Hudson Six, Hudson Eight, or the new "lowest priced car," Hudson 112. Compare Hudson values with any others on the market today.

$694 and up for Hudson 112 (3-passenger coupe), delivered in Detroit, fully equipped; including Federal taxes. Price does not include state and local taxes, if any. For delivered price in your locality, see your Hudson dealer. Attractively low time payment terms, with new Hudson-C. I. T. Plan.

TWO MAGAZINE CHAINS SIDESTEP INCOME LEVIES

Sink Profits in Costly New Ventures.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 9.—[Special.]—The New York City publishing fraternity is watching with interest the scheme of two magazine chains to pour the profits of their succesful publications into costly new ventures and by so doing to sidestep hundreds of thousands of dollars in corporation income taxes.

One of these magazine empires is Time, Inc., which is using the money made by Time, the weekly publication purporting to supply news, and Fortune, an elaborate monthly, to build up the picture magazine, Life. Time, Inc., might have been forced to pay federal taxes in the neighborhood of a million dollars on last year's income had it not been for funds sunk in Life. Instead, the corporation paid taxes of about $67,000.

The other group is Esquire-Coronet, Inc., whose losing enterprise is the fortnightly, Ken. Figures are not available on Ken's losses because publication began only two months ago, but experts in the publishing industry here are convinced by the dwindling advertising volume in its pages that these losses are heavy.

Ventures Viewed as Gambles.

Viewed by old timers in the publishing business, the two chains have embarked on a gamble.

Time, Inc., according to its own figures made public last March, lost $3,424,000 on the publication of Life magazine during the year 1937. In current issues of Life the magazine advertises that it made its first profit in the second quarter of 1938.

During 1937 Time magazine made a profit of $3,069,000 and Fortune made a profit of $498,000. Architectural Forum, also in the Time family, made an operating profit of $9,000, while March of Time, the movie venture of the corporation, lost $19,000.

Time, Inc., reported to its stockholders that its net income for the year was $168,430. This was in contrast to $2,747,233 for the year 1936, before Life was published.

Profits Exceed 3 Million.

Added together, the profits of Time magazine, Fortune, and Architectural Forum, amounted to $3,576,000. With the losses excluded and on the basis of the figures available, the federal taxes of Time, Inc., last year would have amounted at least to $865,151. The total represents $534,340 for the normal corporate tax and $330,811 for the undistributed profits tax, making due allowance for the dividends, which were distributed.

But there is still another levy, the excess profits tax. In order to compute this amount, the declared adjusted value of the capital stock of Time, Inc., which is given on its income tax return, is needed. Officials of Time, Inc., refused to disclose this figure.

With the bulk of its profits plunked into Life, Time, Inc., paid $64,750 in federal and British income taxes for 1937 and a federal surtax of $2,401. The previous year the magazine chain paid $378,259 in income taxes and $13,350 in federal surtaxes.

Esquire-Coronet, Inc., reported a net income before surtax of $835,465 and federal taxes of $148,099 for the year ending March 31, 1938, and income of $937,183 and taxes of $163,376 for 1937. The surtaxes paid for the two years were $191,727 for 1937 and $27,600 in 1938.

No report has been made to the public on the financial standing of Coronet, and it is rumored profits from Esquire are needed to bolster this pocket size magazine.

Double Trouble?

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Judson Van Arsdale receiving congratulations from neighbor, Helen Chocka on want-ad for wife that brought two candidates to home.

Mattawan, N. J., July 9.—[Special.]—Judson Van Arsdale, 59 years old, a widower, with a steady job and a nice home, has a problem—in fact two problems. Recently one of his friends advertised for a wife and got a prize. Van Arsdale decided to do likewise.

Out of eighty applicants Van Arsdale suggested May Meyers of Washington, D. C., a plump, attractive blonde, come on approval. Van Arsdale was about to decide she was the one for him when she was called back to Washington by the illness of a daughter. He heard nothing more from her.

Then Nellie Davis, also plump and attractive, but a brunette, was summoned from Paris, Ill. A few hours before Nellie's train was due in Mattawan, a taxicab drew up to the Van Arsdale place and out popped May. Then Nellie arrived.

Judson was in a quandary. He persuaded both to stay and talk things over. Next day he returned from work to find the house spotless and a splendid meal waiting. This went on for days.

Today Van Arsdale said he was leaving next week for a vacation. He wouldn't say which woman would become his wife.

CITY SENDS OUT FIRST TAX BILLS ON DRIVEWAYS

The first bills for taxes on private driveways, which were voted by the city council late last year, were mailed to 6,200 property owners last week. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt said an additional 2,100 bills, known as collection warants, will be sent out early this week. The bills total approximately $108,000.

Permit fees are based on the width and number of driveways, it was explained. A property owner with one driveway up to 16 feet wide must pay $10. If his driveway is wider he is required to pay $11. For each additional driveway the fee is $1, regardless of width. Formerly property owners had to get permission from the city to have driveways constructed, but no fee was charged.

Failure to pay for 1938 permits will be reported to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, with a request that suits for collection be started against the property owners, Commissioner Hewitt said.

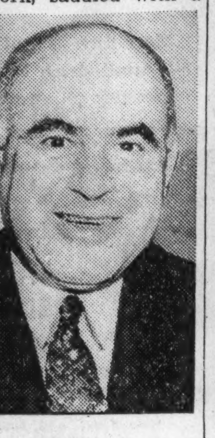
Lehman Wipes Out Deficit of 100 Million.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Gov. Lehman.

New York, July 9.—[Special.]—The state of New York, saddled with a deficit of 100 million dollars under the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as governor, today is operating under its first balanced budget since 1930.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, delicately avoiding the mention of his predecessor, announced this week that by a careful husbanding of revenues and pruning of expenditures during the last five years the mountainous deficit left by the spending policies of the previous régime had been chopped down. In fact, the state ended its fiscal year July 1 with an actual cash surplus of $6,500,000.

Irks Roosevelt Boosters.

Publicity given to Lehman's fiscal achievements is regarded sourly by Roosevelt partisans here in New York City and throughout the state. The budget balancing, which throws the spotlight on the former administration's wastefulness, is just one more mark chalked up against Gov. Lehman, who incurred the wrath of President Roosevelt for publicly opposing his cherished Supreme court packing scheme last year.

Lehman is a candidate for senator. Informed political sources say members of the "purge" committee operating out of the White House at Washington would mark the New York governor for annihilation at the primary if they thought they had a chance.

Observers who drew a parallel between Roosevelt the governor and Roosevelt the President were led to the opinion that here in New York he had the finances of only one state to toy with, while in Washington he has forty-eight states.

Examination of New York state's fiscal record shows that between 1918 and 1931 appropriations increased from 81 million to 328 million dollars, or 305 per cent. During this period the only decrease in the state budget occurred in the administration of Nathan L. Miller, the last Republican governor, between 1921 and 1922.

Appropriations mounted at the rate of $14,500,000 a year. When Roosevelt became governor, however, the increase doubled and rose to $29,000,000 a year. He had been left a surplus by Al Smith as governor, but this melted and by 1932 the situation became acute.

When Gov. Roosevelt sent in his executive budget in January of 1932 there was abundant evidence of the necessity for drastic economies. The budget report showed the state was faced with a deficit of $124,418,729.21. There was not sufficient money on deposit to the credit of the state to meet its obligation of $50,000,000 due on Jan. 15 and a like amount on March 15 to the common school districts of the state for the payment of teachers and operating expenses.

Blocked by Republicans.

The Republican legislature, the record shows, cut the governor's budget 21 million dollars at that time. Roosevelt exercised influence to have the spending items replaced and he was blocked by Republican votes.

George R. Fearon, majority leader and temporary president of the New York state senate at that time, attacked Roosevelt for his habit of spending beyond his income.

"Roosevelt and his party are on record in New York state as opposing every effort of the Republican legislature to reduce government expenditures," asserted Fearon. "They even opposed the creation of an economy committee to investigate expenditures of state departments by nonpolitical engineers and accountants for the purpose of recommending economies."

Deficit Mounts Swiftly.

On July 1, 1930, the state of New York had a surplus of $16,197,861 and a year later a deficit of $40,035,313. The accumulated deficit had reached $102,060,786 by July 1, 1932, the year in which Roosevelt was first elected President. This deficit burden has been completely wiped out during Lehman's administration of affairs.

Liquidating the deficit, of course, meant taking $20,000,000 a year from the taxpayers' pockets, a course which Roosevelt shied away from during the 1932 presidential contest. One dollar out of every eight in taxes under Lehman has been applied to the Roosevelt deficit.

Gov. Lehman reported that for the fiscal year just ended revenues amounted to $388,986,557, while expenditures were $372,318,783. This left an operating surplus of $16,667,774 which, after subtracting last year's deficit of $10,198,451, amounted to a cash surplus for the year of $6,469,323.

20,200,000 GET PUBLIC HELP IN MAY; COSTS UP

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—The social security board reported today that 6,400,000 households, including about 20,200,000 persons, received some form of public assistance in May.

The total of state, federal and local costs incurred for aid to those households, the board said, amounted to $247,750,000, an increase of about $4,831,000, over the April total.

Included in the total were $41,857,000 paid out by the board for needy aged and blind, dependent children and for other special purposes; $147,695,000 put out by WPA and other agencies for work relief; $18,218,000 for the CCC; $2,267,000 for farm security subsistence grants, and $37,713,000 put up by states and localities for general relief.

TWO MURDERERS FLEE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN PRISON

Jackson, Mich., July 9.—[U. P.]—A police slayer and a convict who killed his parents and burned their bodies escaped from southern Michigan prison today in a state-owned automobile which they seized by threatening the driver with a razor.

The fugitives are Earl Glen Sauters, 38 years old, and Richard H. Champlain, 40. Both were serving life terms.

The automobile in which they escaped was found abandoned in River Rouge. In their flight the prisoners abducted James Walsh, a prison trusty. He was thrown from the machine near Flatrock.

MOVING ECONOMIC MOUNTAINS

By CALEB

MAN has devised many types of financial and economic structures on which to support the highly important business of living. But —strangely enough—all of them, new and old alike, include an impressively large quota of faith—a purely theoretical quantity in the hard realism of barter and exchange.

Sometimes every part of a nation's economic machine bogs down and collapses—excepting the single element of faith. Examples come quickly to mind. There have been instances where the only solvent element in a nation's whole economic structure is faith; the faith of the people in themselves and each other, plus the faith of neighbor nations in basic resources and resourcefulness.

This element of faith inherent in economic procedure does not lend itself to ready assay and calculation. It is difficult to weigh, since it is as unpredictable as the winds. Who can say at what moment a nation will lose confidence in itself? There are peoples who maintain their confidence beyond all range of reasonable prediction. Others lose it with the first faint winds of adversity.

Sometimes the nations with superlative opportunity and unequaled resources are quickest to lose faith in themselves. Other nations, lacking many of the natural gifts, and threatened with literal rather than theoretical starvation, display supreme confidence and determination in the face of overwhelming difficulties.

Likewise, there is ample illustration in history of nations gone bankrupt with plenty on every hand—because their people lost faith in themselves. This faith then becomes an element important in the complex business of living. In short, it is the essence of modern economics—call them by whatever name we will.

To all elements and individuals in America who strive and work continually to create, sustain and guarantee that faith, this nation owes great gratitude. As long as that faith continues we need have no fear of the future.

Roving Dogs Kill $250 Worth of Turkeys

What it cost the owner of two roving dogs for the turkeys they killed—the unusual decorations over a turkey hen's nest in a clover field—the use of a flushing bar on mowers—these are subjects discussed in Bob Becker's article in today's Sunday Tribune want ad section about activities on the Tribune's Du-Page county farm.

CARRIE NATIONS RAID 243 LAKE CO. GAMBLING SPOTS

Cart Away Slot Machines; Make 27 Arrests.

The 27 persons who were arrested were taken with such gambling apparatus as was seized to the Highland Park town hall. They were charged with possessing gambling equipment and freed on bond. The raids appeared effective last night. Slot machines—main objective of the raiders—were quiet. So were pin ball games. Handbooks were closed before the day's last races were run.

Confirms W. C. T. U. Leadership.

Justice Hansen said that the W. C. T. U., ministers, church people, and substantial citizens generally backed the raids. Mrs. Glenn A. Herrick, president of the Waukegan chapter of the W. C. T. U., confirmed this. Not only the Waukegan W. C. T. U., but the church Federation of Lake County supported them, she said. Conditions called for action, she asserted.

The raids were regarded as a private enterprise, except for Justice Hansen's coöperation. It was estimated the constables were each paid $10, with their cars and trucks costing extra. The total cost was believed to have been $1,500. One raider said the W. C. T. U. paid a "large chunk."

Willing to Raid, Sherif Says.

Sherif Lawrence A. Doolittle, on learning of the raids, said he would have made them if he had been asked. He asserted officials had ignored slot machines in the county because of the plea of resort people that their removal would send 100,000 Chicago vacationists into Wisconsin areas which have no restrictions on the devices.

State's Attorney Charles E. Mason said he had received no complaints against slot machines in months. He and Sherif Doolittle would have coöperated had any been received, he said. "It seems to me," he added, "that the justice of the peace and the organizations involved could at least have notified the state's attorney's office." He offered to present the raid evidence to the grand jury tomorrow, and to prosecute the cases. Claude Warner, when told of this, announced: "We want a special grand jury and a special prosecutor."

CITY CONSIDERS SAFETY TESTS OF VISITING AUTOS

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt said yesterday that he will ask Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes this week whether the city can force motorists from outside Chicago to have their cars and trucks tested at the safety lanes.

Such inspection, Hewitt said, would go far toward preventing accidents such as that last week in which a huge tank trailer from out of town caught fire after it broke loose and crashed into a truck. Investigation indicated the trailer had a faulty coupling. Had the vehicle been inspected when it entered the city, Hewitt said, the accident might have been avoided.

New Section of Route 53 Now Is Open to Trafic

The state highway department announced yesterday that a new section of state route 53 between U. S. route 66 near Joliet and state route 54 near Long Grove, Lake county, has been opened to trafic. The new section, forty feet wide, was built at a cost of $500,000.

Seeks Divorce

VERA STEADMAN.

Hollywood, Cal., July 9.—[Special.]—Vera Steadman, film actress and former Mack Sennett bathing beauty, has filed suit for divorce from Martin Padway, charging cruelty. Her complaint said Padway, a filling station operator, was sullen, morose, and sarcastic on several occasions and struck her several blows on her face and body last April 14. They were married on April 17, 1935.

SLAYER OF TWO IN SALOON FIGHT ASKS FOR PAROLE

John Hunt and Jerry Sucharda, Chicago murderers, are among twenty-eight convicts whose pleas for clemency the state board of pardons and paroles will hear Tuesday. Hunt killed two men while quarreling over his sweetheart in a south side speakeasy in 1920. Sucharda shot and killed a companion during a robbery in 1916. They are serving life sentences at Joliet.

Mrs. Jean Rosen, who was sentenced in December, 1935, to a year to life for burglary, has filed a request for pardon.

Another who asks a parole is Clarence Bales, a former Tennessee lawyer, who was convicted in September of 1936 of conspiracy to defraud the county of nearly $100,000. He got one to five years at Joliet.

TRAFIC DEATHS DECLINE; 3,709 IN SIX MONTHS

Washington, D. C., July 9.—[U. P.]—The census bureau today reported a drop of 19 per cent in the number of automobile deaths in 127 major cities during the first six months of this year, compared with the first half of 1937. Deaths totaled 3,709, compared with 4,591 in the corresponding period last year.

These seven cities reported no deaths due to automobile accidents within city limits in the period: Cicero, Ill.; Cleveland Heights, O.; East Orange, N. J.; Evanston, Ill.; Pueblo, Colo., and Kenosha and Racine, Wis.

Mrs. David S. Harbison Files Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Louise G. Harbison of Winnetka filed suit for divorce in the Superior court yesterday against David S. Harbison. She charged cruelty. Harbison is the son of the late L. C. Harbison, who was president of the Household Finance corporation. Mrs. Harbison is the daughter of Louis D. Glanz, head of the Glanz Mortgage company, 1112 Milwaukee avenue. The couple were married Jan. 5, 1929, and separated last May 8. They have two daughters, 7 and 2 years old.

CYCLIST INJURED IN A CRASH WITH AUTOMOBILE DIES

Chicagoan Hurt in Fatal Indiana Collision.

Injured on June 28 when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile at Jeffery avenue and 95th street, Harry Dante, 35 years old, of 9826 Avenue L, died yesterday in the South Chicago hospital. The automobile was driven by Max Malkin, 7600 Kingston avenue.

W. E. Long, 60 years old, a Chicago and Indiana business man, and Miss Mayme Wogoman, 25, of Syracuse, Ind., were slightly injured yesterday in a motor accident near Goshen, Ind., in which another woman was killed. He was described as a bread machinery manufacturer, advertiser, and real estate operator. His Chicago offices are at 155 North Clark street.

Woman Killed in Crash.

Long and Miss Wogoman, owner of a gift shop, were driving in state highway 119 when a car shot out of a side road and struck their automobile broadside. Both cars overturned. Mrs. Etta B. Smoker, 68 years years old, and her husband, John Smoker, a lumberman of New Paris, Ind., were in the second machine. She was killed. He suffered a shoulder fracture.

Michael Stanis, 63 years old, 1824 Thomas street, suffered a possible skull fracture last night when he was struck at Augusta boulevard and Wood street by a car driven by Anton Deutsch, 58, of 3304 Diversey avenue. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital.

Two Hit-Run Victims.

Willadore Thomas, 15 years old, 1423 South Morgan street, and Julia Macklin, 23, of 1407 South Morgan street, were struck by an automobile last night as they were standing on the lawn in front of 1422 South Morgan street. The driver sped away. Miss Thomas and Miss Macklin suffered possible skull fractures, and are in the County hospital.

Witnesses pursued the driver and obtained his license number. It was traced to Anthony Rado, 2614 Huron street, a clerk in the county assessor's office. He told police he had lent the car to Frank Ariano, 24, of 2502 Huron street. Ariano returned the car with its front damaged, but told him, he said, he didn't know how the damage occurred. Police are seeking Ariano.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 420 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 326 were killed in Chicago, where 9,549 were injured in the same period.

NEW BROOKFIELD PARKING SPACE OPENED TODAY

A new parking area to care for 1,400 cars will be opened today at the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield, Director Edward H. Bean announced yesterday. The new area, inside the north gate of the zoo and to the east of the entrance, brings the total parking acreage to space for 6,000 cars. Of these, 3,600 are under direct supervision.

Lack of additional parking space, Director Bean said, has turned away hundreds of visitors on Sundays and holidays. The new arrangement should accommodate from 5,000 to 10,000 more persons. In the month of June alone, he said, 304,836 visitors passed through the zoo's turnstiles. Of this number, 30,393 paid admission.

HELD ON STOLEN CAR CHARGE.

Raymond R. Brown of Minneapolis, Minn., was held to the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of transporting a stolen car across a state line. Brown was captured near Wheeling last Thursday. Two comrades with whom he was fleeing escaped by swimming the Des Plaines river.

FIND ST. CHARLES SCHOOL 50 BOYS OVER LIMIT NOW

Cook County Alone Has 45 on Waiting List.

The St. Charles school for boys, the only state institution except a prison to which juvenile delinquents may be sent, is 50 over its capacity and has a waiting list of 45 in Cook county alone.

This was brought out yesterday by Judge Frank H. Bicek of the juvenile court, who asserted that the state should provide enough buildings to house boys committed to reform schools.

"Boys committed by the juvenile court after various offenses have to stay in the juvenile detention home for one or two months before St. Charles can accept them," said Judge Bicek.

Delays Boys' Return.

"This causes overcrowding in the juvenile home, which can only provide temporary quarters. It is unfair to the boy because it delays his return to a normal life."

Judge Bicek said that the juvenile home's population now is 282, of whom 221 are boys and 61 are girls. There were more than 300 children in the home in February, 1937, when it was under investigation because of overcrowding and lack of segregation of delinquent children from innocent dependents.

The number was reduced to an average of 229 in April, 1937, after the establishment of a department to pass on the character of children admitted.

School Badly Overcrowded.

Arnold Rauen, assistant managing officer of the St. Charles school, said that an advisory committee on housing conditions has fixed the school's capacity at 677. The population there is now 727. The peak overcrowding, he said, was reached last September, when there were 783.

William Harmon, the managing officer, has asked the state department of public welfare to replace three of the old, 12-bed cottages in which the boys live with three 25-bed cottages. Money for this, however, must be appropriated by the legislature, the next session of which begins in January, 1939.

The boys are committed for indefinite periods and released when they have fulfilled specified educational and vocational programs. They may be committed between the ages of 10 and 17 and may remain in the school until they are 21. Delinquent girls are sent to a similar school at Geneva.

Objects to County Limit.

Judge Bicek objected to limiting Cook county boys at the school to 52 per cent of the total attendance, although this is Cook county's proportion of the state population. He said it is not just to treat any county otherwise than on the basis of need.

A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare, replied: "Cook county is not the only county that has a waiting list. We are doing the best possible under existing conditions to handle the load, working in a few who are waiting each week. To overcrowd the institution would neutralize its purpose."

Not Half from Cook.

Of the schools total of 727, 351, or 48.5 per cent are from Cook county, said Rauen. Of the 158 admitted since Jan. 1, however, 83 or 52.5 per cent were from Cook county, he said.

Rauen added that the trouble the school had with runaways in the summer of 1935, when 20 escaped within two months, has been largely eliminted. Only seven have attempted to escape since last Sept. 27, he said.

JUDGE PUTS JOHN AND HIS 1-TRACK MIND INTO CELL

The police were quite right in advising John Malenki of 13525 Avenue M to move his car, Judge Thomas A. Green said yesterday. He ordered Malenki to jail for 100 days for being so slow to take the advice, and for telling police to move the car themselves if they wanted it moved.

The car was on the Nickel Plate railroad track at 137th street and Avenue O, the police testified. Malenki was in it. And——

A train was coming.

Wealthy Family to Adopt Department Store Waif

A wealthy north shore family temporarily has adopted the 18 month old baby girl abandoned Thursday in an Evanston department store, Policewoman Vera L. Everett said yesterday. The family, which asked that its name be withheld, was attracted by a newspaper photograph of the yellow haired child, who gave her name as Baby. If she is still unclaimed at the end of six months she will be adopted legally.

JUSTICE UNDER DICTATORS.

When Hitler conducted his blood purge of July, 1934, he descended on his victims, weapons in hand, with his bravos, like a Florentine noble assassinating his rivals, like Henry III. butchering the Guises, like Richard II. disposing of Gloucester. He did not sully his courts with this transaction although he went over the head of criminal justice to kill his proscribed men on their own doorsteps.

Tyrants when alarmed or enraged will take the short cut with pistol, dagger, or poison. However, when Pastor Niemuller was released by his judges as a man who already had paid his debt, even to a despot's law, Hitler imprisoned him again. No judicial system can hold up its head in self-respect when so outraged. The German courts freed the framed victims of Nazi charges that they had fired the parliament building, all except the Dutch halfwit who confessed carrying the firebrands. Honest judges, disciplined by their training and by their integrity, break down slowly if at all. Hitler avoids them by imprisoning his victims without trial or despite one.

Mussolini pretends to obey the provision of the Italian constitution that "no one shall be taken from the jurisdiction of his natural judges," but he circumvents it by the Law for the Defense of the State, creating a special tribunal of picked men. The secret police take the anti-Fascists who are to be banished to the Lipari Islands before these judges. Fascist party activities also permit a Ku Klux form of private correction of irregular tendencies. It will keep a neighborhood or community in order without bothering the special defense tribunal. Compared with Hitler the Italian dictator is a restrained man.

For the great degradation of the courts in modern times one must take the examples found under Stalin in soviet Russia. Stalin assassinates behind the wall of his censorship and the cloak of his terror, but when he wants to put on a show he uses the highest court of his judiciary for a public display of cold, formal, and merciless lynching in which the judges appear as puppets, the prosecutor as the trigger man, and the counsel for defense as assistant executioners. Assassination will be the prerogative of a man whose secret police are his ministry and mainstay, but the corruption of a people goes deeper when the course of justice is debauched and its temple is a façade of whitewashed bones. Then all hope is abandoned. The victim is not only sacrificed—he is mocked.

Outside the communist factions, Stalinites, Trotzkyites, Lovestoneites and whatnot, most people who were interested or shocked by the greatest of modern political massacres, executions, and purges as staged for two years by the soviet government, have abandoned the hideous mystery of the macabre episode as unreadable in the light of any facts they can ever hope to possess. Nearly twenty years after the establishment of communism and its pretentious brotherhood in a great state, that state became a shambles into which great and small were dragged. Of the founders of the Marxian Eden all except Stalin were erased, most of them shot. Red commissar, Red marshal, Red admiral, and Red worker alike stood before the executioners and their fate might be unknown unless and until a list of the dead was given to the newspapers.

On three occasions Stalin used his courts in mass trials of the founders of bolshevism, seeking to make a display for the world and throw the mantle of justice over the purges. For this purpose two complete court transcripts were translated into English and widely circulated. Leon Trotzky, condemned in exile as the chief conspirator in the plots, asked for an investigation and John Dewey headed a commission to inquire into the evidence, confessions, and testimony upon which the convictions were based and the guilt of Trotzky asserted. The transcript of the commission hearings was published last year. The full report of the commission will be out this week. It is a detailed analysis of the court proceedings which will leave the psychology of the confessions to the psychiatrist but which bares the ritualistic farce of the trials as judicial proceedings.

The confessions flow in a full stream of self-accusation and incrimination of others until they reach points where corroborative evidence would be obtainable. Then it is apparent that the self-accusing witnesses are lying and that the prosecutor knows they are lying. The attorneys on the defense bench sit silent. The accused place each other in impossible places at impossible times.

Soviet justice could have survived the assassinations if it had not been used as a judicial cover for them. It could not recover from the degradation of being a theatrical setting.

SEX CRIMES.

Gov. Horner has signed the bill sponsored by State's Attorney Courtney for the more effective control of rapists. Under the old law such men, even when they clearly were psychopaths, were treated as ordinary criminals. If convicted they were sent to the penitentiaries. They were therefore eligible for parole and many of them were paroled, to repeat their crimes at the first opportunity.

Under the new law such persons may be charged by the attorney general or the state's attorney with being sexual psychopaths with criminal tendencies. If a jury finds the diagnosis correct the rapist will be locked up with the criminally insane. If the mental disturbance is ever cleared up the prisoner must be returned for trial on the original criminal indictment.

The change in procedure is sound in theory. The criminal sexual psychopath is a criminal because he is a psychopath. Sentencing such a man to a few years in the penitentiary is absurd; he should be locked up in an asylum like any other dangerous maniac until his mind is restored to health, as may occasionally happen. In an institution devoted to the care of the mentally unbalanced he may have some chance of recovery; in the penitentiary he has none.

The largest risk involved in the new method of handling rapists and similar criminals is that it will be used by politicians to get them out even faster than before. That risk seems to have been covered in the provision of the law that such men must be tried on the criminal charge if released from the asylum. There is no certainty that the new method will work for the better protection of society, but it ought to. The long campaign against sexual criminals has resulted in a distinct improvement in the law.

BACK TO SLAVERY.

The fixed policy of the administration to grab political profit from the distribution of relief was illustrated again in the address of Aubrey Williams, boss of WPA, delivered last week before the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Less than a week before Mr. Williams had told a delegation of WPA workers that if they knew what was good for them they would vote his way. That speech constituted a major political scandal which Mr. Williams' subsequent explanations only emphasized. Even the partisans of the New Deal were shocked. Here was a high official of the government proclaiming with all the authority of his office that the debauchery of the electorate with bribes and threats is a settled policy of the administration.

So far from being chastened by the protests which arose from all sides Mr. Williams has now carried his campaign a step farther.

Mr. Williams talked to the leaders of the colored people about Germany and the Jews. The trick was transparent. He wished to frighten his hearers into thinking that what has happened to the Jews under Hitler will happen to the Negroes in this country if they return to the Republican fold. This was not an easy task on the anniversary of Gettysburg.

To make his case he perverted the facts of recent German history to suit his needs. He said Hitler came to power because the men who preceded him were moderates who hesitated, compromised, and delayed. That is the Nazi story. Mr. Williams has swallowed their propaganda whole. In fact, Hitler came to power in January, 1933, but the fate of the Jews and with them of all liberals in Germany had been sealed two years before that when the German dictatorship was set up with Bruening as the chancellor. Constitutional guarantees were suspended by order of President Von Hindenburg. Germans in time became accustomed to dictatorship. Some prominent Jews made the mistake of supporting it. It evidently occurred to few of them that if unrestrained power to rule should fall into the hands of a viciously prejudiced man nothing could prevent him from carrying his hate into action because the checks imposed by courts, a constitution, and representative government were no longer effective.

Mr. Williams told his Negro audience that it will be in their interest to coöperate in the present administration's effort to increase its powers at the expense of congress and the courts. More dangerous advice could not have been given.

If the Negroes in this country wish to risk sharing the fate of the Jews in Germany, Mr. Williams' advice will be taken. The strongest single element in the Democratic party today is the solid south. Sooner or later that element will be represented in the White House. If the Roosevelt effort to set up a dictatorial executive is carried out and that future occupant happens to be a man who regards successful Negroes as upstarts to be put back in "their place" and Negro rights as undeserving of respect, the Negroes will lose in a night all they have won in 75 years of struggle against heavy odds. The recent history of Germany should teach the colored people of this country, and, indeed, all minority groups, that the gravest threat to them lies in the weakening of constitutional restraints upon executive power. The greatest reliance any minority can have against persecution is the knowledge that the powers of government are defined and limited and that the courts can protect the potential victims against government itself. Mr. Williams is asking the Negroes of this country to support a policy of destroying these safeguards for which there is no substitute.

ANOTHER NEW PLANK.

This morning another new plank appears in the Platform for the Middle West at the head of this page. The new plank reads: "Erect Safe Highways." It replaces "Build Elevated Roads. Save Lives."

The new version has the merit of being shorter, more accurate, and more inclusive.

So far as highways outside the cities are concerned, they will be rendered safe if they are of adequate width, as many of them are now, and if the grades at important road intersections and all railroad crossings are separated. Separation of the streams of trafic with a parkway is also recognized as sound practice.

In the larger cities the plank, "Erect Safe Highways," calls for the building of elevated roads. No other kind of construction will prevent as many collisions and pedestrian deaths. The added expense will be repaid many times over in the saving of lives and hospital bills.

After years of campaigning we have seen the construction of new arterial roads and the widening of old ones. The next great advance will lie in separation of grades at the points of danger in the country and over congested city streets. Only by building safety into the highways can any real progress be made against the annual massacre by automobiles.

PRETTY DEEP.

The cinema manager tapped the billposter on the shoulder. "You'll have to be more careful about these bills, Jim," he exclaimed.

"Why, what's the matter?" Jim inquired.

"Well, next week's film is called 'The Silent Woman' and you've stuck it above a small bill which says, 'The World's Greatest Mystery.'"—Pathfinder.

ETHIOPIAN WAR GOES ON

BY JACQUES R. PECHERAL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland.—In order to join the Ethiopians who are waging guerrilla war on the Italian conquerors I had to go by way of British Kenya colony. Entering the country via Djibouti and the French railway was out of the question. Even the British did everything in their power to prevent me from reaching Ethiopia when they found out I was a newspaper man.

I am now on my way back from the Ethiopian war, for there still is a war in Ethiopia. Although Europe and America may have lost sight of it the war is as real as is the existence of an independent Ethiopia with its capital at Gore, its own government and its own army. For several weeks I shared the life of part of that army. With a handful of determined fighters I, patroled the country from Bako to Mega, southwestern outposts of the Italian advance.

These are some of the highlights of an experience which I have set down in diary form:

ABOARD THE S. S. PORTHOS.—The lights of Port Said are in sight and the first stage of the trip is over. It became possible because I obtained an Ethiopian passport and, better still, a personal letter from Dedjaz Makonnen—one of the ministers of the exiled former Emperor Haile Selassie—which recommended me to all loyal Ethiopian chieftains and required them to receive me as a brother.

MOMBASA, Kenya colony.—For seventeen days we have been sailing southward from Marseilles. In this British port the immigration officer's face becomes stern when he reads "journalist" on my passport. After two hours of argument and waiting I am allowed to land.

NAIROBI, Kenya.—No trace of any Ethiopians here and I shall have to go up country alone. I buy an extraordinary old American car which runs splendidly until the radiator boils, and which doesn't seem to need any such luxury as a road to travel on. I have plenty of food and fuel and a native "boy" who is said to be able to cook in the bush.

TWELVE MILES FROM LODWAR, Kenya.—Can't drive any farther despite the extraordinary performance of the ancient American car. Must take to horses. They are saddled and our supplies are in their saddlebags. Ahead lies one of the most desolate and uncertain regions on the globe. But things are looking up, for I have just found, quite by accident, an excellent and faithful guide, Mohammed Hassan, who once served in the French colonials at Djibouti, but now is armed only with a spear.

IN THE MOUNTAINS.—We have been traveling for three days and haven't seen one drop of fresh water. We are surrounded by blistered black rock and parched sand.

THE SHORE OF LAKE RUDOLPH.—The horses carrying our last tins of water ran away this morning. No water all day, but tonight we catch sight of the black waters of Lake Rudolph. The "land of horror" is behind us.

Mohammed and I persuade three native fishermen to take us in their sailboat to the north of the lake. It's a 130 mile trip.

IN THE BUSH.—We have marched ten miles up a watercourse when suddenly twenty men in sketchy white clothes and armed with rifles rush out of an ambush and surround us. They are Gallas, Danakils, and Abyssinians. Their leader wears a white sun helmet and black cloak, indicating his rank.

Mohammed talks to them in the Galla language and they conduct us to their headquarters a mile away. There we find thirty more warriors and their chief, a big, clean shaven man, young and handsome. He asks me in flawless French:

"Are you really a Frenchman?"

When I tell him I am, he remarks:

"Then what on earth are you doing in this awful spot?"

I show him my letters and he gives me permission to accompany his detachment on its raids.

We spend a strange evening at the side of the fire, with lions roaring away in the bush while we talk about Paris and the Latin quarter, where my host once was a student.

ON THE BANKS OF THE GALANA RIVER.—At 11 o'clock this morning we hear the roar of airplanes. They are flying high, six Italian planes. I scramble after the Ethiopians up the mountainside. They know that the best thing to do is to climb a mountain when airplanes are about. We near the peak as the planes circle around looking for us. Then the high explosive bombs begin to fall. The aviators fly too high to aim well and the bombs fall a quarter of a mile away, partly in the valley, partly on the lower slopes of the mountain, about fifty in all. Nobody hurt. The planes leave. We descend and find four antelopes killed. That was just what we needed and we lunch well.

We resume our march along the watercourse and in the middle of the afternoon there are those six planes again. Once more we clamber up the mountain. This time the planes drop gas bombs and we find it wise not to get down into the valley but to go along on high ground where the heavier-than-air gas can't touch us.

An hour or so later we hear a terrific din coming up from the valley. We see a herd of twelve or fifteen huge elephants. They seem to have been driven mad by the gas. They sweep down the valley like a cyclone, destroying everything in their path, uprooting trees and trampling the vegetation flat. While the elephants scream, the French speaking chief mutters to me:

SOUTH OF BURJI.—This morning a small detachment leaves the camp to destroy crops in the region which the Italians are expected to try to seize. Later in the day a messenger arrives to say that another raiding party farther north has captured a gang of Italian road builders. The Ethiopian leader promised to liberate those who would agree to trample on the Italian flag and spit on it. Not one refused, my Ethiopian informer said.

THE BANKS OF THE ADEI.—We set out this morning to find a patrol of Italian Askaris [native troops] reported to be in the neighborhood. Tonight, by the light of a brilliant moon, we find them. They are all Danakils from southern Italian Eritrea, armed with rifles and knives like our men.

Our men fall upon them in a narrow gorge. For fifteen minutes I watch the battle. Not a shot is fired. These men prefer to fight with knives. There are about thirty on each side and they fight like tigers. It is a grim scene in this moonlit rocky gorge.

At the end of fifteen minutes all the Askaris are dead, as are two Ethiopians. Eight Ethiopians are badly wounded and not a single one of my party escaped without some scratch or other. My guide, Mohammed, took part in the battle, killing four men, according to his account. He sits down immediately after the battle to beat the little drum which he everlastingly carries with him. He composes a song of victory, in which he tells how brave he was and how valiant were all his companions.

NORTH OF LAKE STEFANI.—The Italian bombings are systematic and regular, and so are the raids of our men. The latter captured several herds of cattle which were being driven towards Mega as food for Italian troops, and diverted them to Ethiopian posts.

We learned of some remarkable acts of heroism among Ethiopians on other fronts. On several occasions old men and women voluntarily exposed themselves to Italian airplanes in order to leave the warriors free to maneuver.

BACKACHE MAY MEAN ALMOST ANYTHING.

PAIN in the back cannot be ascribed always to disorders in the sacro-iliac joints, the spinal column, or the pelvis. If discomfort persists a careful check of these structures should be made as, in many instances, some abnormality will be encountered. Again, postural defects—bad habits of standing or sitting, many of which are acquired in childhood—may be the source.

We cannot, however, overlook the rôle of the digestive tract, as it may be responsible for symptoms appearing in the back, across the hips, or a little above that level. All too often, without sufficient evidence, a diagnosis of arthritis, possibly due to the absorption of toxic products, is made. True enough, there may exist a chronic, obstinate constipation, the relief of which is followed by comfort, for we know that difficulty due to an overfilled lower bowel and rectum may be referred to the small of the back. Physicians now recognize that should any portion of the alimentary canal become dilated—crowded with residue or gas—the distention may produce soreness which is felt at the base of the spine.

The case is reported by C. M. Jones of a woman of 33 who complained of aching about the middle of the spinal column, which had persisted for three weeks. Because of indigestion, she had adopted the all too common habit of taking soda. As the pain in the stomach receded that in the back increased in severity. One curious coincidence, however, was noted, namely, that she felt better after a generous dose of milk of magnesia. X-ray films disclosed an ulcer in the duodenum, with an extensive ballooning of the small bowel. Except for the fact that the symptom was alleviated by a mild laxative, there was little else to suggest an investigation of the digestive tube.

A salesman 50 years of age had, for seven months, been mildly conscious of pain in the abdomen which traveled around the right side, localizing some eight to ten inches beneath the shoulder blades. Among other phenomena he observed that the sternum [breastbone] had been slightly tender for several years. He had not associated this, however, with any ailment. Examination of the spine elicited no pain, no motion, other than the fact that a spot of great tenderness was noted. Because of the possibility of gall bladder disease, X-ray films were made. Nothing was found in that organ but, much to the surprise of every one, a large ulcer three-quarters of an inch in diameter was seen on the posterior wall of the duodenum. With proper treatment the back pain disappeared entirely, the patient making an uneventful recovery.

A still older individual—a physician of 63—was admitted to the hospital with a diagnosis of intercostal neuralgia. He was suffering so intensely with pain between the shoulder blades, accompanied by nausea and the inability to sleep, that it was necessary to use morphine. No trouble could be traced to the nervous system, the heart, or the circulation. The vertebral column showed some arthritic changes, but otherwise was declared innocent. But again, strange to relate, careful study disclosed a duodenal ulcer.

•

The purpose in citing these illustrations is to emphasize anew that pain is a wanderer and that it is not always near the seat of the difficulty. Duodenal ulcers accounted for these three types of complaints, with all signs pointing to the back. We should remind ourselves also that pelvic disease in women frequently is the foundation not only of heavy, dragging sensations, but of knife-like twinges across the hips which may be described erroneously as rheumatism, lumbago, or arthritis.

IMPROVING HEALTH HELPS.

M G. writes:

1. What causes a twitching under the eye and is there anything that can be done for this?

2. Can a continuous headache on the same side of the head as the twitching under the eye be caused from nervousness?

REPLY.

1. Nervous tics are hard to cure. Keeping the physical and mental health up to par is about all that you can do. It is usually a fatigue phenomenon and will disappear with more rest and better nutrition.

2. Neuralgia-like head pains frequently are associated with tics.

PAIN AND SWELLING.

C. G. writes: What are the symptoms of rupture?

REPLY.

Pain and swelling are the usual accompaniments of any one of the many varieties of hernia [rupture]. The diagnosis can be made only after a careful physical examination.

•

NOT TOO MUCH.

T. P. writes: My 2½ year old daughter drinks 1 quart and 8 ounces of milk daily. Is this too much?

REPLY.

Not at all. Some children are particularly fond of this food and many need a generous amount.

SALES TAX.

Chicago, July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I have had shoes repaired a number of times since the sales tax went into effect but never had a cobbler charge a tax until the other day.

2. Is he collecting this legally or is it just a case of graft?

3. I see red every time I have to confront this tax and almost have hysterics when overcharged.

4. Is there any set schedule as to the amount to be charged on various amounts such as 1 cent up to 14 cents; 2 cents, 15 to 44 cents, or is the storekeeper allowed to set his own table of charges? J. H. S.

1. The department of finance originally ruled that the concern selling lether, etc., to the repairman was the retail dealer and hence was the one who must pay the occupation tax. Presumably such persons passed the tax on to the repairman and the repairman included it in his price to you, although it may not have been separately mentioned.

2. Judge Fisher recently held in a trial court case that the repairman is the retail dealer, and we understand that the department of finance is guiding itself by this decision. We do not see that it makes any difference to you whether the tax is added by the man with whom you deal or by his predecessor, since in either case it is passed on to you. The legal question is close, but we regard it as merely theoretical for your purposes.

3. We do not understand your psychology. Dealers from whom you are purchasing are adding other taxes to their selling prices on practically every transaction in which you engage. Why should you feel differently merely because it is mentioned in this case?

4. No, the tax rests on the retail dealer. The statute has nothing to do with the means by which he passes it on to his customers. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO MAKE A WILL.

Urbana, Ill., July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died several years ago leaving no will. I am an only child so I asked for no division of property, leaving it all with my mother as long as she lives. Now she thinks perhaps she should make a will.

1. Is it necessary? She doesn't want any one but me and my three children to have anything. There are two pieces of property, a small farm, some building and loan, etc. My mother lives in Indiana and all the property is in that state.

2. If she made a will could I be appointed administratrix without bond or does there have to be any administrator? My father has one brother in the same town with my mother.

3. Could he make any trouble for us?

4. What about inheritance tax? As I understand the Indiana law two-thirds of all this property is already mine and has been since my father's death. E. P.

1. No, in the sense that you would be her only heir; yes, in the sense that the will might save some expenses.

2. Indiana permits nonresidents to act.

3. We see no basis for such.

4. Depends on the total size of the estate. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY SALE.

South Bend, Ind., July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If I should sell 1 acre of a 5 acre tract of land what is the usual procedure?

1. After hiring a lawyer does he make up some sort of guarantee title for the 1 acre and add a page to my deed?

2. Do fees run high for this?

3. Do I have to pay anything at recorder's office?

4. Does the entire tract have to be surveyed? The property is in Indiana. H. W.

1. If you have an abstract it might be practicable to deliver to your purchaser a copy thereof made by the title company. If you have a guaranty policy you could obtain a policy covering the conveyed fraction at a small charge. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing how your title is now evidenced.

2. Depends on facts.

3. Conceivably you might obtain your copy of the abstract from the recorder. If your title is evidenced by Torrens certificate, then your dealings would be at that office.

4. Depends on the demands of your purchaser. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PATENTS.

Chicago, July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband died leaving a patent in the patent applied for stage. I informed lawyers handling patent I had no intention of proceeding to acquire patent rights.

1. Would this entitle the lawyers to cancel papers which were filed or to [2] dispose of patent by sale or otherwise?

3. Is there any way of protecting an idea which would improve an article already on the market while trying to sell that idea to the manufacturers? M. M. W.

1. Yes, in the sense that if the proceedings were abandoned they would in substance be a nullity.

2. No.

3. If your improvement constitutes invention you would be entitled to a patent upon it. This would place you in a position to prevent the holder of the previous patent from using your idea without meeting your terms, but it would not entitle you to use his device without meeting his terms. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—The "ten commandments" which Germans living in foreign lands are instructed to follow by the Nazi Organization for Germans Living Abroad have been issued in the official "schooling letter" to which most Germans must subscribe. They prescribe for the German "national comrade" the course which Adolf Hitler's government expects him to follow while he is a "guest in a foreign land." The commandments follow:

1. Obey the laws of the country in which you are a guest.

2. Leave the politics of your host country to its inhabitants. The internal politics of a foreign country are no business of yours. Take no part in them, even in conversation.

3. Proclaim yourself always and everywhere as a party [Nazi] member.

4. Speak and act in such a manner that you may do honor to the Nazi movement and the new Germany. Be diligent, honest, fearless, and loyal.

5. See in every German abroad your national comrade, a man of your blood, character, and kind. Give him your hand without regard for his social standing. We are all "workers" of our nation.

6. Help your German comrades from the heart and without being asked if they are in trouble through no fault of their own.

7. Be not only a member of our movement but a fighter in the foremost ranks. Inform yourself exactly of the character, goal, and essence of our movement.

8. Campaign and fight day after day to induce every honest German to join our movement. Convince him of the superiority and righteousness of our movement and of the necessity for our victory, so that Germany may continue to live. Fight with spiritual weapons.

9. Read our party organ, our periodicals, and our books.

10. Join the party members in your town. If there is a district group, be a disciplined and active member. Not only must you avoid quarrels but try with all your powers to smooth out impending conflicts.

OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM.

Chicago, July 5.—"Oh say can you sing from the start to the end what so proudly you stand for when orchestras play it?"

If you can you're one of a small minority, for the painful truth is that much less than a fourth of the American people can even sing one verse. Here is an example of the embarrassment this situation did bring on our country. If you're a true American you will turn deep strawberry red when you read this:

An American glee club touring Canada was asked to perform at a banquet honoring British government officials. After an explosive rendering of "God Save the King," during which they were joined by the reverent Britishers, the master of ceremonies requested the American singers to sing them a verse of their own beautiful national anthem, whereupon the band blazed forth the "Star Spangled Banner."

The first two lines were sung with sufficient gusto but then the singers began to fall by the way. When they reached "through the perilous fight" only 50 per cent were still going strong, the other fifty supplying a phrase now and then. By the time they reached the "land of the free and the home of the brave" I am told authentically that only two of them survived, and I am afraid that the glee club's knowledge of the song is just about proportional to that of the American people as a whole.

There isn't a French child of school age who cannot shout out the thunderous "Marseillaise" in its entirety. Italians are taught the "Royal March" along with the Lord's prayer, and a British subject would as soon thumb his nose at John Bull in person as to stand closed mouthed while "God Save the King" was being sung.

But what about our own glorious theme song? If the majority of us were made to realize what a ridiculous position we are placing our country in by our negligence, we would learn it out of sheer self-respect. MILDRED LUTON.

GOSPEL OF GOOD CHEER.

Chicago, July 2.—During the last two weeks, for the first time in the last year, the country seems definitly on the road to recovery; stocks are rising at a cheerful pace, the psychology of fear that has enveloped the nation seems to be lifting, factory outputs are rising, car loadings increasing, and, all in all, we are going out of the depression for good.

However, to a person reading only THE TRIBUNE it would appear that we are worse off than any time since '33, when the G. O. P. retired from politics. Every other paper in the city has spread the cheer of approaching better times across their papers, but not THE TRIBUNE, concerned in the fall elections, and its hope of destroying the Democratic party.

How about forgetting whether we're Democrats or Republicans and spreading a little cheer in order to restore confidence and thereby bring about better times? After all, we're all Americans and we all hope for the day when we won't have to worry about the dole and the unemployed, so let's help America first. WILLIAM KAHL JR.

PARKING AT WOLF LAKE.

Chicago, July 3.—For the last three years the writer has a few times enjoyed the park at Wolf lake in Indiana, opposite the soap factory. What a surprise to be told that you cannot park your car inside the park without paying a fee.

The Chicago park district ought to nab every Indiana licensed car caught using our park drives or parking in any of our public parks and assess them 50 cents or $1 for the privilege. Next thing they'll do is to put a nickel slot on all drinking fountains in Hammond. Why not? E. J. G.

THE HORSE ALSO GETS THIRSTY.

Melrose Park, Ill., July 4.—With the arrival of hot weather and watering troughs miles apart it looks like another dry summer for the horses. While we still employ them every day for various types of hauling it would be only humane to remember they get thirsty as well as ourselves.

Filling stations on every corner and taverns three in a block: Let's squeeze in a few modern drinking fountains for the noble and loyal beast. Give the WPA more work to do. KAY WILSON.

EVEN SO, HE'S LATE.

Chicago, July 6.—Some of your readers would appreciate [especially me] if you would print the places of employment of those whose names you print in the obituary column, for I guess that is the only way a person looking for a job can get one—when somebody dies. I have tried about every other means of looking for a job; even tried for a PWA and others, and me being an ex-soldier too. It looks as if it will take an act of congress to get on the WPA.

I have run down some of the clews I read in the papers where some unfortunate was killed, only to find I was a couple of days late. AN EX-SOLDIER.

THE WPA IN UTAH.

Midvale, Utah, July 2.—Workers' Alliance of Utah, Local No. 5, has adopted resolutions in reply to criticisms which Heber J. Grant, president of the Mormon church, recently uttered in an interview in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The Workers' Alliance resolutions say in part:

"We are opposed to slanderous statements made by Mr. Grant against the Works Progress administration, and against those employed on WPA.

"Such statements are made with the intent of creating in the minds of millions of people of the United States, and thousands of people of Utah, that the spirit of laziness and indigence, and the idea of leaning on the government, is the prevailing factor among WPA workers.

"We are opposed to the statement that the government handouts and the luxury of receiving something for nothing [but laziness] is in any way to be blamed for the failure of the church security plan of the Mormon church.

"Mr. Grant criticizes a government which has assumed the responsibility of caring for millions of people who have been thrown out of employment through no fault of their own, but by several reasons which Mr. Grant fully understands and for which he needs no explanation.

"Mr. Grant knows well that the organization for which he speaks, the Mormon church, is not in a position to assume such an obligation and care for the people of this state in as good a manner as the federal government.

"Mr. Grant should make an about face regarding the WPA and the WPA workers, as a great many of these workers are members of the Mormon church and faithful believers in the Mormon doctrin." GEORGE RIST,
Secretary, Workers' Alliance of Utah, Local No. 5.

RELIGION IN NEGRO LIFE.

Chicago, July 4.—That religion is an important constituent in the life of the American Negro is evidenced by a trip through part of South State street. In my occasional street car rides in this thoroughfare between 55th and 30th streets I have run across a great many churches and missions—usually located in vacant stores—bearing colorful names and no doubt playing a part in the lives of our colored folk.

A few of the names painted—usually with an obvious amateur brush—on the erstwhile grocery, shoe, or millinery stores which they occupy, read: Israel of God, Bethany Mission, Mount Calvary Mission, Church of God in Christ, Glad Tidings Mission, Peter's Rock, Missionary Baptist Church, Zion Hill, Church of God, Zion Baptist No. 1 Mission, Light House Mission, Greater Shiloh, Mount Calvary Community Church, Apostolic Mission, Aryan Free Gospel, St. Elizabeth Mission, South West Baptist, New Tabernacle, Old Time Revival, and others. PERCY GRAHAM.

HAY FEVER IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Chicago, July 5.—I hope every sufferer of hay fever and asthma remembers not to vote for Mayor Kelly and any other official now in office who might have the power to order all vacant lots cleared of ragweed.

I certainly get a thrill out of seeing numerous trucks with "Mosquito Abatement" painted on the side. Why not some ragweed abatement?

Mayor Kelly would do more good if he spent his contingent fund for mowing vacant lots instead of visiting other cities "to investigate the traction problem."

Every alderman of every ward has the power to order these lots cleared, and I hope every one of us who have to be in exile from August till frost on account of the weeds will not forget at election time. IRIS M. HOLMES.

COUNCIL SHIES AT WALLBOARD IN BUILDING CODE

Fabricators Deny Charge of "Paper Houses."

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

About twenty years ago the building materials industry began to produce a wide variety of new materials broadly classified as wallboard and insulation board.

Inspection of the chapters of the new Chicago building code already passed or awaiting passage next week by the city council showed yesterday that the aldermen were far less liberal in permitting use of these new materials than was the commission of experts appointed by Mayor Kelly to draft the new code. The building code sub-committee headed by Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] was most active in outlawing wallboard.

Allow Cheaper Construction.

In general, use of these sheet materials permits cheaper construction, sometimes in the cost of the material itself, and usually in its application. Less labor is required to fasten sheet materials than to nail lumber or to plaster walls.

There are many varieties of wallboards. They are made of fiber, wood, cane or cornstalks, cork, asbestos, gypsum, and many minerals. Makers of the thicker varieties, used for insulating, object to use of the name wallboard for their products, preferring the term insulation board.

As drafted by the mayor's commission, the new code permitted the use of wallboard or insulation board not less than half an inch thick as sheathing for frame construction buildings, including frame dwellings. Sheathing is the inside covering of a building, fastened to the studding. It is covered in turn by a weather resisting layer, such as clapboards or stucco.

Decry Paper Houses."

Both Ald. McDermott and Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] delivered outbursts against "paper houses" when this provision was before the subcommittee. The provision was eliminated. The insulation board makers assert that the epithets were unjustified. Insulation board, they contend, has sufficient structural strength for use as sheathing, which does not bear any structural load in the building.

They do not claim a direct saving on such construction, but instead a more satisfactory building. Insulation board of the type required by the experts' code draft costs more than wood sheathing. But lower cost of application makes the total cost about equal to wood, the Insulation Board institute asserts. The institute says, however, that a small home sheathed with insulation board will save about three tons of coal on its yearly heating requirement, compared with the same type of house sheathed with wood.

As it was passed, the code permits use of certain non-fireproof materials in fireproof and semi-fireproof buildings. Among these exceptions is wall and ceiling paneling. In revision of this section, the code sub-committee outlawed wallboard, by narrowing the permission to wood cabinet work for wall and ceiling panels.

Wallboard Trim Outlawed.

Members of the experts' committee said that it was never intended that wallboard should be used in this respect. Wallboard makers and Deputy Building Commissioner Robert Knight interpreted the section as permitting wallboard, and the amendment was made at the suggestion of Knight. Wood panels are more expensive than lath and plaster, for which the code permits them to be substituted, but wallboard is cheaper.

Whether wallboard is to be permitted for interior partitions in frame dwellings and other non-fireproof structures depends on the interpretation of the code by the building department.

Hollywood, Cal., July 9.—[Special.]—Thousands of motion picture fans turned out last night for the première of "Marie Antoinette" in which Norma Shearer returns to the screen after an absence of two years. Attending the show at the Cathay Circle theater with Miss Shearer was Tyrone Power, her leading man.

PRINCE BERTIL AT OUTING WITH 7 SOCIETY BELLES

Newport, R. I., July 9.—[U. P.]—Prince Bertil, bachelor son of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, picnicked on exclusive Bailey's beach today with four blondes, two brunets, and a redhead, the pick of Newport society.

All but one were unmarried heiresses. The sole matron was pretty red haired Mrs. John Jacob Astor III.

Others in the party were Lesley Bogert, Adelaide Whitehouse, and Le Brun Rhinelander, all blondes, and brunet Aeriele Frazer and Virginia French, sister of Mrs. Astor.

SWEDISH ENVOYS IN CITY; CROWN PRINCE ON WAY

Three former cabinet members of Sweden came to Chicago from Washington yesterday to await the arrival here of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf and Princess Louise on the latter's American visit. They are Gen. Joakin Akerman, former minister of defense; Gov. Bernard Ericksson of Falun, former minister of social affairs, and Bo von Stockenstrom, former minister of agriculture. The three were the official delegates of Sweden to the recent Swedish tercentenary in Delaware and are making an informal tour of America. The prince and princess will arrive here Thursday to spend several days.

OFFICIAL DENIES WPA DISTRIBUTED ADS FOR BARKLEY

Howard O. Hunter, assistant administrator of the Works Progress administration, denied in Chicago yesterday that paper bags bearing a political advertisement for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky are being used in distributing food to Kentucky relief clients. Hunter said an investigation showed that the only place in the state the bags were distributed was London, Ky. They were distributed by a private merchant whose store is across the street from a WPA commodity depot, he said.

LILTING MELODIES OF CZECHS THRILL AUDIENCE IN PARK

Sokol Entertainers Join Musical Tribute.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Last night's concert at Grant park was dedicated in an especial manner to Chicagoans of Czechoslovakian extraction. The singing society and the dance group of the Central District sokol, a branch of the great Czech organization which is now holding its convention in Prague, came to the lake front band shell opposite 11th street to provide a special feature for the program of the Cavallo Symphonic band.

This feature consisted of a miniature Czechoslovakian sequence which went from the marching song, "Isla Marina" to the choruses and dances of the widely liked nationalist opera, Smetana's "The Bartered Bride."

Dancers in Colorful Garb.

Massed behind the band was the singing society, all in white. The dancers were gay in the bright colors of the ancestral homeland.

The intoxicating music of "The Bartered Bride," performed with a wonderful lilt, aroused the enthusiasm of a huge audience. There were plaudits aplenty for the dancers, whose principals were Blanche Masek and Joseph Regner. Peter A. Cavallo Jr. directed this portion of the program.

Play William Tell Overture.

A variety of music other than that of Czechoslovakian origin found a place on the program. Peter A. Cavallo Sr. directed his band in the Rossini "William Tell" overture and in his own arrangement of excerpts from "Aïda." The group was admirably mellow of tone, but with enough of the grandiose in its delivery to give to the "Aïda" numbers the air of importance which they deserve.

Another feature was the presentation by Messrs. Manna and Crisafulli, trumpeter and trombonist of the band, of the Berceuse from "Jocelyn" and the Italian song "O Sole Mio."

Several prominent Czechoslovakians of Chicago, among them Sherif John Toman, were introduced.

200 SINGERS WILL GIVE 2D VESPER CONCERTS TODAY

The second of a series of free Sunday vesper choral concerts in five Cook county forest preserves fringing the city will be held this afternoon beginning at 4 p. m. More than 200 singers, members of well known Chicago choruses, will take part in varied programs.

The concerts are sponsored by the Cook county commissioners and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. In the event of bad weather requiring any change in plans, announcements will be broadcast over W-G-N beginning at 11 o'clock today.

Informality is the keynote of the "sings," and audiences will join in some popular numbers.

A map showing the best available motor routes to the preserves, together with driving directions and other available transportation, appear in the Metropolitan section of today's TRIBUNE.

Construction has started on six public comfort stations in the vicinity of the Grant park bandshell, Park district engineers reported yesterday.

Miss Elizabeth Eckert, chief clerk in Chicago internal revenue office, forty years in service of government.

After eighteen years in the office of the collector of internal revenue, Miss Elizabeth Eckert, chief clerk of the Chicago division, has come to think nothing at all of figures. When she celebrated her birthday last week, she barely observed that she was 68 years old.

Miss Eckert, being boss of 347 men and women, was too busy to be impressed by her own age.

Miss Eckert, who lives alone at 1400 Lake Shore drive, is the happy personification of that vague species—a career woman. Since her start in government service 40 years ago her salary has multiplied nine times. She climbed from a minor clerkship in the navy department in Washington to a better position in the postoffice department. She left it to take a post in the emergency fleet corporation during the war, and finally came to Chicago, to become the first and only woman chief clerk in the internal revenue service.

Last year $412,860,995.36 passed through Miss Eckert's division. This included one of the largest, if not the largest income tax collections in history.

NEW DIRECTORY OF PROTESTANT CHURCHES READY

Clears Lutheran Status; Cites Religious Gains.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago's new Protestant church directory will be out tomorrow. It will be distributed among 1,060 churches of twenty denominations. Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation, says the directory is the only city directory printed regularly in the United States.

The book this year clears up the layman's confusion concerning the many different kinds of Lutheran churches and synods. In the lists of churches and pastors of the various denominations, Lutheran churches are classified in three groups of coöperating synods. These divisions are known as the American Lutheran conference, the Synodical conference, of which the synod of Missouri, Wisconsin, and other states is Chicago's representative, and the United Lutheran church.

Million and a Half Each.

The three groups, nationally, are of about equal size, with approximately a million and a half members each. The American Lutheran conference is represented in Chicago by the American Lutheran church, which is now in merger conversations with the Missouri synod of the Synodical conference; the Augustana synod, the Danish Lutheran church, the Norwegian Lutheran church, and the United Danish Lutheran church. The third branch, the United Lutheran church, like the Missouri synod, stands alone in Chicago.

Expansion of the activities of the Chicago Church federation during 1937-'38 is disclosed in the development of a department of social service with Frank D. Finley as full time executive secretary, and in the appointment of the Rev. H. H. Kalas as field secretary for the federation. The Rev. Mr. Kalas, an Evangelical pastor, will assist in the coördination of the work of all coöperating denominations.

Another new feature of the 1938 book is a survey of religious work on the university and college campuses of the city and suburbs. The directory gives the names and addresses of denominational and interdenominational leaders on all campuses where religious work is maintained.

50,000 Collegians Enrolled.

The Rev. Charles W. Kegley of the Lutheran student council of Chicagoland, who prepared the campus religion report, stated that Chicago has 50,000 college, university, and institute students enrolled in 138 institutions. He said the campus religious work was greatly expanded during the last year.

Pastors and other persons of benevolent inclinations are protected by the directory against doubtful rescue missions and the rapidly passing petty rescue mission racket. A full list of investigated and approved welfare institutions of all kinds is included in the book.

Elevator Man Is Hurt When His Car Falls at Hospital

Paul Spagnola, 1826 Washburne avenue, was seriously injured yesterday when an elevator in the County Psychopathic hospital fell from the third floor to the basement. Spagnola is employed as an elevator operator in the hospital.

HE BRINGS BOSS'S WHISKY, BUT BOSS DOESN'T DRINK

The colored man who called yesterday at the Dennison Manufacturing company store at 62 East Randolph street wore a porter's coat and cap and looked authentic to Miss Frances Paisley. She is secretary to the manager, A. B. Rich.

"I've come with Mr. Rich's whisky," said the man, "and it's out on the freight elevator. But I have to have $8.25 for it."

Miss Paisley paid the money. Then she waited. The liquor wasn't brought in. After a little while she reached a conclusion and called the police.

"The thing that convinced me I was defrauded," she told Policemen Art Essert and Edward Spiegel, "is that Mr. Rich doesn't drink."

GUNMEN ROB GARAGE OF CAR.

Three gunmen stole an automobile from the Harland garage, 2356 North Clark street, last night after menacing Stephen Salay, the garage owner, and an employé.

R. S. Loewenstein to Wed Miss Hattie Belle Ehrich

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome B. Ehrich of 5032 Woodlawn avenue announce the engagement of their daughter Hattie Belle to Robert Starr Loewenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Loewenstein of the Chicago Beach hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Ehrich will give a reception for their daughter and Mr. Loewenstein the evening of July 17 in the ballroom of the Chicago Beach hotel.

SYPHILIS

Those who suffer from syphilis and gonorrhea need not divulge the fact to their friends, business associates or employers, if they do not wish to do so.

Competent medical care for these diseases is available here at a United Medical Service, where many different kinds of ailments are diagnosed and treated. No one but the attending physicians know the nature of any ailment under treatment. As a result, fear of discovery, subsequent embarrassment or loss of position is practically eliminated. In addition to these advantages you have the assurance that your condition will be in capable and experienced hands.

A United Medical Service is operated by Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz and medical associates. It was Dr. Berkowitz who originated and put into operation the first low cost medical effort to control the spread of venereal disease. Among the physicians who comprise the staff of a United Medical Service are men who were associated with him in that original effort. Their years of training and experience in this highly specialized field of medicine are available to you at fees which are perhaps the lowest ever offered to the public.

These low fees were established to make it possible for patients to continue treatment long enough to effect a cure. It is our contribution to the fight that is now being waged by city, state and national health agencies against these diseases.

Early diagnosis and proper treatment are of the utmost importance if one wishes to escape the dreadful consequences of an undiscovered and untreated venereal disease. For notwithstanding present activities there are still almost 7,000,000 persons in this country who have syphilis—over 500,000 new cases sought medical care last year and 60,000 babies are born with it every year.

Make sure! Be examined, and if you find you are infected, start treatment immediately—before irreparable damage is done. Syphilis can be cured!

PROTEST PLANS TO HOLD GERMAN FOLK FESTIVAL

Objectors Assert Leaders Foster Race Hatred.

Fritz Kuhn.

Protests poured in on the management of Riverview park yesterday following announcement of plans for the German folk festival to be held in the park next Sunday by the Chicago branch of the German-American bund.

The protests pointed out that scheduled speakers for the festival are Fritz Kuhn of New York, national leader of the bund, and George Froboese of Milwaukee, regional leader. These men, the objectors said, are engaged in fostering racial hatred and activities subversive to the government of the United States.

A fortnight ago Kuhn, testifying in New York before a legislative committee investigating alleged Nazi activities, asserted that communists and all Jews are enemies of the United States.

League for Culture Protests.

One of the protests came from the German-American League for Culture, an organization which aims to counteract the Nazi movement in America. Protests also were reported made by the American Jewish congress and the B'Nai Brith organization. Park officials said they had referred the objections to the department of justice and had been told to go ahead with their agreement to make the park available for the festival.

This will be Kuhn's first appearance in Chicago since Peter Gissibl resigned as leader of the Chicago chapter of the bund, reputedly on telegraphic orders from Kuhn. On June 3 Gissibl was replaced by Otto Willumheit, an industrial chemist. The Chicago bund headquarters is at 3855 North Western avenue

Gissibl, prior to being eased out of the organization, had made the arrangements for the festival in company with Albert Kolb, publisher and an associate editor of the German Weckruf [Clarion], weekly newspaper of the bund.

Brother of Storm Troop Leader.

Peter Gissibl is a brother of Fritz Gissibl, who faced a congressional investigation five years ago, and thereupon fled to Germany where he is now reported holding a high command in Hitler's Storm Troop organization. Peter Gissibl last winter made a visit to Germany. Addressing Nazis in Stuttgart he expressed the hope that an American Hitler might arise in the United States and lead the movement against what he called "the Jewish pest."

On his return Gissibl is reported to have admitted to friends that there was friction between Kuhn and himself over his activities. And it was reported that he proposed to take this matter up in secret discussion with high German officials in Berlin.

Gissibl's resignation was interpreted in some quarters as a move on the part of the bund's high command to present a clean front on the eve of the investigation of Nazi, Fascist, and communistic movements in America, by sacrificing persons too closely identified with Hitler and his henchmen.

PWA ALLOCATES 4 MILLION FUND FOR SCOTT FIELD

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—The Public Works administration today announced allocation of $4,403,400 for construction of barracks and other buildings at Scott field, Ill.

The war department, announcing last week, plans to transfer the general headquarters air force from Langley field, Va., to Scott field, said it had recommended PWA allocations totaling $5,500,000 for construction at the Illinois post.

The PWA said the $4,403,400 allotment would build barracks for 330 men, commissioned officers' quarters accommodating 27 officers, field officers' quarters accommodating 35 officers, bachelor officers' mess for 10 officers, quarters for 32 noncommissioned officers, headquarters and operations buildings, heating plant, sewage, electrical distribution, and water supply systems, warehouses, hospital, post exchange, miscellaneous buildings, hangar, runways, grading, and drainage.

The allotment included $120,000 for the purchase of land.

Inscriptions Tell Story of 5,000 Years Ago.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 9.—(AP)—A city of 20,000 dead and a richly ornamented funeral causeway have been unearthed from the dust of fifty centuries at Sakkara.

The discoverer, Selim Bey Hassan, said today at least 20,000 mummies lie in the necropolis beneath the causeway, which connected a valley temple with the funeral chapel of Unas, last king of the fifth dynasty.

The necropolis antedates the causeway—or walled passage—by about 300 years, but Selim said he found evidence it was used long after the causeway was built.

Discovery of the latter was termed a find of highest importance because inscriptions on the walls answered the puzzling question of where ancient Egyptians cut and dressed granite used for statues and temples.

These inscriptions told the story of a technical school beside the quarries of Asswan where men learned how to cut the stone, which was shipped northward by way of the Nile.

Blue Painted Ceiling.

The causeway is a passage 700 yards long and 7 feet wide. The side walls, 9 feet high, were covered with the largest known collection of old kingdom inscriptions and scenes.

Ceiled with blue painted stone to represent the sky, the passage was covered with large limestone blocks, with a central slit running its whole length to admit light and air. Walls and floor were of white Tura limestone.

Scenes depicted included the transport by boat of red granite columns and capitals from Asswan to the Pyramid of Unas, wrestling between Egyptians and Bedouins, and transport by boat of Asiatic prisoners. King Unas, who reigned over Egypt 5,000 years ago, was shown in company with a multitude of gods, preceded by bearers of offerings. Other scenes showed work in the fields.

Ancient History in Pictures.

Marketing scenes depicted trading by barter, men beating gold leaf, and the casting of metal, polishing of gold and stone utensils, and weighing of goods in fine scales.

Discovery of the route from the chapel led to the finding of the valley temple itself. More than three ley temple itself.

The cemetery was cut from solid rock and covered several acres. It was traversed by long galleries, from which passages led to funeral chambers and storerooms. Along with the thousands of mummies were found pottery vases and fragments of alabaster vases.

Mayor to Speak

With the powerful Lindbergh beacon spotlighting Chicago's shoreline landmarks, the drama of the city's waterfront will be broadcast at 10 o'clock tonight. The radio program will climax the Navigation day celebration.

Mayor Kelly, city officials, and maritime experts, cruising offshore in the coast guard cutter Rush, will outline the history and importance of the city's lake improvements. Their addresses, which motorists may pick up over station WCFL, will be broadcast to crowds on beaches and in the parks by a series of loudspeakers installed by the park district.

The beacon first will illuminate the Montrose-Wilson beach and then flash south to Jackson park beach. After lighting up the waterworks cribs in the lake, navy pier, and the outer drive, it will focus last on Chicago's southernmost objective, Calumet harbor.

MOTHER, 88, DIES FOUR DAYS AFTER HORLICK HEIRESS

Widow of Firm's Founder Ill Two Years.

Racine, Wis., July 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Arabella Horlick, mother of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, whose death Wednesday in Toronto, Ont., was the subject of an investigation, died in her home here this morning. Mrs. Horlick, who had been in frail health since the death two years ago of her husband, William, founder of the Horlick Malted Milk company, was 88 years old yesterday.

Mrs. William Horlick.

Mrs. Horlick's death caused postponement of the funeral for Mrs. Sidley, which had been arranged for this afternoon. Mother and daughter will be buried Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Seldom seen in public, Mrs. Horlick took little part in public affairs of Racine, although she gave generously of her fortune for the support of civic projects and to charities. She traveled extensively until her health became impaired after the death of her husband.

Under Constant Care.

In the last two weeks she was attended constantly by her physician, and the death of her daughter, who was 61 years old, may have been a contributing factor in her death.

Mrs. Horlick's two surviving sons, Alexander J. and William, were with Dr. Eric von Budderbroch at her side when she died. Mrs. Horlick's second daughter, Alice, died in childhood.

Mrs. Horlick was born in Racine July 8, 1850, the daughter of Joseph A. Horlick, a farmer [no relation to William Horlick], who came to the United States from England in 1869. She and her husband were married Nov. 16, 1870, and lived in Chicago until 1875, when Horlick moved to Racine to start the malted milk business.

14 Million Fortune Built.

In the early years the business was conducted in their home. At first it was used principally as a food for infants and invalids and later became the nationally popular milk drink that built up a fortune of 14 million dollars for the founder.

Mrs. Horlick inherited 1 million dollars and the family home adjoining the milk plant from her husband. The remainder of the estate was divided among their sons and daughter, who were named trustees of the estate. In addition to her inherited million, Mrs. Horlick was believed to have built a considerable fortune on her own account.

Three grandchildren will share the estate of Mrs. Horlick with her sons. The grandchildren are William Sidley, only son of Mabelle, and Helen Horlick Bond and Jeannette Horlick Simmons Bowles, daughter of Alexander Horlick. William Horlick Jr. is a bachelor.

Search Made for Will.

It was learned today that a search is being made for Mrs. Sidley's will. Alexander Horlick said his sister drew a will soon after her father's death, when she inherited several million dollars from his estate. Bernard F. Magruder, her legal adviser, said the will probably would be found soon.

Advised of reports from Toronto that a will had been found there and was being forwarded to him by a firm of Toronto solicitors, Magruder said he believed this was the original will. He said he doubted reports that Mrs. Sidley had made a later will. Mrs. Sidley's legal residence was Racine, he said, and that was why the will was being forwarded. Had Mrs. Sidley made a recent will, he said, he believed he would have been notified at once by the Toronto lawyers, with whom he was acquainted.

Investigation of the death of Mrs. Sidley in the Toronto home of W. Perkins Bull, where she had been ill for more than a year, was ordered by G. D. Conant, attorney general of Ontario, who said the inquiry was necessary because Mrs. Sidley was an American citizen and because an estate of several million dollars was involved.

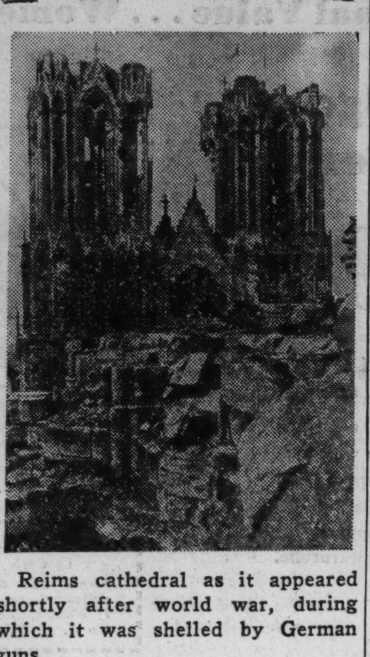
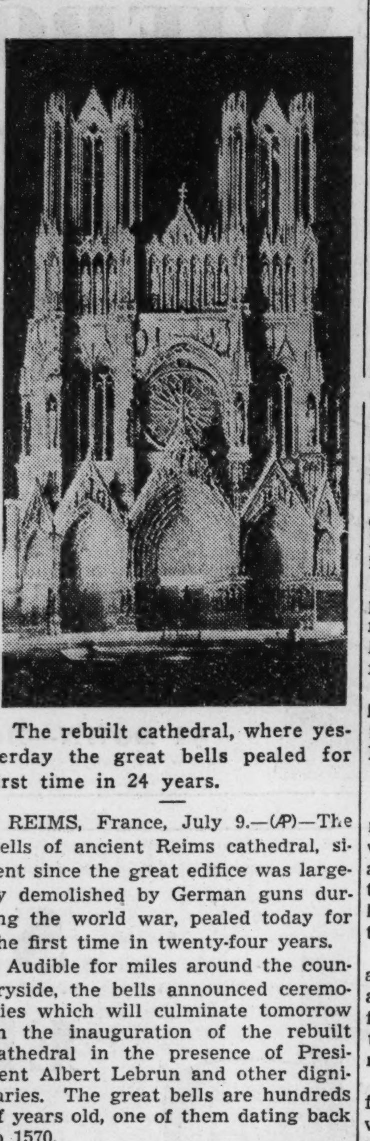
Bells Peal Again



Reims cathedral as it appeared shortly after world war, during which it was shelled by German guns.



The rebuilt cathedral, where yesterday the great bells pealed for first time in 24 years.

REIMS, France, July 9.—(AP)—The bells of ancient Reims cathedral, silent since the great edifice was largely demolished by German guns during the world war, pealed today for the first time in twenty-four years.

Audible for miles around the countryside, the bells announced ceremonies which will culminate tomorrow in the inauguration of the rebuilt cathedral in the presence of President Albert Lebrun and other dignitaries. The great bells are hundreds of years old, one of them dating back to 1570.

About 100,000 visitors are expected in Reims tomorrow for the event, made possible through donations by the late John D. Rockefeller.

CITIZENS OF ZION SEEM TO PREFER THEIR OLD BANS

Zion citizens can get along without oysters. They're not so anxious to have pork and tobacco.

Anyway, they're in no hurry to exchange their 1,100 year leases on their property for deeds, it was discovered yesterday.

The leases, which banned oysters, pork, tobacco, liquor, dance halls, and theaters, were issued by the late John Alexander Dowie, founder of the Zion religious colony, and Wilbur Glenn Voliva, his successor. Plans for trading the leases for deeds without the ban went into effect Monday.

But only fifteen of the 2,000 lease holders have taken any action to get their deeds.

CARDOZO DIES AFTER 7 MONTH HEART ILLNESS

Supreme Court Justice Succumbs at 68.

U. S. Justice Dead

Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, who died late yesterday at Port Chester, N. Y., after an illness of seven months.

appointed to the state's Court of Appeals [the highest court in New York] and remained on that bench until he was appointed to the United States Supreme court by President Hoover on Feb. 15, 1932.

The appointment was not made without some misgivings on the part of Mr. Hoover. In the first place Cardozo was a New Yorker and there were two New Yorkers already on the bench—Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Stone. Further, he was a Jew and a Democrat.

The growl from Senator William E. Borah: "Cardozo belongs to Idaho as much as to New York," silenced the residence issue. Another growl: "The way to deal with anti-Semitism is not to yield to it," silenced the race issue. A unanimous confirmation by the senate settled the political issue.

High Praise from Stone.

Justice Stone, a member of Hoover's medicine ball cabinet, told Hoover that he gladly would resign if his presence on the bench stood in the way of Cardozo's appointment. This was a high testimonial to Cardozo's modest scholarship, reports of which spread over the country without effort on his part.

Mr. Justice Cardozo took the place of the venerated Oliver Wendell Holmes. And it was not altogether improper that he should fill the seat. Like Holmes, he was a scholar and philosopher. To verify this in small measure it can be reported that he, like Holmes, read Latin and Greek for pleasure.

On the bench of the Supreme court he cast his lot with the liberal minority and again filled the shoes of Holmes.

In court the justice, with his unruly wispy white hair and pale face, was a striking figure. He seldom asked a question, but when he did the question usually led to a point a lawyer was attempting to conceal or to one that had been overlooked.

Off the bench Cardozo was almost a recluse. He was not a worldly man and those about him shielded him from the seamier side of life with the fierce jealousy that surrounds a novice in a nunnery.

The story is often repeated of a foray conducted by his secretaries, which brought the justice to a play which jested about the sacredness of love and marriage. The justice's ideals had been kept to Victorian vintages.

When the party returned, somewhat abashed and no end dispirited because the evening had not been a success, it was met at the door by the justice's faithful housekeeper, who challenged in clarion tones.

"Do you think that was a proper play for our judge to see?"

Finds Relaxation in Study.

From thence forward the justice continued to find his relaxation in law and study. He knew nothing of ordinary American diversions though for a time he had tried golf—again yielding to importunings of friends—but he gave up the game without any regrets.

Cardozo was slight of build, but held himself up to his full height even on the bench. He was always faultlessly groomed. His voice—the voice which gave his opinion—was a bit high pitched and eager.

In law he leaned to the theory that laws are made for men and human rights govern their interpretation. He frequently regretted that law is not an exact science such as mathematics. In the performance of his duty he sought to objectify in law not his own aspirations, convictions, and philosophies, but those of the men and women of his time.

Called Great Judge, Great Man.

Years before he was seated on the highest court of the land he was described at a dinner in his honor in the words:

"A man who not only in New York, but throughout the United States is recognized as a great judge and a great man, one who with a full and accurate knowledge of the law combines a profound understanding of philosophy and of the subtle forces which shape human history, one to whom the law is not a musty collection of rules and forms and precedents, but the instrumentality of justice, the highest expression of man's striving after righteousness."

The words were spoken by Judge John J. Parker of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, who was denied a seat on the Supreme court by the senate. They might well be Mr. Justice Cardozo's epitaph.

TWO MEN QUIT COLORADO RIVER CANYON PARTY

Lee's Ferry, Ariz., July 9.—(AP)—Departure of the Nevills expedition on the second leg of a voyage down the Colorado river to Boulder dam in Nevada was postponed today when two members quit. There are two women in the party.

Don Harris of Soda Springs, Idaho, United States geological survey employé, said he had been transferred from Mexican Hat, Utah, to Salt Lake City, necessitating an immediate return to work. Eugene Atkinson, University of Michigan geologist, said he believed the trip thus far had served its purpose—botanical study—and announced he was leaving to do research work in Texas.

Norman D. Nevills of Mexican Hat, the leader, said Harris and Atkinson would be replaced by Del Reid of Mexican Hat and Jack Stockstell of Hutchinson, Kas., for the remaining 300-odd miles. Departure was tentatively set for July 12 or 14.

Survey Shows Occupancy in Chicago Loop Office Buildings Is Highest Since 1931

MICHIGAN AVE. HAS THE FEWEST VACANT OFFICES

Loop Buildings Are Now 78.81% Rented.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Occupancy of Chicago office buildings is the highest since 1931 and is only 7.19 per cent below that of 1928. According to a survey made by the Building Managers Association of Chicago, of which Graham Aldis is president, recently submitted to the National Association of Building Managers and used by that organization in a country-wide survey, loop office buildings on May 1, 1938, were 78.81 per cent rented. This compares with 78.01 per cent occupancy on Oct. 1, 1937, and with 76.54 per cent on May 1, 1937. The low point in recent years was on May 1, 1934, when occupancy dropped to 70.40 per cent.

Show Occupancy Ratios.

The Chicago study of downtown conditions included 158 office buildings, with a total rentable area of 26,934,279 square feet. Of this amount 21,228,021 square feet were occupied on May 1 of this year, a ratio of 78.81 per cent, as compared with 78.01 per cent on Oct. 1, 1937, and 76.54 on May 1, 1937.

The following table of occupancy ratios shows how the office building situation in Chicago has been steadily improving since May 1, 1934. The figures shown are as of May 1 of each year:

1937	76.54
1936	73.50
1935	71.09
1934	70.40
1933	72.20
1932	77.40
1931	80.79
1930	82.33
1929	83.30
1928	86.00

The highest occupancy in the central business district was shown on Michigan avenue, where forty-three buildings with 6,096,846 square feet of rentable area reported a ratio of 83.44 per cent occupied. Thirteen buildings on Clark street, with a total rentable area of 2,143,103 square feet, showed an average occupancy of 80.66 per cent.

Higher Than Rest of Country.

Although Chicago's occupancy gain over Oct. 1, 1937, was only .80 per cent, it was pointed out that it was higher than that of the country at large, which showed an increase of only 0.13 per cent.

Returns for the national survey were received by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers from 100 cities reporting "city averages" [three or more buildings], and from thirty-two additional cities, a total of 132.

The average occupancy throughout the United States and Canada was 81.91 per cent. This compares with an occupancy figure of 81.78 per cent in October, 1937, and with 80.94 per cent in May, last year.

Vacancies Being Reduced.

"With vacancies today at 18.09 per cent as against the 27.57 per cent reported when they were at their peak, it may be assumed that 34.31 per cent of the vacant space has been absorbed during the intervening period of slightly more than four years," the survey said. "In other words, vacancies have been reduced by more than one-third. They are now at the lowest point since May 1, 1931, when the ratio was 17.57."

Deerpath Inn Expected to Be Ready Sept. 1

Work will be rushed in rebuilding the attic floor of the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest, which was damaged by fire on Wednesday, with the hope of having the entire building again ready for guests by Sept. 1, according to Buckingham Chandler, president of the hotel company owning the property. Most of the damage to the three lower floors was from water, as all but the attic section was of fireproof construction.

Stanley D. Anderson of Lake Forest has been commissioned to plan the rebuilding and work will start as soon as contracts can be let, Chandler said. The 102 room hotel was built in 1928 near the site of the original Deerpath inn, which for years had been a Lake Forest landmark.

PLAN $190,000 CATHOLIC CHURCH FOR WILMETTE

Start Work on St. Francis Xavier Edifice.

When completed, the new edifice of the St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic church at the northwest corner of Ninth street and Linden avenue, Wilmette, will have cost approximately $190,000, according to the Rev. Martin D. McNamara, pastor. Razing of the old church building on the same corner recently was completed and excavation is under way for the new edifice.

The old English Gothic design by McCarthy, Smith & Eppig, architects, is planned to harmonize with the suburban atmosphere of its setting. Exterior walls will be of white stone with frequent buttresses on the east, or Ninth street side.

No Interior Columns.

The sanctuary of the new church will be raised six steps above the floor to improve the view of the main altar. Among several novel interior features will be a glass partition between the baptistry and the church auditorium, and a special room off the vestibule in the rear for bridal groups.

There will be no interior columns. The interior decorations will include wood wainscoting and exposed wooden trusses. In contrast to the simplicity of the architecture and the other interior decorations, there will be the background of the main altar which will be principally silk dossals in brilliant colors which can be quickly changed in keeping with the liturgical seasons.

Air Conditioning Later.

Although the new church will not at present be air conditioned, the architects say that provision for temperature control will be made so that at a later date a cooling system easily can be installed.

The new church will face south on Linden avenue with several exists on Ninth street in addition to those opening west to the space between the church edifice and the rectory adjoining it on the west.

Opposite the new church site, at the northeast corner of Linden avenue and Ninth street, are the St. Francis Xavier parochial school and convent.

BUILDING LOAN MEMBERS PLAN 8,700 HOMES

More money was borrowed during May from savings, building and loan associations, to build new houses than in any month since last October, according to the United States Building and Loan league. Citing the new high figure of $27,484,000, E. C. Baltz of Washington, D. C., league president, estimates that it was borrowed for 8,700 new homes.

For this new construction and other purposes as well, all mortgage loans made by associations in May were up to $92,126,000, slightly trailing the April total loans and still 23 per cent behind May, 1937. Baltz said there was a similar tapering in May, last year, as compared with the April volume, and also in 1936. For this reason the month's performance is not looked upon as a serious setback in the forward movement in mortgage lending, which got under way in April.

Peter, Magdalena, and Lillian Mazur paid $11,500 in cash for the six apartment building at 4929-31 North Avers avenue, according to Raymond M. Hayes & Co., brokers. The United States Fire Insurance company of New York was the seller.

At the Realty Boards

The annual golf tournament of the North Side Real Estate board will be held next Wednesday at the Wilmette Golf club. According to Michael Long, chairman of the entertainment committee, only 200 tickets will be sold, of which only a few are left.

Although there will be no business sessions of the West Side Real Estate board during July and August, a table has been reserved at the Graemere hotel and members may meet at an informal luncheon tomorrow noon and discuss business conditions. "Hot or cold, we must eat, so why not attend?" urges Secretary Frederick C. Rausch.

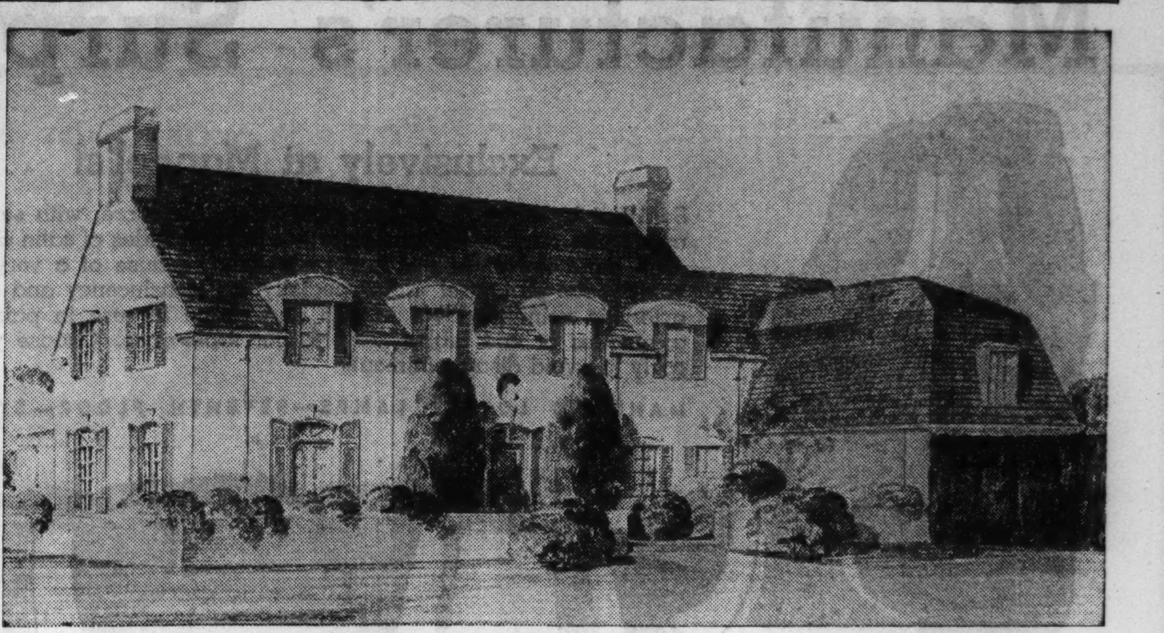
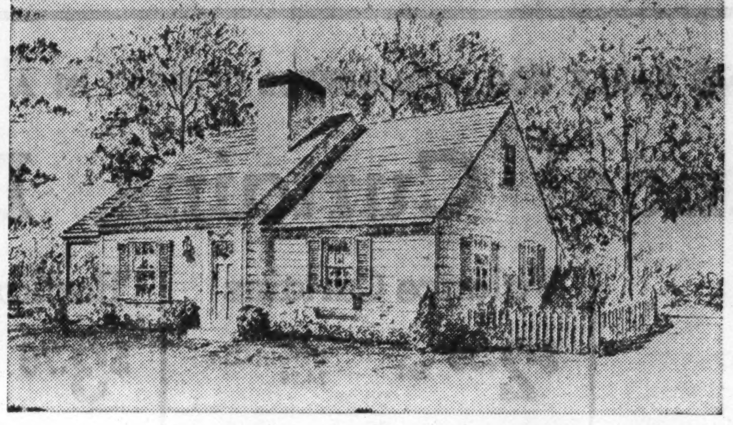
Under Construction in Ravinia



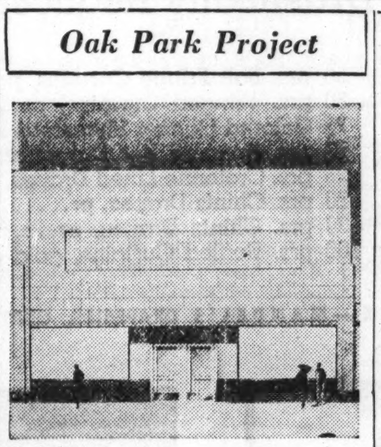
The above house is being erected by Paul R. Kuhn of the Burnet-Kuhn Advertising company, on the north side of Dean avenue, Ravinia, near Bronson avenue, from plans by Loebl & Schlossman. It contains eleven rooms and a two car garage. There will be a library with rip sawed oak paneled walls, a living room, a breakfast room, dining room, four master bedrooms and four baths, and two maids' bedrooms and bath. Exterior walls will be of common brick painted gray.

Nearing Completion in Northfield



The above Cape Cod type cottage on the west side of Wagner road, one block north of Pleasant road and one-quarter of a mile south of Winnetka avenue, in Northfield township, will be completed in about two weeks. Designed by J. H. Marling, owner of the Glen Oak Acres development, a ninety acre subdivision to the west, the new home has been purchased by a business woman of Winnetka. The house, without the land, cost $8,500 it was reported. It contains five rooms and a one car garage and has a gas fired heater.

Oak Park Project



Samuel E. Bird and Roy J. Hotchkiss, architects and engineers, designed the above two story building, which will replace the former one story structure at 721 Lake street occupied for eight years by Strickland's grocery, meat market, and bakery. Strickland will continue to use the entire new building. Details are given elsewhere on this page.

Bisno & Bisno Make Three Mortgage Loans: $74,000

On the forty apartment building at 4024 North Ashland avenue, a $37,500 mortgage was negotiated for ten years at 5 per cent interest, with the Sherman Manor Building corporation. A $21,500 loan was made on the twenty-four flats at 4826-30 North Avers avenue, for five years at 5 per cent, to Nettie Ikenn, trustee.

STRICKLAND'S REMODEL ONE OAK PARK UNIT

Strickland's one of Oak Park's oldest concerns, established forty years ago, is rebuilding the one story building at 721 Lake street, east of Oak Park avenue, into a two story structure from plans by Samuel E. Bird and Roy J. Hotchkiss, architects and engineers. The modernized structure will have a front elevation of terra cotta with a long horizontal window of glass brick. The building will be air conditioned.

The first floor will be used as a retail grocery, meat market, and bakery. The entire second floor will be given over to an enlarged bakery with walls of glazed brick and enameled ceilings. The basement will be used for storage and machine room.

Frank L. Strickland is senior partner of the firm, established four decades ago at 127 North Marion street, where a store still is maintained. The junior partners are Russell W. Critchfield and Erwin E. Seeck. The remodeled building is one of a group of structures owned by the Scoville estate, of which Riley & Kerr are agents. Adams & Schroter have the general contract for the present remodeling, which is expected to be completed by Aug. 15.

Women Lease Corner Space at Michigan and Ontario

Mrs. Ford Carter and Mrs. Magna Chevigny have leased the double store in the Michigan avenue building at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Ontario street, formerly occupied by George Wittbold, florist. The lessees will continue the florist business under the name of Carter. The Bowes Realty company, agent for the building, represented both lessees and the lessor, William Nelson Pelouze.

Merchandise Mart Record in Occupancy

With the signing last week of seventeen new leases for a total of over 35,000 square feet of floor space, the Merchandise Mart reached the highest occupancy level in the building's history, according to the midyear report of Percy Wilson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co. The working population of the mart has increased from 24,400 to 26,614, and the number of lines of merchandise shown, Wilson said, has advanced from 5,600 to 5,820.

Percy Wilson.

Lists Accomplishments.

Creation of a permanent home building exhibit on the seventh floor, enlargement of the public restroom facilities on the second floor, additional improvements on the fourteenth floor for houseware tenants, space revision on the twelfth, and revamping of the heating, ventilating, and water cooling systems throughout the building, were accomplished during the half year period, Wilson said.

The home building exhibit and the occupancy gains on the lower floors have been the chief factors in increasing the daily trafic in the mart, which has risen to 60,400, a 6 per cent gain over the same period last year.

Seventeen New Tenants.

Among the new tenants acquired during the last week, the largest lease, for 9,500 square feet, was taken by Neidhoefer & Co., wholesale distributors of floor covering, for display and stockroom purposes.

Included in the list of sixteen other new tenants, who leased space totaling 25,628 square feet last week, are Charles Wesley Allen and Chester N. Goltra, Amasia Importing corporation, International Corset company, Benmatt organization, Clinic on Infant Needs, John Edwin, Fabricated Products, Globe American corporation, Edwin C. Knocke, Loeb Brothers, Lumberman's Mutual Casualty company, Thomas M. Royal & Co., Utility Manufacturing company, Edward G. Westlake, Lovore company, and the Best Plan company.

Chicago Casket Company Sells Its Former Plant

The seven story building at 1106 South Canal street was sold by the Chicago Casket company, which formerly used it for a factory, for an undisclosed price, through Hogan & Farwell. Zwell Zwick took title for the buyer, whose name was not disclosed.

REDS BEAT CUBS, 11-0; DEAN MAY BE RETIRED

NATION'S FANS OPEN VOTE ON ALL-AMERICANS TODAY

PICK COLLEGE TEAM TO MEET PRO CHAMPIONS

Battle Washington on Aug. 31.

BY ARCH WARD.

This is the day for which hundreds of college football players have been waiting. It marks the opening of the nation-wide poll to determine the lineup of All-American players who on the night of Aug. 31 will meet the Washington Redskins, champions of the National Professional league, in the fifth annual All-Star charity game in Soldiers' field.

The candidates for the All-America eleven have completed their jobs. Most of them have thrilled the nation for the last three years on college gridirons the length and breadth of the land. Their exploits are now in the hands of the fans for appraisal. Upon your support depends their chances of realizing the ambition of their gridiron career.

Some of them have been picked by newspaper or magazine writers for national recognition. Others have been singled out by coaches for special commendation. But none of them has been honored by the millions of fans whose patronage has made intercollegiate football games the biggest attraction in American sport. The poll conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 150 associated newspapers is the only medium through which that honor can come to them.

Voting Continues Two Weeks.

The voting which begins today will continue for two weeks. At the end of that time the eleven players, one at each position, who receive the greatest number of votes will stand as THE All-American team of 1937 and the winners will start the game against the Redskins, provided they accept the invitation to join the squad and survive the practice sessions in good physical condition. It is a matter of record that no player in the history of the All-Star game has declined the honor conferred upon him by the fans.

It has happened in the past and probably will happen again that the eleven players chosen to start the game may not be the best competitive combination on the squad. The fact remains, however, that they are YOUR selections and the rules of the contest provide that they must be in the starting lineup.

If for any reason a player elected in the national poll is unable to take his place at the opening kickoff the man who receives the second greatest number of votes in that position will be substituted.

Just Jot Down the Names.

There is no set form for submitting your selections. Just get out a pencil, jot down the names and positions of the eleven players you want to see represent the colleges against Sammy Baugh and the Redskins, and mail your selections to the All-Star Editor, Tribune Tower, Chicago. A list of widely known players who completed their collegiate eligibility last fall is printed in this edition to refresh your memory.

There are no restrictions in your choices except that players must have ended their college careers last season. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the game, doesn't care whether they come from small colleges or great universities, or whether they are from Maine, Florida, or California. If you want them we shall invite them.

Profits Go to Charities.

Alumni and other interested supporters of various candidates probably will circulate petitions in behalf of their favorites. There is no objection to this system, provided the address of each voter appears after his name. This gives the contest depart-

Beau James Takes Hyde Park Stakes

Beau James, carrying Warren Wright's red and blue racing jacket, was too speedy for the opposition in the twenty-sixth running of the Hyde Park stakes at Arlington Park yesterday. Scorching the track while he ran 5½ furlongs in 1:04 4-5, just three-fifths of a second off the track record, Beau James was the winner by a length.

Trailing him home in second place was Dixiana stable's budding champion Allegro from Detroit. Two lengths on back in third place was Yale O'Nine from the French Lick Springs stable, with his winning streak broken at five straight.

Behind the Leaders.

Then behind these three leaders came All Time High, a stable companion of Allegro; No Competition, one of the prides in the barn of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars; Bala Ormont, a Kentucky filly owned by the tobacco firm of Friedberg & Axton; T. M. Dorsett, owned by Joe W. Brown of New Orleans, and American Byrd, another Kentucky colt owned by W. H. Whitehouse.

Few renewals of the Hyde Park have brought a better performance than Mr. Wright's son of Jamestown-Nursemaid delivered. He was away fast and always was clear. He was second for the first half mile, while Mrs. Mars' No Competition skipped the distance in the extremely fast time of :45 4-5.

Then at the end of five-eighths of a mile run in :58 3-5 seconds Jocky Irving Anderson drove Beau James to the front. Once in command, he never weakened, but Allegro was hard after him all through the last half furlong.

Mistakes Hurt Yale O' Nine.

Yale O' Nine was the only starter with an excuse to offer and even with the mistakes he made it is questionable whether he could have run the 5½ furlongs as fast as Beau James. The French Lick Springs colt was away well, but when the leaders started maneuvering for positions nearing the turn Jocky Hanford got him into close quarters and he was forced back. Then Hanford tried to force Yale O'Nine between horses and he found there was no room for a move of that kind.

Finally Yale O'Nine did find racing room. He was quick to recover his good even stride. He finished fastest of all, but was too far back when the rally started. The race had a gross value of $4,170, of which Beau James won $3,185 for Owner Wright. The rush of betting support went to Yale O'Nine and the Dixiana entry of Allegro and All Time High.

18,000 See Races.

A crowd of 18,000, which wagered $497,478 during the afternoon, watched the 2 year olds strive for honors. A splendid yet puzzling program was offered. No favorite was able to win all afternoon. The best handicap horses at Arlington clashed in the Exmoor handicap, run over the mile Hertz course.

Grim Reaper, a recent arrival from California, with Jocky Basil James in the saddle, dashed over the eight furlongs in 1:36 1-5 to win by three lengths from Warren Wright's Galsun. Third in the battle which found Marmara and the favorite Mower making most of the early running was Cardinalis, owned by Paul Kelley of Chicago. Grim Reaper's mile was the fastest run here this season. In the betting he paid $10. Mower was the fourth favorite in a row to lose.

Temulac Finishes Fifth.

The Arlington crowd got a look at Saratoga's most expensive yearling of last August in the third race. It was Temulac, for which Warren Wright paid $26,000. The son of Sir Gallahad III. was making his first start. He is one of the best looking 2 year olds ever to appear at Arlington and he showed flashes of great speed. However, the best he could do was to finish fifth. He had been made the favorite.

The winner was Epidor, owned by A. L. Ferguson of Kentucky, a son of Epithet. Epidor ran the 5 furlongs in :59 2-5, the fastest race turned in by a 2 year old here this year. Woolford farm's Technician was second.

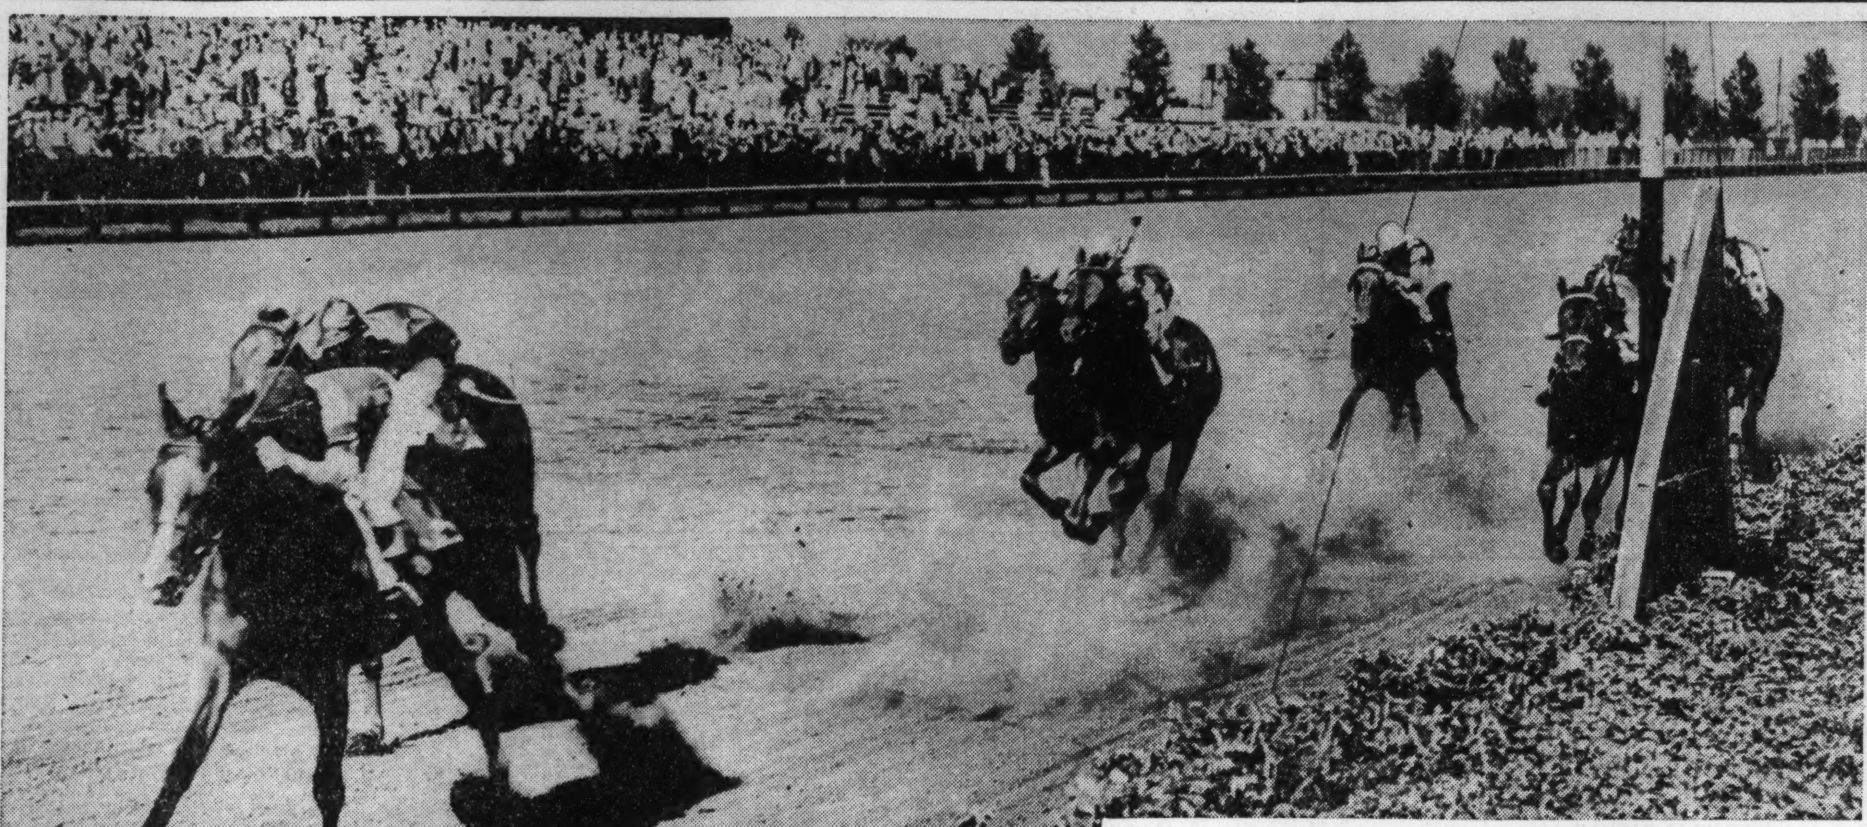
DUST AND DISAPPOINTMENT FOR YALE O'NINE



Warren Wright's Beau James rushing home a length ahead of the Dixiana Stable's Allegro to win the 26th running of the Hyde Park stakes at Arlington Park yesterday. The pair broke the five race winning streak of Yale o' Nine, forcing the French Lick Springs stable's star back to third. Allegro's stable companion, All Time High, was fourth.

Walters Yields Six Hits as Reds Win and Pass Cubs

The Cubs, torn between duty and their weakness for reading the dime novel doings of Dizzy Dean, took it on the chin again yesterday. The blow was somewhat severe, such a jolt in fact that it shook raspberries from an assemblage of 11,096 and hoisted Cincinnati's Reds to victory by an 11 to 0 score. It also shook the troubled Cubs from third into fourth place, but since they were there only a week ago it was just like a homecoming.

The main defect of the Cubs on this occasion appeared to be a slight weakness in the pitching department. It wasn't exactly bad, otherwise the Reds might have made more than 14 hits, three of which were doubles and one a homer. Eight of these safe taps were off Clay Bryant, who willingly resigned in the fifth when the Reds compiled the last portion of a five run total. During the next three innings there were five hits against Tex Carleton and one off Bob Logan who had to drag Carleton to safety in the eighth. This series of hits accounted for six runs.

Batting Punch Missing.

Still another defect in the Cubs' battle scheme for the day was their lack of a punch. Maybe the boys were just depressed because Bryant got away to a bad start and then again it may have been the pitching of Bucky Walters, who stepped into Friday's game toward the finish and earned a decision for himself.

Even though he underwent the extra work the day before and even though he was supposed to have a crippled arm, the ex-Philly infielder kept the Cubs so well under control that he allowed only six hits, all of them widely separated. The Cubs sent runners as far as third only three times, two of them getting there because of wild pitches.

The biggest power in the Reds' attack was Wally Berger, who last year helped the Giants to win a pennant. Berger slashed Bryant for three successive singles. He also hit a homer off Carleton. It was Berger's third homer and his seventh hit in two games here.

Pass Leads To Run.

Bryant pitched himself into trouble in the first inning by passing Frey, the Reds' leadoff hitter. Berger started another hitting spree by singling to center. Goodman shoved the two runners along on a bunt. The bases were filled on an intentional pass to McCormick. Lombardi ruined this strategy with a looping single in short right center, Frey and Berger scoring. Bryant then fanned Craft and threw out Riggs.

Bryant was a satisfactory workman for the next three innings, but there was no mistaking the seriousness of the decline which overtook him in the fifth. Frey opened with a single off Bryant's glove and Berger singled to left. Goodman lined to right, but Demaree didn't know where the ball was going. It landed for a double, Frey counting. On McCormick's tap to Jurges at short, Berger was thrown out at the plate. Lombardi singled to right and Goodman scored. Craft singled to center and McCormick scampered home. Carleton then stepped in and retired the next two men.

Reds Jolt Carleton.

The ~~net of~~ the Reds' attack on Carleton in the sixth was a pair of hits and a pass. These proved sufficient for two runs. Walters started the inning with a single to center. This hit looked harmless when Carleton fanned Frey and Berger flied to Demaree, but there were subsequent happenings. Carleton worried so much about the possibilities of a home run pitch to Goodman that he walked him. McCormick doubled into the left field corner, Walters and Goodman scoring. In the next inning Craft doubled, went to third on a wild pitch and counted the Reds' eighth run on Riggs' fly to Asbell.

The eighth, which brought Carleton relief from his tormentors, began with Frey beating out a single on which Hack made a snappy stop. The annoying Mr. Berger let one bad pitch go past but leveled on the next and slammed it over the left field wall for his season's seventh homer. Carleton didn't want this to happen again, so he passed Goodman. Carleton's first throw to McCormick was a wild pitch, on which Goodman advanced. So Tex was yanked and Logan substituted. McCormick then was thrown out by Herman, but Lombardi singled to left, Goodman scoring the last run.

HELEN JACOBS LIMPS TO SHIP, SAILS FOR HOME

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 9.—[U. P.]—Helen Jacobs, beaten by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody last Saturday in the Wimbledon finals, sailed for the United States today on the steamship Georgic.

"I certainly am coming back for another try next year," said Miss Jacobs, who walked with the aid of a cane. "And I hope Mrs. Moody and I meet again for the title."

GREENBERG'S TWO HOME RUNS HELP BEAT SOX, 4 TO 0

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—Hank Greenberg, who was too infirm to go to Cincinnati for the All-Star game, continued his miraculous recovery today by driving out a run producing single in the first inning and following with his twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth home runs of the season. These shots, off Johnny Whitehead, the goodies fancier, supplied the first three of four runs with which the Detroit Tigers whipped the White Sox, 4 to 0, in the third game of the series.

Whitehead, who went into training recently, was a pretty good pitcher after the first inning, except when pitching to Invalid Greenberg. The fourth run was unearned and traceable to fumbling by Joe Kuhel and Boze Berger, the latter back in the lineup because Luke Appling felt weary after his four inning comeback yesterday.

Sox Are Baffled.

Offensively the Sox spent most of the afternoon blinking at the underhand stuff of Eldon Auker, who gave up four hits, one after the third inning. Mike Kreevich doubled with two out in the first inning, Marv Owen led off the second with a single, Jack Hayes doubled with one out in the third and Hayes led off the sixth with his single. Hayes, who went to third on a fly ball after his double, was the only Chicagoan to get that near the plate.

The last Detroit inning was pitched by Gene Ford, recently signed by the Sox as a free agent. Gene once was owned by the Cubs, but developed some sort of spavin. After being lost to all save his nearest relatives, Gene showed up today with a no-hit inning.

The setdown today gave the Sox a record of seven defeats in ten games with the Tigers this year. It also gave Whitehead his fifth defeat in eleven starts this season.

The Tigers were very severe with Whitehead in the first inning, but through a kind providence Johnny was tagged for only one run. Laabs opened with a line single to left, after which Hayes leaped into the air and grabbed Rogell's liner. Laabs had reached second on a hit and run maneuver and Hayes tossed to Kuhel for a double play. Gehringer, York, and Greenberg then knocked out successive singles, Greenberg's driving in Gehringer.

Hank Really Busts One.

Greenberg's second homer led off the seventh. It was a 420 foot drive into the center field stand. The Tigers added the first run of the game not driven in by Greenberg on errors by Kuhel and Berger and singles by Dixie Walker and Auker.

Beau James, Jocky I. Anderson up, returns to the winner's circle after winning Arlington's Hyde Park stakes. Beau James' time of 1:04 4-5 for the five and a half furlongs was only three-fifths of a second off the track record.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 9.—Two years ago, when Max Schmeling returned from the United States after knocking out Joe Louis, the German heavyweight fighter was greeted by Reichsfuehrer Hitler and thousands of admirers. Today only two dozen persons, including friends, cameramen and newspapermen, were on hand when he came back to see him step uncertainly as the result of the spinal injury received in the disastrous return bout with Louis.

Although he had not recovered from the injury that sent him to a New York hospital a few hours after he was knocked out by Louis in the first round of the world championship bout in Yankee stadium on June 22, Schmeling insisted upon walking from the train upon his arrival in Berlin.

Friends had expected him to come home on a stretcher, but Max said, "That would never do."

This morning he disembarked from the Liner Bremen at Bremerhaven and walked, aided by his wife, the German movie actress Anny Ondra, his mother and friends, to the boat train that brought him to Berlin. This was the first time he was able to move about since his knockout. The German fighter spent ten days in the New York hospital and lay abed throughout the voyage that started at midnight July 1.

Asked about plans for a comeback, the 32 year old fighter declared he had nothing to say. He added he was more interested in having a German specialist examine him.

"I'll go to the hospital tomorrow," he said disconsolately.

The spinal injury, a fracture of the transverse process of the third lumbar vertebra, apparently was caused when he jerked a muscle in falling or trying to avoid Louis' punches.

After the fight Schmeling's American manager, Joe Jacobs, claimed the German was fouled by kidney punches when he was groggy and on the verge of a knockout, but the referee said the punches were legal.

The German press, which denounced rules permitting these blows, was no more excited over Schmeling's arrival than were the boxing fans of Germany, who rejoiced so vociferously when he was a conquering hero. There was only brief mention of his return in some of the papers.

THREATENS SUIT CHARGING CARDS RUINED HIS ARM

Will Press Claim if Landis Consents.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Dizzy Dean, for whom the Cubs gave $185,000 and three players on April 16 and who hasn't done enough pitching to keep himself in coffee and cakes, may be placed on the voluntarily retired list, which would mean he's through for the season.

This was the last of yesterday's developments in the life of the costly cripple. Earlier in the day he repeated a statement, which he denied when it was first reported in THE TRIBUNE last week, that he was going to sue the St. Louis Cardinals, his former employer, on the theory they had wrecked his arm.

Having made this haphazard declaration, Dean visited the doctor who has charge of his case. The medico pronounced Diz unfit for labor. Because of this condition the club officials will meet tomorrow and probably decide, for the good of all concerned including the other players, to send him home for the season.

Says He Consulted Landis.

Diz is supposed to believe, probably as the result of a suggestion from some lawyer, that the Cardinals ruined his arm by working him when he wasn't in condition to pitch. Diz, however, has insisted at frequent intervals since the Cubs put him on vacation May 4 that he could pitch if given permission by the doctor in charge of his case.

Dean gave somebody the impression that he had visited Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis in connection with the alleged suit.

"Well, I talked with him," Diz said yesterday when asked about it. He wouldn't say he had actually seen the commissioner.

Dean claimed he had asked the commissioner only whether he could have permission to take the matter into the courts.

"Pipe Dream," Says Missus.

"If Landis says I can sue I'll go 'head. If he says no I will give up on the idea," said Diz.

The use of a $250,000 figure in connection with the proposed case was merely a guess. But when Diz saw that amount mentioned in the public prints he decided it was as good as any.

"Why you know," he said, "if I could get that quarter million I'd give Wrigley back the $185,000 he paid to St. Louis for me."

Mrs. Patricia Dean also had a hand in the case yesterday. As soon as the missus learned of the suit she rushed to the ball park looking for her illustrious husband. Diz wasn't there. He didn't reach the ball park until after the game had started. He was at the doctor's, undergoing another examination.

"Why, it's a pipe dream," were the words used by Mrs. Dean when asked to tell something about Diz's alleged plans.

"A quarter of a million is a lot of money, and if Diz had anything like that in mind I certainly would know something about it," she concluded.

Soreness Remains in Arm.

At the doctor's office Diz learned only that he must continue his vacation. The examination showed or rather made Dean admit, there still is soreness in the region of his right shoulder blade.

Meanwhile, Charles Grimm, the Cub manager, was fuming over the fact that Diz didn't show up at 10 a. m. as ordered. Grimm apparently had received no official notice to account for the Great Man's tardiness. Grimm didn't say so in as many words, but his attitude indicated that with Dean violating orders, breaking into print continually with phoney oil well stories, etc., there wasn't much chance to keep his men in the proper fighting mood.

PIRATES DEFEAT CARDINALS, 8-7, FOR 9TH IN ROW

2½ Games Out of Lead as Giants Lose.

St. Louis, Mo., July 9.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates cut the New York Giants' National league lead to 2½ games today by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 7, for their ninth straight victory as the Giants were losing to Boston.

Johnny Rizzo hit two home runs to lead the Pittsburgh attack. Consecutive homers by Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize in the third drove Jim Tobin, Pittsburgh starting pitcher, to the showers and brought in Mace Brown, who pitched effectively to receive credit for the victory. Score:

New York, July 9.—(AP)—Boston's Bees carried a record equalling punch today to back up Lou Fette's four hit pitching and trample the Giants, 7 to 0.

Tony Cuccinello, Max West, and Elbie Fletcher hit successive homers off Carl Hubbell in the third inning to equal a major league mark that hasn't been tied since 1934. It was only the eighth time in all baseball history and the third time in the National league that three homers were hit in succession in one inning. Ray Mueller followed the homers with a triple.

Vander Meer and Reds to Face Lee and Cubs Today

If the Cubs salvage one game from the series with the Reds they'll have to beat Johnny Vander Meer, the 23 year old no-hit southpaw, in the final today. They trimmed him a week ago today on his home lot. Bill Lee will throw for the Cubs.

Two days ago the Reds took Woody English on waivers from the Brooklyn club but the ex-Cub infielder hasn't shown up to sign his contract. He's supposed to be away on a honeymoon.

Because he hasn't been hitting Joe Marty was benched yesterday. Carl Reynolds moved to Marty's center field post and Jim Asbell was installed in left. Asbell was twice thrown out by infielders and fanned once, although he came within inches of a home run to left. The ball passed the flagpole on the wrong side.

RED PLAGUE STRIKES CUBS

LYONS PITCHES TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—Ted Lyons will pitch the final of the Tigers series for the White Sox tomorrow. Harry Eisenstat, 23 year old lefty, has been invited to pitch for the Tigers.

Clint Brown, White Sox relief pitcher de luxe, tomorrow will be available to save swooning mates in the late innings. Clint has been on the voluntary retired list for sixty days, pending the mending of a chipped bone in his pitching arm.

Luke Appling was not in the starting lineup today and will not be for a long time if Manager Jimmy Dykes waits for Luke to say he's feeling all right. Luke never admitted he was feeling fine in his life and isn't expected to begin when he really doesn't feel so hot.

The Sox will leave tomorrow night for Philadelphia. They will open against the Athletics Tuesday.

Toledo, O., July 9.—[Special.]—Chet Morgan, leading batter of the American association, today was traded to Detroit of the American league for Chet Laabs, also an outfielder. Morgan is batting .361. FLIES DROPPED INTENTIONALLY BANNED BY N. L.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 9.—(AP)—A new National league rule to stop an outfielder from intentionally dropping a fly ball in order to make a double play was disclosed today by President William E. Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

He said he received a letter from Ford Frick, president of the National league, which read:

"The following change has been made in the instructions to umpires: 'Hereafter, with two men on base, and one or none out, umpires will call a catch when an outfielder obviously and apparently intentionally drops a fly ball in order to make a double play.'"

Vince Di Maggio of the Boston Bees was the first to make such a play in Pittsburgh, deliberately muffing Pep Young's short fly to center in a game on May 8 and doubling Johnny Rizzo and Gus Suhr on their bases. Since then it has been worked against a number of other clubs.

Under the new rule the batter will be out and the runners will not be required to leave their bases.

Princess, Commodore Carl A. Kallgren and Edmund Jedrzykowski's sloop, and Betty Bro, Commodore Molton Friend's flagship of the Columbia Yacht club, won the racing and cruising division time prizes, respectively, in the eighteenth Chicago to Saugatuck race which finished at the western Michigan port yesterday. The Princess is flagship of the Jackson Park Yacht club, sponsor of the race.

The race started Friday evening from the Van Buren street gap, with a fleet of more than 40 windjammers headed northeast on the 89 mile race course. The Saugatuck race is the longest to start from Chicago with the exception of the Mackinac race.

Princess, a 42 foot sloop, captured the Barrett trophy for the racing division time prize, the Q and 8 meter class prize, and the Spies Memorial trophy. Its elapsed time was 14 hours 4 minutes 27 seconds. The Betty Bro required 14 hours 50 minutes and 41 seconds to sail the course. A 36 foot cutter, the Betty Bro won the Ponjola trophy, the Barrett trophy for defeating the entire cruising division from 67 foot sail yachts down to 27 footers, on corrected time, and first prize in C class.

Sails Neo to Victory.

Percy Boynton sailed his star class sloop Neo to first place in the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's opening race of a five race series of eliminations for the Wilmette star fleet. The winner will be eligible to represent the fleet at the international star races in California in September. Neo's time was 3 hours 22 minutes and 45 seconds. Gemini, S. C. Pirie Jr.'s entry, was runnerup in 3:24:42.

Gale, Harry Nye Jr.'s star class racer, led the southern Lake Michigan star class fleet around an eight nautical mile course off Belmont harbor yesterday in the first race of three to decide a fleet champion.

Shimmer Is Second.

Defending the fleet championship, Nye sailed his star twice around the course in 2:37:16. Leeds Mitchell Jr.'s Shimmer, which was runnerup in the series last year, was second in 2:42:32. Both yachtsmen are members of the Chicago Yacht club. The second race of the series is scheduled to start at 9:30 o'clock this morning and the final this afternoon.

Goon, Jack Smith and Ray Schwab's entry, won the Montrose harbor - Chicago Corinthian Yacht club's snipe class race yesterday. Its time for the short Montrose harbor course was 53 minutes and 20 seconds. Summaries:

POLICE SETTLE BASEBALL TITLE SERIES TODAY

Play Deciding Game in Comiskey Park.

The final game of the police championship baseball series will be played in Comiskey park today, when the north and south side divisions will decide the tie for the silver cup. The north side won the opening game a week ago, and the south-siders evened the series on July 4.

Capt. Harry O'Connell of the north side division will use Pitcher Mike Delaney, veteran right-hander who won the opening game, 4 to 1, yielding only four hits. Capt. Eugene Barry of the south side plans to send Eddie Dennis back to the mound for the south side. Dennis, a southpaw, pitched the south side to a 7 to 3 victory, yielding only five hits, to deadlock the series.

The finals in fungo hitting, throwing the baseball, and circling the bases will be decided before the ball game. Gold watches, radios, chests of silver, and other merchandise will be awarded as prizes to the best performers.

Proceeds go to the Policemen's Benevolent association, which provides for the dependents of policemen killed in the line of duty. There are plenty of good seats available. The game starts at 1:45 o'clock. Gates open at 1 o'clock. The lineups:

International rivalry will mark the baseball double-header in Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street, this afternoon, when the Chicago Mills meet the Cuban Stars from Havana. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock.

The Spencer Coals will meet serious opposition in two games at 4200 North Central avenue, where they play the Fort Wayne Harvesters in a Tri-State league series.

Two of the best pitchers in Cuban baseball will hurl against the Mills. Ramon Bragana, scheduled to pitch the opener, holds spring exhibition victories over the New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals. José Palma will pitch the second game. The Mills will rely on Al Nusser and Bill Williams.

ERIN'S BOXERS OUT TO MAKE C. Y. O. REMEMBER THEM

A bit o' music is always welcome when the Irish get together. This group of Ireland's best boxers who meet Chicago C. Y. O. fighters Wednesday night in Soldiers' field relaxes around the piano with Trainer Frank Cooper at the keys. Left to right: Jimmy Smith, featherweight; Frank Kerr, bantamweight; John Healy, flyweight; Harry Fisher, featherweight; Mike Heaslip (manager), and Dick Hearns, light heavyweight.

No rest for Cornelius Young, C. Y. O. middleweight. He wrestles a sack of potatoes which hungry boxers will eat.

THOUSANDS WILL WELCOME IRISH FIGHTERS TODAY

Reception Scheduled in Garfield Park.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thousands of Chicagoans will gather this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Garfield park to greet the amateur boxing champions of Ireland who on Wednesday evening will face the boys of the Catholic Youth organization in Soldiers' field.

Bishop B. J. Sheil, founder and director of the C. Y. O., will introduce the Irish boys to the crowd from the band stand in Garfield park. Mayor Kelly will welcome the boxers, and Congressman Clare Gerald Fenerty of Philadelphia will speak on the subject "Ireland One and Undivided." The massmeeting, of which Judge John P. McGoorty is chairman, was arranged by the Allied Irish Societies of Chicago, which invited the Irish boxing team to be their guests when the date for the international bouts was arranged.

They'll Find Warm Welcome.

Thousands who are not Irish undoubtedly will participate in the civic reception for the Irish boys. The international matches are of interest to all Chicagoans, regardless of race. Chicago's reputation as a city of sportsmen, heightened by the impartial treatment and cordial welcome extended to other European and South American teams, is world-wide. Today these Irish boys will find out that they are most welcome.

The profits from the bouts Wednesday evening go to the C. Y. O. milk fund, which provides for children attending summer schools. The C. Y. O. boxers, although seventeen of the boys in training at the Lewis Holy Name Technical school, Lockport, Ill., are Irish, represent ten other races. Seventy-nine boys are at Lockport. There are Italians, Poles, Mexicans, Negroes, Austrians, Germans, Jews, French, Slovenians, and Norwegians. All are united in common cause—to prove that the C. Y. O. team is better than the Irish boxing team.

Parade Precedes Reception.

The Garfield park reception will be preceded by a parade which will form on Madison street at 1:30 o'clock. Automobiles will form in line at Crawford avenue on Madison street. The single line of cars will extend west of that intersection as far as is necessary. The bands, organizations, and societies which will march in the parade will meet at 4600 Madison street. William J. Campbell and members of the C. Y. O. staf will marshal the units and direct them as they move east to Garfield park.

Last Drills Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be the final day of ring drills for both teams. The Irish boys will complete their gymnasium workouts at the C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street, which has been their headquarters, while the C. Y. O. boxers will work as usual at Lockport. The C. Y. O. team of ten boxers will be announced tomorrow. The Chicago boys, however, will not come into the city until Wednesday, when both squads will weigh in at 2 o'clock at the C. Y. O. center.

Although Curtis McDaniel is the C. Y. O. 160 pound champion this year, it is quite probable that Chester Rutecki, one of the best amateurs in the seven year history of C. Y. O. boxing, will get the assignment to meet Dick Reade, the Irish middleweight champion. Rutecki hasn't fought since he appeared on the international card last summer against the South American team. He's now a middleweight, whereas he was fighting in the 147 pound division in 1936, when he won a berth on the United States Olympic team and reached the championship round in the bouts in Berlin.

Punches with Both Hands.

Rutecki not only is an excellent boxer, but he punches hard with both hands. He has knocked out twenty of his opponents in his eighty-one amateur bouts, and he has been defeated only six times. Other middleweights in the C. Y. O. camp are Hiner Thomas, one time middleweight champion; Stanley Repel, Sam La Dolce, and Florentine Arreguin.

Reade, who will meet either Rutecki or one of these boys, is from the county of Kildare. While this is his first year in the senior division of the Irish tournament, he won from eight contenders for the right to make the trip to Chicago. He is a two-fisted fighter. Not the least of his assets is his ability to maintain a fast pace throughout three rounds. Somewhat handicapped in weight, since he is between the 147 pound limit of the welterweight class and the 160 pound maximum for middleweights, he makes up the deficit by determination and furious fighting.

It may be too much to expect Reade to whip Rutecki, but it is certain he will give Rutecki or any other boxer a fine fight.

Smith Leads Texas Rangers to Victory in English Polo

LONDON, July 9.—[U. P.]—The Texas Rangers, led by Cecil Smith, today won the King's Coronation cup polo tournament, defeating the Jaguars, 8 to 6, in the finals at the Ranelagh club. Two Americans—Smith and C. B. Wrightsman—and two Englishmen—Aidian Roark and E. H. Tyrrell-Martin—played for the Rangers. The Jaguars used one American, Stephen Sanford, and the Hon. W. K. Rous, Gerald Balding, and Capt. Humphrey Guinness of England.

ARON BIDS FOR REVENGE IN BOUT WITH TURIELLO

Milt Aron, west side welterweight, will be after revenge in a ten round rematch with Saverio Turiello in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Turiello, top ranking contender, handed Aron a lesson in the same arena June 27. The Chicagoan lasted ten rounds because of his superior stamina. In fact, Aron's strong finish is reason for the return bout. Then too, Milt's backers have obtained Art Winch, who trained former Welterweight Champion Barney Ross for all his important bouts, to handle their protégé this time. As a result Turiello may not be more than a 6 to 5 favorite. Aron was a 12 to 5 choice in their first meeting.

Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, and Frankie Agnes will strive for honors in the five round semifinal. Also swinging into action will be Lou Laurie, former American Olympic Golden Gloves flyweight champion, and Andy Canal. They meet for four rounds, as do Dick Kist and Johnny Terry, and Bobby La Monte and Joe Delya.

Wrestling shows will be presented in White City tomorrow and Rainbo Fronton Wednesday. The White City card is topped by encounters involving Ruffy Silverstein and George Mansor, and Lem Stecklin and Jerry Meeker. Jim McMillen and Hans Schnabel will be windup principals in the Fronton. F. M.

19 Games on Card Today in B. B. Y. O. Play

Nineteen games will be played today in the third annual B'nai Brith Youth organization citywide softball tournament in Garfield park and in Hutchison field, Grant park.

Section finalists in the junior, intermediate, and senior divisions will be decided. In the B'nai Brith lodge division the undefeated Lake View and Lawndale lodge teams meet for the first time since last year, when Lake View whipped Lawndale for the interlodge championship.

The B. B. Y. O. finals are scheduled for Tuesday, July 26, in St. Philip stadium, Kedzie avenue and Van Buren street. The B'nai Brith lodge final will be played off in September.

Two teams are ready for the city semi-finals, which will be played next Sunday. The Jack Baskin Boosters took the south section senior division crown several weeks ago and the Samsons of the north section are ready in the junior division.

Three B'nai Brith lodge teams are undefeated going into the fifth round of play this morning. They are Lake View, Lawndale, and South Side No. 1. The situation will be changed, as Lawndale and Lake View meet and South Side No. 1 plays Austin No. 1.

Haverford, Pa., July 9.—(AP)—Frank Guernsey Jr., Rice institute sophomore, won the national intercollegiate singles tennis title today with a 6-4, 6-1, 6-0 victory over Morey Lewis of Kenyon college, Gambier, O.

The University of Southern California team of Joe Hunt, national junior singles champion, and Lewis Wetherell, defeated Lewis and Don McNeill, also of Kenyon, in straight sets for the doubles championship, 6-2, 6-2, and 6-4.

As singles champion, Guernsey succeeds Ernest Sutter of Tulane university. Lewis, a native of Texarkana, Ark., drove up to the finals by defeating three seeded players, but he was helpless against Guernsey.

Lewis, at the start, broke through twice to take a three-love lead, but Guernsey then won four games in a row to lead 4-3. Lewis squared it at 4-all, but Guernsey won the next two and the set.

Lewis broke through again at the start of the second set. Guernsey promptly rallied and from that point on he moved swiftly away from his opponent.

In the third set Lewis made little effort to return hard shots. Only in the sixth game did he look like the fighter he was earlier in the week. Guernsey had match point. He lobbed and Lewis ran to the net to congratulate his opponent. But the lob proved to be an out. Then Lewis fired two spectacular forehand placements down the line to deuce the game. Lewis then netted twice to give Guernsey the match.

RIGGS GAINS TWO FINAL MATCHES IN VALLEY TENNIS

Neenah, Wis., July 9.—(AP)—Bobby Riggs of Chicago and Ernie Sutter, New Orleans, today reached the finals of the fifteenth annual Fox River Valley tennis tournament. Riggs, national clay courts champion, also gained the finals in the doubles.

In a four set singles match Riggs eliminated Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2. Sutter, who yesterday beat Frankie Parker of the United States Davis cup squad, conquered Charles Hare, England, 6-8, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Riggs and Hal Surface of Kansas City scored a semi-finals doubles victory over Bobby Curtis and Lester Brown, both of Houston, Tex., 8-6, 5-7, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1. The other doubles finalists are Hare and Cooke, who eliminated Parker and Billy Strange of Neenah, Wis., 6-0, 6-2.

GREENBERG WINS WESTERN JUNIOR TENNIS CROWN

Gambier, O., July 9.—[U. P.]—Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, third in national junior tennis ranking, today defeated a fellow Chicagoan, Calvin Sawyier, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, to win the western closed junior singles championship at Kenyon college.

After his singles triumph, Greenberg paired with Richard Wade of Chicago to defeat Sawyier and John Jorgenson, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0, in the junior doubles final.

Marshall Chambers of Cincinnati equaled Greenberg's grand slam by winning the boys' singles championship from Robert Jake of Milwaukee, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3. Chambers and Jake teamed to beat Arthur Leighton and Robert Smidl of Chicago, 6-1, 6-3, in the doubles final.

Anglers Split on Plausibility of Solunar Feeding

BY BOB BECKER.

Does the solunar theory of fishing account for the feeding times of fresh water game fish? Ever since last fall, when we discussed the solunar theory in this column, we have had many letters from fishermen asking about the fishing time tables, some of which put us on the spot by inquiring if we believe that the tables really tell when fish are most likely to strike.

The solunar theory can be explained in a few words. It is believed by some fishermen that the forces which cause tides in the ocean also affect fish in fresh water when these forces are felt around the earth at varying periods of time. The theory is that fresh water fish feel the gravitation pull [of the sun and moon] and when they do they are inclined to go on a feeding spree. J. Alden Knight, an eastern angler, brought out this idea of solunar periods.

After experimenting with this theory for several years we find today that the angling fraternity is divided into two camps as far as the theory is concerned. Fishermen either believe that it works or they brand the idea as pure buncombe. One of the best known scientists in Michigan, who has spent many years studying fish, says that the solunar theory is impossible and that no fisherman he has ever met believes in it. On the other hand, a resort owner in southern Wisconsin, who tried the theory some weeks ago for the first time, reports that it worked very well.

A senior physical science aid in the United States naval hydrographic office was asked his opinion of the solunar theory. [He is a trout fisherman.] After trying the solunar theory many times, and then making his own tables from government tide tables, he says he hasn't found either of them satisfactory. He added that he couldn't figure out how the solunar tables have been compiled from government tide tables. So the controversy goes on. We would like to hear from fishermen who have tried the solunar theory in their fishing.

Mamaroneck, N. Y., July 9.—[Special.]—Ray Billows proved himself an accurate prophet today in the final rounds of the Sweetser victory cup tournament over the west course of the Winged Foot Golf club. P. G. A. BACK HOME AT SHAWNEE FOR TOURNEY TODAY

Denny Shute Seeks 3d Straight Title.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., July 9.—Tomorrow the national professional golf tournament, most strenuous competition in the game, returns to its birthplace, the Shawnee Country club. It was here twenty-six years ago that the Professional Golfers' association was founded with only a score of members, who now have grown to a roster of more than 2,000.

The tournament will begin tomorrow morning with the first eighteen holes of the 36 hole qualifying round and be completed on Monday. The sixty-three low scorers for those 36 holes and a fellow named Herman Densmore Shute, better known as Denny the Killer, will qualify for the match play bracket. This will open with two eighteen hole debates on Tuesday, continuing therefrom at 36 holes through Saturday's final.

Shute Seeks 3d Title.

The taciturn Mr. Shute will have quite a problem on his hands if he would bring off his third consecutive P. G. A. victory, no small achievement as the business of swinging at that little white pellet goes. He pulled off one of the truly remarkable feats of the game last year when he repeated at Pittsburgh's Field club, the triumph he had scored in 1936 at Pinehurst, N. C. Proof of this lies in the consensus among the paid hands of the game that you are a pretty good standup golfer if you can qualify for the tournament proper and then win yourself a match or two.

This opinion arises from the fact that the P. G. A. is rated the hardest tournament in golf. Professionals seldom meet at match play over a period of twelve months. The scheme of competition generally is aimed at medal play. The P. G. A. is the exacting exception to this. Friendships of years' standing are forgotten when a pair of able swingers square off in the matches beginning Tuesday. That is why the P. G. A. is popularly identified as the blood-and-money event of golf.

Hagen Is Back.

This year's event will be no exception to that theory, and Mr. Shute has been around long enough to be aware of same. He had to rear back and toss an eagle three to win the 1936 championship from braw Jamie Thomson, who happens to register from Shawnee. Last year, Denny was forced to put on a champion's finish to catch and lick Harold [Jug] McSpaden, the confident Boston pro who has to be shown that he is not quite the best match player that ever flicked a niblick. It took Shute 37 holes last May to convince Master McSpaden.

The field this year will be one of the best in the history of the tournament. There is the presence of the man generally credited with having done more for professional golf than any other living swinger in the business. He is Walter Hagen of Detroit, five times winner of the championship. Two years ago the Haig failed to make the qualifying grade at Pinehurst. Shortly after that he left on a world tour with Joe Kirkwood and did not return until this spring, thus missing the Pittsburgh tournament.

Shute vs. Guldahl.

In addition to Hagen, there will be one Gene Sarazen, a farming fellow from Brookfield Center, Conn., who has managed to harvest three P. G. A. titles in his time. Also present are Ralph Guldahl of Madison, N. J., and Dick Metz of Chicago, champion and runner-up for the recent national open crown. Guldahl is currently the hottest medal player in world golf with having won the national for the second straight year and the western open for the third time in a row.

Ralph has admitted for the last few years that match play never quite was his forte, and recently lost a special argument with Shute. He opined after his defeat that he would like a longer match over a neutral course. Shawnee provides him with that, even unto its par three eighteenth, which is becoming known as a four putt green, and there are those who would like to see a Shute-Guldahl battle come Saturday, to settle the question of who is the world's greatest golfer.

Utah Golfers Lead in Trial for Western

South Bend, Ind., July 9.—[Special.]—Two Utah golfers, Ed Kingsley and Ven Savage, are setting the pace in warmup rounds for the 39th annual western amateur golf tournament which opens at the Chain-o'-Lakes course here Tuesday.

Kingsley, Utah state champion, shot a 68 today, three under par, to equal the course competitive record set by Willie Goggin. This followed his 70 of Thursday. His fellow townsman from Salt Lake City, Savage, turned in a 73, two over perfect figures, in his warmup. Savage is the trans-Mississippi champion, having beaten Kingsley in the finals.

The course is not being tightened for the amateurs, 150 of whom are expected to enter before the first threesome tees off Tuesday morning. While the back tees will be used, fairways have been left at normal width and grass in the roughs is not excessively tall.

Wilford Wehrle, defending champion, heads a group of eight Racine, Wis., golfers, five of whom combined to win the Yule cup given annually to the country club with the lowest five man total in the Wisconsin state amateur tourney. Wehrle is Badger champion.

AMATEUR PILOTS LEAD IN NEW YORK OUTBOARD RACES

Geneva, N. Y., July 9.—[U. P.]—Two ranking amateur drivers, Clinton Ferguson of Waban, Mass., and Arthur Wullschleger, New Rochelle, N. Y., took the lead today in the annual New York state outboard races on Seneca lake. Ferguson, with two thirds, tallied a score of 825 in the high point standings, and Wullschleger, with a second and a fourth, had 794 points.

The amateurs turned in the best all-around performance of the day, climaxing the afternoon with a 43-mile an hour speed in class C. This event was won by James W. Mullen, Richmond, Va., Tommy Tyson, of Philadelphia, Pa., beat Wullschleger out of class A honors on an elapsed time basis after each had won a heat.

Peru Minister's Son Scores 'Mouse in One'

Peru, Ind., July 9.—[Special.]—Howard Tunmer, son of the Rev. R. E. Tunmer of the Peru Presbyterian church, read of a golfer's drive striking a bird in flight, and then he went to the Peru municipal golf course and scored a "mouse in one." It happened on the fourth hole. Tunmer found a field mouse lying stunned beside his ball after the drive. The mouse recovered and scampered to its hole.

Heldman Wins in First Round of New York Tennis

MEXICO WILL NAME THREE MAN DAVIS CUP TEAM

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, July 9.—[U. P.]—The Mexican Lawn Tennis association announced today that a team of three players would represent Mexico in the North American zone Davis Cup eliminations starting July 19 at Kansas City, Mo., against Australia.

The team will be composed of Eugenio Tapia, Daniel Hernandez and a third player who will be selected later.

The winner of the best of five match series—four singles and one doubles—will meet the winner of the Canada-Japan series in the zone finals. The North American winner plays the European winner for the right to challenge United States for the cup in September.

The Mexico-Australia series will be played at Kansas City because Australia played in Mexico City last year and did not like the climate. This year the Australians refused to play there.

ANDRES RETURNS TO FAIR GROUNDS RACING TODAY

32 Drivers Will Seek New Track Record.

Big car racing returns to Chicago again today when stars of the dirt tracks race on the Fair Grounds speedway.

Headed by a field of Indianapolis money winners, Promoter Carl Stockholm will offer an eight race program, including a main event of 50 laps and a special match race between Jimmy Snyder and Duke Nalon, both of Chicago.

A field of 32 cars will be available for the various races. Time trials will start at 12:30 o'clock and the racing at 2:30. Track activities will be under the direction of Ted Doeschler, new zone supervisor for the contest board of the American Automobile association.

Andres Returns to Racing.

The afternoon will mark the first appearance of Emil Andres since he was injured in the Indianapolis race last Memorial day in an accident that cost the life of a spectator. Andres is anxious to test his nerve following his narrow escape. Another sidelight will be the appearance of Ted Johnson at the wheel of the Buenger Special No. 44, the car in which Ray Pixley met death two years ago on the Roby track and which was driven by George Connor to a world dirt track record in Springfield the same season.

The first race of the season on the Fair Grounds track, early in June, attracted about 12,000 fans. Promoter Stockholm is making arrangements for at least 3,000 more today.

Practice on the track has been going on steadily for the last three days. Drivers will be shooting at the track mark and for a $200 prize awaiting the pilot who lowers the existing record.

Track Is Dustless.

More than 13,000 gallons of oil have been placed on the racing surface, and recent heavy rains have beaten it down so that the track is dustless and of almost concrete hardness. A canvas wall has been placed in front of the fence before the grand stand and bleachers so that oil particles will not be thrown on the spectators as the cars skid and slide into the turns.

Among the pilots who will race today are Ted Horn, for the last three years high among the Indianapolis money winners; Chet Gardner, Billy Devore, Louis Tomei, Frank Wearne, Tony Willman, Bob Sall, George Connor, Brisko and Snyder.

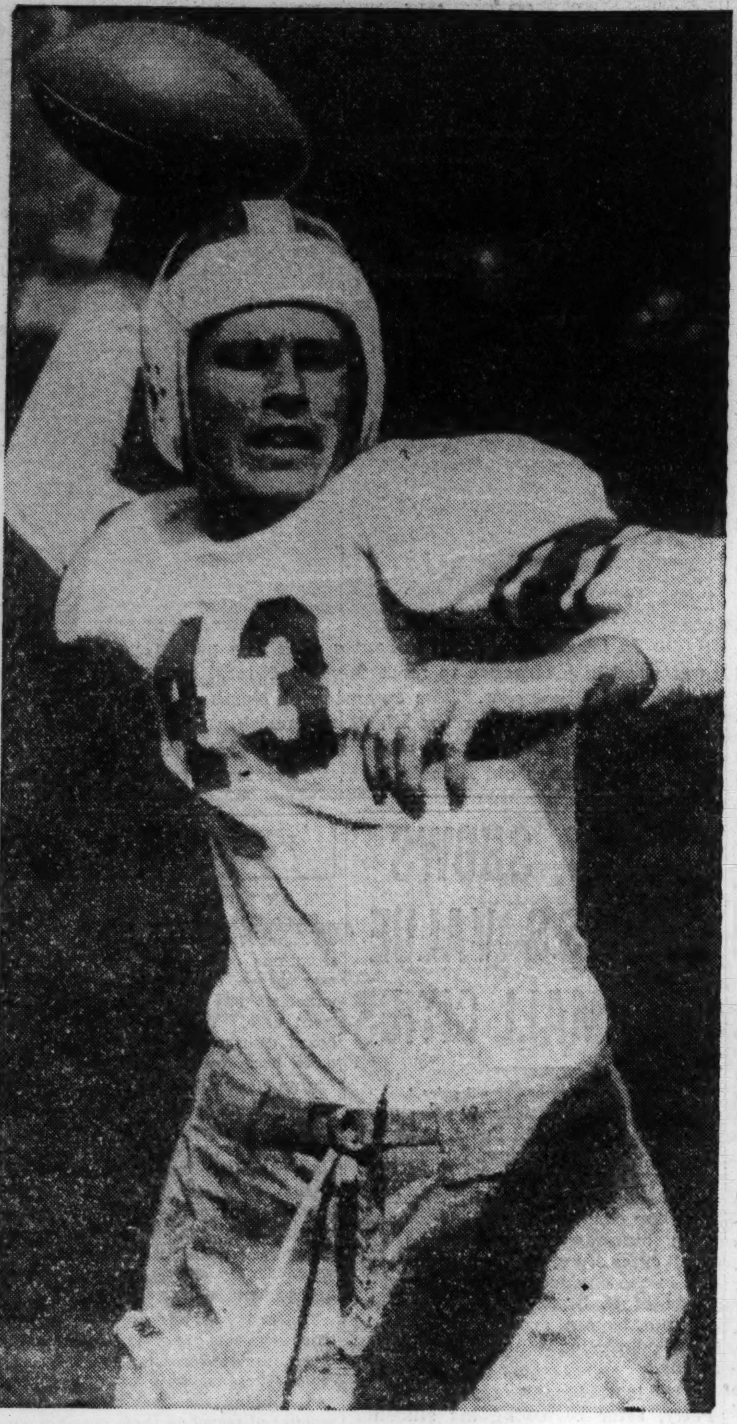
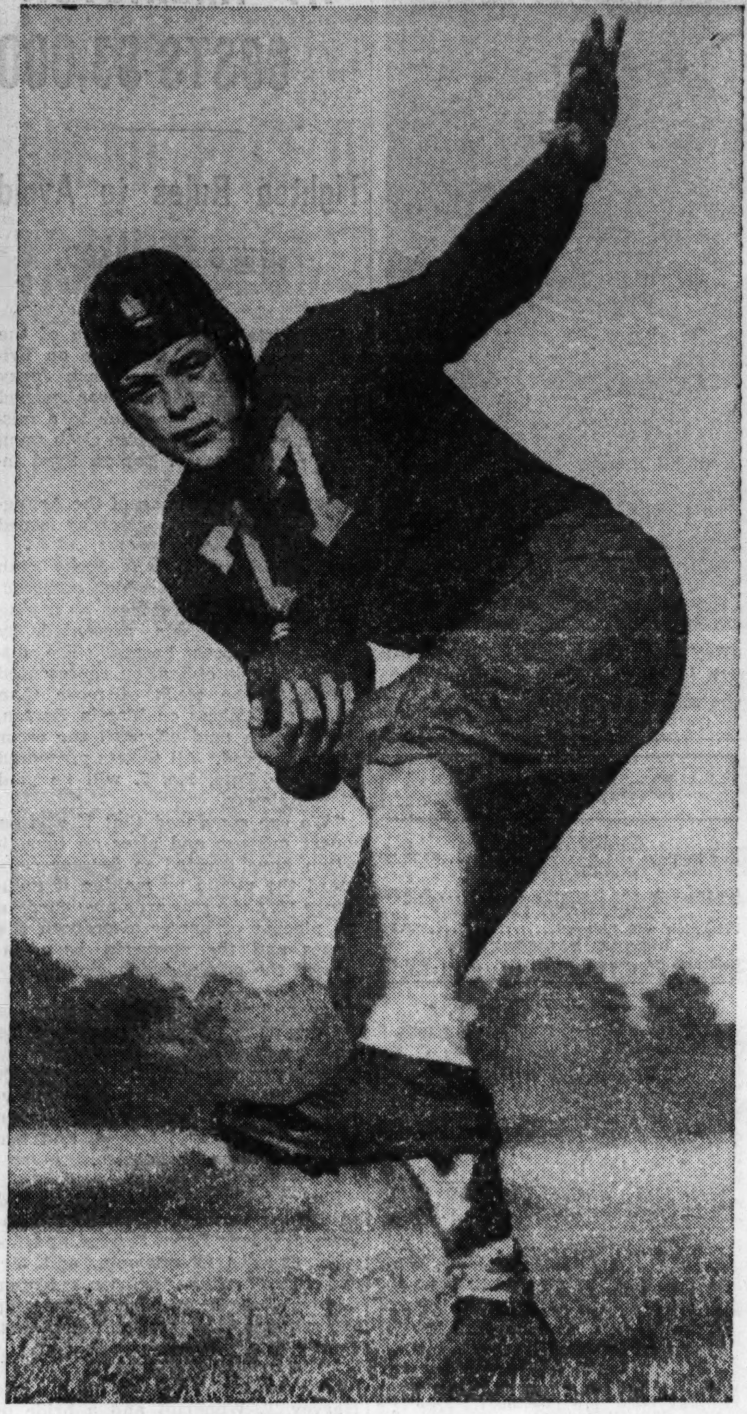
SOME OF 1937'S BEST! WILL THEY START AGAINST PRO CHAMPIONS?



Nation-wide balloting by fans starts today to pick the college All-American squad which will battle the Washington Redskins the night of Aug. 31 in Soldiers' field. The game is the fifth in the series sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Photos of these stars of last fall may recall their gridiron exploits. Here is Jack Robbins, great Arkansas quarter back, an accurate passer. [Associated Press Photo.]



Corbett Davis, Indiana full back, achieved the highest honors in Big Ten football when he was chosen the player most valuable to his team in the conference. He received the Tribune Silver football trophy in recognition of the honor. Davis, from Lowell, Ind., is recognized as one of the greatest players ever to wear a Hoosier uniform. Cecil Isbell of Purdue was only a point behind Davis in the trophy vote.

Frank Patrick, f. b. [Pittsburgh] Perry Schwartz, end [California] Rudy Gmitro, h. b. [Minnesota.] Chuck Sweeney, end [Notre Dame] Andy Puplis, q. b. [Notre Dame] Cecil Isbell, h. b. [Purdue] Joe Kilgrow, f. b. [Alabama] Don Heap, h. b. [Northwestern]

A RACE BECOMES UNFIXED; A FIGHT; POLICE; $200 FINE

Springfield, Mass., July 9.—(AP)—A fine of $200 was imposed today in District court on Alfred E. Van Ree, Texas horse trainer, on a charge of assaulting John A. Carter, Lexington, Ky., horse owner, in what District Attorney T. F. Moriarty described as a dispute after an attempt to "fix" a race at Agawam Park.

In urging a jail sentence, Moriarty told the court that Carter and Van Ree "reached agreement that in a certain race at Agawam Park in which both men had horses entered, Van Ree's horse was to win." The agreement was broken, the district attorney said, when Van Ree's horse staggered "at the far turn" and Carter's jocky rode to victory.

"With respect to the cause of this assault," the prosecutor declared, "Carter is no better than the defendant and, in my opinion, both men were engaged in fixing races and should not be allowed to have any connection with any race track anywhere."

Nation Opens Balloting for All-Americans

Profits of the game, as always, will be divided equally among the United Charities, Catholic Charities, and Jewish Charities of Chicago. Net proceeds of the 1937 contest approximated $33,000.

Last year's player poll produced 5,036,466 votes. The eleven who headed the list and started the game were: Ends, Gaynell Tinsley, Louisiana State, and Merle Wendt, Ohio State; tackles, Edwin Widseth, Minnesota, and Averill Daniell, Pittsburgh; guards, Steve Reid, Northwestern, and Max Starcevich, Washington; center, Earl Svendsen, Minnesota; quarter back, Vernon Huffman, Indiana; half backs, Robert La Rue, Pittsburgh, and John Drake, Purdue; full back, Sam Francis, Nebraska.

The series between the college and professional stars stands a tie. In 1934 the All-Stars held the Bears to a scoreless tie. The Bears won, 5 to 0, in 1935, and the 1936 game, with the Detroit Lions, representing the professional league, ended 7 to 7. The collegians evened up last year by beating the Green Bay Packers, 6 to 0, on Sammy Baugh's pass to Gaynell Tinsley.

CUBANS STRIVE FOR FIRST VICTORY IN POLO TODAY

The Cuban Army and 124th Field Artillery polo teams will meet in the final match of their three game series this afternoon on the No. 3 stadium field of the Oak Brook Polo club, York road and 22d street, Hinsdale. The game starts at 4 o'clock.

The Cuban riders will be seeking their first victory over the Chicagoans in seven games. They lost the series in Havana last winter, tied the 124th team in an exhibition match in Soldiers' field last Sunday night, and lost the first two games of their current series at Oak Brook.

Personnel of Teams.

Lieut. William D. Fergus and Leon Mandel, who have played every minute in every game against the Cubans in Havana and Chicago, will be in the starting lineup for the Artillery. Capt. William S. Everett and Lieut. Don J. Rice will complete the team.

Led by Eduardo Hardie-Brown, the Cuban lineup includes Aurelio Collazo, Capt. Manuel Larrubia, and Lieut. Juan Capote.

Take Light Workouts.

Both teams took light workouts at Oak Brook yesterday afternoon.

The Cuban marine band, which is touring this country, will give a concert in connection with today's game.

STAGEHAND WINS $12,950 EMPIRE CITY HANDICAP

New York, July 9.—[Special.]—Smashing onward in an electrifying rush, Stagehand came from last place today to win the $12,950 Empire City handicap in track record time and more firmly establish his claim to the 3 year old championship which hangs in the balance.

Favorite at 8 to 5 despite his top impost of 124 pounds, the winner of the Santa Anita handicap and the Santa Anita Derby, picked up the whole field one by one from the top of the stretch to the wire and won going away by half a length. His time of 1:51 equaled the track record held jointly by Dalmatian, Roamer, Yellow Hand, and Top Row.

Sends Stagehand Through Hole.

At the sixteenth pole there still were three horses ahead of Stagehand, but Jocky Jack Westrope found a hole and through it charged the amazing son of Sickle and Stagecraft, who is the leading money winning thoroughbred of the year. The $9,450 which was the winner's share of the purse brought Stagehand's 1938 winnings to $151,760.

Fighting Fox, returning to competition since his defeats in the Derby and Preakness, was second to the wire, another half length before Galapas, who made all the early pace. Thanksgiving was fourth, Mythical King fifth, and then came Stormscud, which caused such a surprise in conquering Stagehand's fleet stablemate, The Chief, in Delaware last Saturday. Consul and Gentle Savage then finished.

The break saw the field away to a good start, with Galapas first to show in front. Fighting Fox and Thanksgiving also were close to the pace, and Mythical King not far away. Stagehand brought up the rear.

Field Spread Out.

In the backstretch run Westrope tried to get position, but the field was widespread in front of him. Galapas in the meantime had opened up two lengths, while Fighting Fox, Mythical King, and Thanksgiving were ranged in that order out from the rail and lapped on each other.

When the far turn was reached these three moved at the same time. They closed the gap between Galapas' heels and their noses, but Galapas still led as the swing was made for the top of the stretch. At this point Mythical King faltered. It was about here that Westrope saw the opening ahead.

Another few jumps and Galapas shortened stride so that Fighting Fox and Thanksgiving ranged up on him. But going fastest of all and down toward the fence was the charging Stagehand.

Momentarily Fighting Fox was in front. Then the powerful rush of Stagehand brought him level. He was giving Fighting Fox four pounds, but he went on from the Belair colt easily and won going away.

MARICA WINS HANDICAP

Wilmington, Del., July 9.—(AP)—Marica, Thomas D. Taggart's black daughter of Epinard, proved herself the best race mare of the Delaware Park meeting if not the best of the season today when she won the $10,000 added Sussex handicap, feature of the closing day program.

Although Jocky Bobby Dotter held her under close restraint most of the way, Marica smashed the track record, beat out Thomas Healey's Tatterdemalion by a neck and administered a sound beating to Esposa, her leading rival among the mares. Packing top weight of 125 pounds, Marica ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 3-5, three-fifths of a second faster than Calumet Dick's old track mark. She was an even money favorite, returning $4 on each $2 win ticket.

William Woodward's Isolator finished third, three lengths behind the leaders, barely beating out First Alarm for show money. Esposa and War Magic, the latter coupled with Marica in the betting, brought up the rear.

REX EQUINUS, away slowly, worked his way up gradually, came to the outside in the stretch and weakened after wearing down FOOLEM but withstood FARQUHAR'S rush. Latter, also sluggish in the early stages, began to improve his position after a half mile, also came out in the stretch and, closing with determination and good speed, was wearing down the winner. TONEY BOY, well placed from the start, held on with good courage in his even effort.

CONTRAST, away fast and having good speed, took command while still under steady restraint, drew into a long lead gradually and without need of strong urging and won with something left. MISS PONNE, never far back but raced wide much of the trip, swerved to the inside in the stretch and held on well. CHINA BOY began to move up approaching the turn but could not get to the leaders, yet held on creditably. GAY WATER passed tired horses in the stretch.

EPIDOR, quick to begin and having keen speed, drew away from COURT COUNSEL under vigorous riding, was steadied on the stretch turn continued strongly when straight in stretch but was ridden out. TECHNICIAN, under energetic riding from the start, held on with good courage and but for swerving in the stretch might have finished closer up. COURT COUNSEL moved up with a rush in the first eighth, sustained high speed to the last three-sixteenths, then tired.

Winner trained by J. Grossman. Went to post at 3:53½. At post 1 minute. Start good for all but Glasby, from gate. Won handily; place driving.

PLEA forced the early pace under stout restraint, responded to hand riding when racing around MACAWLEE on the stretch turn, quickly opened up a commanding advantage when straight in stretch, but was kept in light urging to the end. GETALONG, nicely placed early dropped back slightly when approaching the turn, was slow to respond to pressure, but rallied in the stretch and closed fast. MISS SAXON, badly outrun for more than three-quarters, closed with a rush.

GRIM REAPER, reserved off the pace, but never far back, took command quickly when ready and, sustaining fine speed, held sway thereafter. GALSUN, forced to lose much ground, rallied to good urging after about three-quarters, and wore down CARDINALIS in the closing strides. Latter well in hand for about five-eighths, was in close quarters briefly entering stretch went with determination when clear, but could not withstand the leaders.

BEAU JAMES away fast and always clear, forced a fast early pace under a light hold, raced into command gradually after reaching the final quarter and tired, but held ALLEGRO safe. Latter, also quick to begin, dropped back slightly when rounding the turn but rallied to strong urging in the last three sixteenths and was going resolutely at the end. YALE O'NINE, away well but forced back when in close quarters before reaching the turn, failed to secure room between horses on the stretch turn, was slow to rally when clear but responded with good energy in the last eighth and finished strongest of all.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Claiming. Four year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

AL AU FEU, away slowly and allowed to remain far back in the early stages, began to move up while racing wide on the turn, continued on the outside while racing gamely and under severe pressure the final three-sixteenths and appeared ready to draw out. UNEASY, under a strong hold for almost three-quarters responded well when called upon and also stood an extended drive with good courage but failed to hold the winner. PRINCE TORCH was a contender from the start and held on well.

EIGHTH RACE—Mile and three-sixteenths. Claiming. Four year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, Stepinanna, $425; Jewelry, $425; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Cleland, Jewelry trained by W. Weber. Went to post at 5:57. At post ¼ minute. Start good. Won driving, place same.

STEPINANNA, taken back repeatedly while being reserved off the pace, responded with good energy when shaken up on the stretch turn, stood a drive gamely but just lasted to deadheat with JEWELRY. Latter, also restrained off the pace and raced very wide the final half mile, challenged gamely under good handling and got up to deadlock STEPIANNA in the final stride. SALLAM, under steady reserve for three-quarters, took command when called upon but weakened in the last eighth, yet outstayed REALONE.

PLACING ERROR AT ARLINGTON COSTS $3,000

Tighten Rules to Avoid Future Mistakes.

The mistake in the placing of the third horse in the last race on Friday cost the Arlington Park Jocky club more than $3,000, it was learned yesterday. The judges, due to a mistake in reading the saddle cloth numbers, placed Martin Barton third instead of Merry Pete.

"The Arlington Park Jocky club regrets the confusion which occurred. The club has made redress by paying off on the tickets presented by patrons on both horses. The discharge of this obligation represented a loss to the track of more than $3,000, the tickets on Martin Barton, No. 9, being paid off until the error was discovered. All tickets presented on Merry Pete, No. 5, will be paid off completely.

"We are convinced that it was an honest mistake and after an investigation have decided to further safeguard the public by making it mandatory that the stewards now confirm the placing of horses after both the judges and the stewards have inspected the official finish picture."

Sun and society combined to make the day at Arlington Park one of the most brilliant of the year. An early arrival was the prima donna, Edith Mason, just back from her honeymoon. She was accompanied by her husband, William Ragland, and her daughter, Graziella Polacco.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Appleton had as their guests the mayor of Gothenburg, Sweden; Ernst Jungen and his wife, Charles Chindbloom, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Appleton. Mayor Edward J. Kelly joined the party for the running of the Hyde Park stakes.

Mrs. Harry Hunsberger, née Alberta Woodruff, daughter of the late Harvey T. Woodruff and a bride of only a few weeks, went to Arlington Park yesterday to celebrate her birthday. She was 28 and so her daily double selection was, of course, two-eight. Down they came, rewarding her to the tune of $473.20. The amazed bridegroom beamed his approval.

Tom Taggart wore a long face at Arlington when his colt Yale o' Nine finished only third in the Hyde Park stakes. His expression turned quickly to a smile when he heard the loud speaker announce that his champion mare Marica had just won the $10,000 Sussex handicap at Delaware park.

Stepinanna and Jewelry were responsible for many of Arlington's visitors arriving home late for dinner. They ran a dead heat in the last race.

The judges were so concerned over the boner of Friday when a horse that finished eighth was erroneously placed third that they called for spy glasses before they would give a decision.

GOLFER MISSES 30 FT. PUTT; IT'S MONKEY SHINES

H. E. McDonald of 826 Forest avenue, Wilmette, missed a thirty foot putt yesterday afternoon. He was at the ninth hole of the Kildeer Country club golf course at Long Grove in southern Lake county.

As the ball, hit straight and true, ran toward the hole, a monkey raced on the course and picked it up. The irate McDonald threw another ball at the monkey. The monkey dropped the first ball and bit the second one in half.

McDonald and his party adjourned to the clubhouse for refreshment. The monkey followed them. Other members tried to capture the animal by enticing it with sweet rolls and Tom Collineses. But it evaded them. When last seen it was scampering into a cornfield. Peace was restored at the country club.

Anyhow, that was their story.

Irving Park Baptist Nine Triumphs, 7 to 3

Irving Park Baptist defeated First Christian Reformed, 7 to 3, yesterday in Columbus Park, in a Church A. A. of Chicago Baseball league game. Central Avenue Baptist won in sixteen innings, 6 to 4, over Trinity Evangelical Lutheran at Fullerton and Long avenues.

Galento Knocks Out Two Sparmates in Drill for Lewis

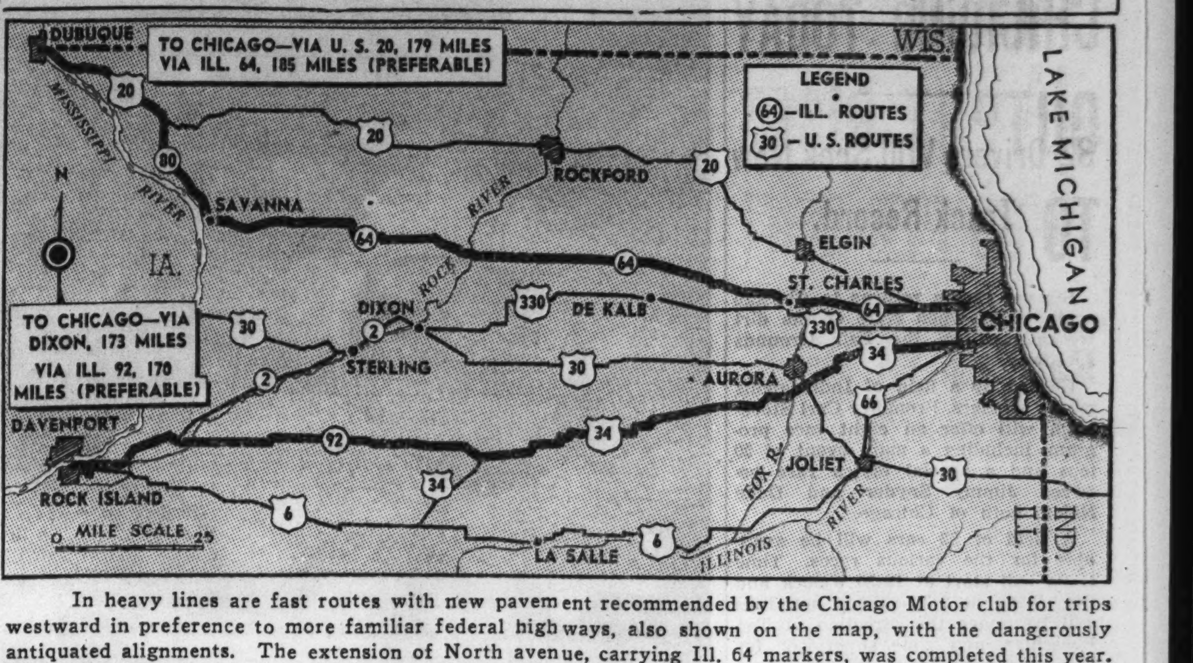
Musicians Too Fast for Ravinia; Win at Softball

Five hundred north shore residents gathered at Ravinia yesterday to watch the annual softball game between the Chicago Symphony orchestra team and the executive committee of the Ravinia festival. The musicians won, 12 to 4.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Try These Fast Motor Routes to West



In heavy lines are fast routes with new pavement recommended by the Chicago Motor club for trips westward in preference to more familiar federal highways, also shown on the map, with the dangerously antiquated alignments. The extension of North avenue, carrying Ill. 64 markers, was completed this year. This is the second year for Ill. 92 to furnish a better route to Davenport than U. S. 6 or U. S. 30 and Ill. 2 through Sterling. It might be noted that the U. S. 30 markers have been moved to new pavement this year with the old Lincoln highway pavement through De Kalb now carrying U. S. 330 signs to Dixon.

SURVEY SHOWS BYPASS VALUE TO SMALL CITIES

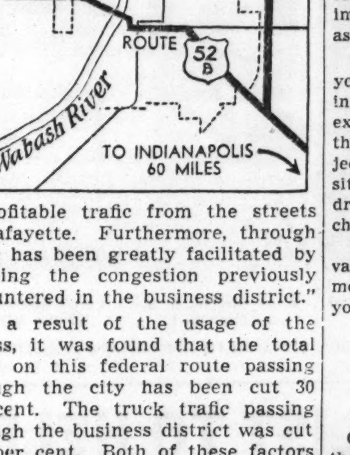
Lafayette, Ind., July 9.—A survey supervised by Ben H. Petty, professor of highway engineering, Purdue university, shows the benefits of through travel and to the local community from the construction of bypasses for main highways around towns and small cities along the route. Five seniors in the engineering school made a study of U. S. 52 trafic before and after a bypass around this city of 27,000 population went into service this spring.

"It is evident," said Professor Petty, after reviewing his students' trafic count, "that the bypass has removed much of the undesirable and unprofitable trafic from the streets of Lafayette. Furthermore, through trafic has been greatly facilitated by avoiding the congestion previously encountered in the business district."



As a result of the usage of the bypass, it was found that the total trafic on this federal route passing through the city has been cut 30 per cent. The truck trafic passing through the business district was cut 58.5 per cent. Both of these factors reduced the accident risk in the city and improved accommodations for local trafic and parking.

Although the use of the bypass at the time of the counts had not been fully developed because work was still under way on dirt shoulders and slopes, nevertheless 67.5 per cent of all trucks and 65.2 per cent of all foreign [not Indiana] passenger cars approaching Lafayette on U. S. 52 used the bypass rather than to enter the city.

In comparison with similar counts a year ago, it was found that passenger car trafic in U. S. 52 is up 2.44 per cent from a year ago while truck trafic is down 17 per cent. For all motor vehicles, there is little change in the volume in the last year. It's an increase of .06 of 1 per cent.

The students who worked on this survey as a thesis project were J. H. Barth, D. O. Epp, R. M. Kimmel, N. H. Shea and W. H. Warrick.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The Chicago Automobile Trade association, through arrangements with Edward J. Gorman, deputy vehicle commissioner, is having posters placed in the quarters of dealer members which contain a list of safety lane inspection stations in Chicago and the new schedule of inspection periods.

Under the new system motor vehicles will be inspected on a basis of the city vehicle license number. Certain numbers will be assigned to certain months and the car owner will have his car inspected in the month in which his number falls.

S. B. Shapiro, general manager of the association, said the new method greatly simplifies the inspection problem.

Kenosha, Wis., has made itself ready to handle wrecks and other disasters with a Dodge one ton panel truck equipped with oxygen tanks, chemical extinguisher, fire axes, life lines, grappling hooks, gas masks, hydraulic jacks, flood lights, and other devices. Boy Scouts of the town have organized themselves into a first aid corps. They use the truck for the purpose of spreading the safety message, training persons in first aid, and developing leadership to serve in the event of disaster.

Dean A. Walters, service manager for Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., says that burned points on a spark plug, a carburetor that is out of adjustment, or an ignition system that is not properly set will lose money for a car owner as fast as a hole in his change pocket. He suggests regular engine inspections by the dealers to avoid trouble.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

ON NORTH WOODS TRAILS.

Eagle River, Wis., June 30.—Your issue of June 27 showing several pictures of situations on roads in this region that may prove dangerous to careless city motorists has stirred considerable comment here. Yesterday the Vilas county board discussed the article and referred it to this department.

While the intent of your warning to city motorists may be sincerely constructive, many here feel that the reporter has treated the subject too harshly in view of certain facts. For instance, although the Hemlock bridge shown is a hazard, we are improving this situation by constructing a new bridge alongside. The new bridge will be completed this year. To my knowledge there have been no accidents at this site.

The one way bridge shown across the trout stream is probably the United States forest service crossing over Nine Mile creek. These back woods trails are narrow and winding for the reason that the amount of travel on them does not warant a high type highway. Narrow, winding roads, while potential hazards to reckless drivers, are choice drives for the careful vacationist. You will probably agree that if these roads were widened and built to high type, removing turns and blind spots, the region would be shorn of much of its natural charm.

Vilas county has a good trafic record. Granting us five days of grace from date, we shall have passed through a full calendar year without a fatality on our highways. Trafic laws are being enforced. Violators are treated fairly and impartially and in as courteous a manner as each individual situation will permit.

While we appreciate the consideration you have extended this region by warning city motorists of certain hazards that exist for those who are careless, we trust that in the further treatment of this subject it will be shown that these existing situations, while hazards to the careless driver, go to make up the beauty and charm of this county.

We are doing our best to make this vacation region a safe place for city motorists to enjoy themselves. Thank you for your coöperation.

H. S. TUTTLE,
Commissioner, Vilas County Highway Department.

TWO RIGHT TURNS MAKE A LEFT TURN.

Chicago, July 7.—Note with interest the photographic diagram of the intersection of North avenue and Mannheim road appearing in a recent SUNDAY TRIBUNE. This corner has been bothering every one ever since the work was completed.

AN ATTRACTIVE TOUR.

Alpena, Mich., July 6.—We have followed with interest your stories on weekend tours into Michigan and are herewith extending to you an invitation to come into this section and look us over.

It has often occurred to us that an excellent vacation for Chicago tourists would be the drive up 31 to Mackinaw—down U. S. 23 through Alpena, and along the Lake Huron shore into Detroit—thence back across 112 through the Irish hills into Chicago.

You may know that the road from Alpena to Detroit is now entirely paved and for one-half the distance winds in and out of the hills in full view of Lake Huron.

Why not come up and pay us a visit?

CONVICTIONS FOR TRAFIC OFFENSES SHOW INCREASE

BY HAL FOUST.

The number of convictions for the more serious trafic offenses in Chicago during the first six months of this year was 38 per cent higher than during the same period of 1937, according to figures released last week by Joseph Gill, clerk of the Municipal court. Trafic accidents involving either a death or a personal injury in these same periods dropped 15.1 per cent.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, yesterday said that there is a relationship between this increase in convictions and the concurrent decrease in accidents. He cited the figures as an example of the benefits of intelligent enforcement of trafic regulations.

Police Doing a Good Job.

"Violations which escape the notice of the police are conspicuous to lay witnesses," said Mr. Hayes. "It might give the impression to a casual witness that the police do not arrest unless there is an accident. The statistics, however, show that the police are doing a good job and are improving in their efficiency."

The following table shows the arrests and the convictions for the more serious offenses during the first halves of 1937 and 1938:

	1937		1938
	Arrest.	Convict.	Arrest.	Convict.
Speed	11,124	8,987	16,300	13,511
Passing street car	458	332	208	165
Reckless	2,443	885	2,061	702
Hit-run	286	105	229	122
Drunk	423	242	322	143
	14,734	10,551	19,120	14,643

It will be noted that the ratio of convictions to arrests during the first half of 1937 was approximately 72 per cent while this ratio for the first six months of 1938 was approximately 76 per cent.

Irate Drivers File Charges.

The reckless driving charge is the only classification in which a majority of the arrests followed accidents. After a collision irate drivers are inclined to file charges against each other. The injured person frequently refuses to prosecute after he has been compensated for his damages, regardless of whether the other party was guilty of a statutory offense. In these cases the policemen can't testify against the defendants because they didn't witness the mishaps.

For less serious offenses summonses are reutrnable to the cafeteria court and fines can be paid by mail or in person in the city hall without the formality of a trial. This classification also showed an increase during the last six months. From Jan. 1 to July 1 of this year 53,123 paid in the cafeteria court, as compared with 45,159 during the first half of 1937, according to Mr. Gill.

No Conviction in Many Cases.

In the first six months of last year 378 persons were killed and 10,644 persons were injured in 9,026 accidents in Chicago. During the same six months of 1938 there were 295 killed and 9,030 injured in 7,660 accidents in the city. In a large portion of these mishaps, especially the 70 per cent involving pedestrians, there was no conviction because often it was not even an arrest because drivers were not at fault. Heavy trafic on surface streets involves a risk when all drivers are trying to obey the rules.

CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT RISES TO 33 PER CENT

Rate Up 9.1 Points as Demand Gains.

Better demand for steel products was reflected yesterday in the scheduled rise for this week of 9.1 points in steel ingot production in the Chicago district. The estimate, by Dow-Jones & Co., placed scheduled production for the district at 33.3 per cent of theoretical capacity. At the same time it was disclosed that the Pittsburgh district's output is scheduled for a substantial boost, and the United States Steel corporation reported an increase in shipments for June over May.

Although part of the increase in Chicago output is accounted for by last week's holiday shutdown, comparative figures indicate that the rise also reflects increased demand. The scheduled output for this week is 10.8 points higher than a month ago. It is the highest rate since the middle of November, 1937, except for one week early in April.

Less Than Half of 1937 Rate.

Every mill in the Chicago district has arranged for much higher operations for the coming week. However, production still is less than half the year ago figure of 78.2 per cent of capacity.

Steel observers have been watching Chicago's steel output to see what effect the recent change in the price basing system would have on this district's production. The change, which made base prices at Chicago the same as those at Pittsburgh, has been expected to benefit Chicago, where prices were formerly higher. Steel men said yesterday, however, that the present upturn did not appear to be caused by the price basing change.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company was reported to be anxious to begin soon its $10,000,000 plant improvement program in the Chicago area. The plan was announced last fall, but was deferred because of unfavorable financing conditions and slumping production.

Caused by Changed System.

The program, which includes, increasing capacity for cold rolled tin plate, an additional open harth furnace, and improvements to present open harth plant, are being pushed, it is said, because of changes in the price basing system.

Pittsburgh's rate of production will start tomorrow at about 21 per cent of capacity, up 6 points from the holiday week. The rate there is expected to go higher later in the week, when several furnaces will be added to those in active operation. Some plants at Pittsburgh will be closed down all this week for vacations.

Work is scheduled to begin later in July on materials for a large railway order in the Pittsburgh district. This will be an additional boost to output. Shipments of United States Steel's finished steel products in June increased to 478,057 tons, an increase of 12,976 tons over May.

June Figures Compared.

The June figure showed a drop of 790,493 tons from June shipments last year of 1,268,550 tons. It was below June, 1936, when 886,065 tons were shipped, and June, 1935, when shipments were 578,108 tons. For the six months ended June 30 shipments totaled 3,010,354 tons, against 7,614,274 tons in the first half of last year.

Prices of scrap steel, which had been rising in recent weeks, held steady last week at both Chicago and Pittsburgh. The range at Chicago was $11.50 to $11.75 a ton for No. 1 heavy melting scrap, and at Pittsburgh $13 to $13.50. The increase of about $2.50 a ton in scrap since May has been a result of increased demand by mills. This has been regarded as a barometer forecasting heavier orders for steel products.

J. C. PENNEY'S SALES IN JUNE BELOW YEAR AGO

The J. C. Penney company, operator of a chain of department stores specializing in apparel and textiles, yesterday reported a drop of 8.7 per cent in its June sales from the total for the same month of last year. Sales in June totaled $20,321,626, compared with sales of $22,256,116 in June, 1937. Sales for the first six months this year aggregated $105,295,744, against $115,312,685 in the first half of 1937, also showing an 8.7 per cent decrease.

Lane Bryant, Inc., had total sales in June of $1,178,539, representing a decline of 11.6 per cent from sales of $1,332,450 in June, 1937. Sales figures reported yesterday follow:

Pennsylvania Bankers Ask Tax Facts Be Made Public

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9.—[Special.]—The Dent tax commission, a legislative body which has been studying the effect of Pennsylvania taxes upon the migration of industry to other states, was called upon today by the council of administration of the Pennsylvania Bankers' association to make its findings public immediately. State Senator John H. Dent said recently that the report would not be published until after the November election because he was "afraid the findings might be used for political purposes."

Key Men in Wage Problem

Steel Wages Big Problem for Industry

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The recent cut in steel prices again has raised the question of steel wages. The next few weeks will show, observers believe, whether the industry can sell its products at lower prices and maintain its present wage rates. The problem hinges on whether the reduced prices will bring in sufficient new business to compensate for the reduced prices.

Steel company officials estimate that on a basis of the present low rate of output at the steel mills wages would have to be reduced from 25 to 30 per cent to offset the loss in revenues caused by the price cuts and the ending of price differences at price basing points. Only by obtaining a greatly increased volume of business, steel men say, can an ultimate reduction in wages be avoided.

"Big Steel" Holds Key.

Holding the key to the wage situation is United States Steel corporation, world's largest steel company. Responsibility for wage decisions which will affect the whole structure of American industry rests in the hands of the three comparatively young men who now hold the leadership of United States Steel. These men are: E. R. Stettinius Jr., Chicago born chairman of the board; B. F. Fairless, one time school teacher, the president; and E. M. Voorhees, chairman of the powerful finance committee of the corporation.

It was United States Steel, when Myron C. Taylor was at the helm, that startled the nation by coming to an agreement with the Committee for Industrial Organization in March, 1937, through its signing of a working pact with the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, a C. I. O. union. It had been expected that the radical C. I. O. would get its hardest fight from conservative United States Steel. After United States Steel signed its agreement, the smaller independent companies charged that the corporation had betrayed them in their fight with radical labor and fought alone.

No "Check Off" Provided.

United States Steel's agreement with the C. I. O., which gave the labor organization the right only to speak for its own members and did not provide for a "check off," confirmed a 10 cents an hour wage increase that established a $5 a day minimum wage in the mills. The "check off" is collection of union dues by the company. At the same time the corporation raised its selling prices to offset the effects of the increase.

The corporation went through 1937 without any labor troubles while its smaller rivals fought with the C. I. O. Last February United States Steel renewed its contract with the C. I. O. union, but it was significant that the renewal provided that either side could ask for an "adjustment" of the contract on ten days' notice and if no agreement should be reached the entire 1937 agreement could be ended on 20 days' notice.

Commended on Price Cuts.

President Roosevelt in his recent "fireside talk," although not mentioning United States Steel by name, commended the corporation for having reduced steel prices and commented that the action was especially favorable because it was indicated that the price cuts would not be accompanied by a wage cut. Officials of United States Steel were quick to say the next day that they had made no agreement to maintain wages. And it is known that Philip Murray and other officials of the SWOC had been in New York where they may have talked with the United States Steel officials.

Some steel men declare that if the industry finds it necessary to cut wages, it may be left to the United States Steel to lead the way.

PWA'S DECISION CLEARS WAY FOR POWER PROJECTS

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—A decision on the Public Works administration policy concerning municipal power projects cleared the path today to action on forty-nine applications involving $56,000,000. Disposal of the applications had been delayed pending formulation of the policy, which Administrator Ickes announced yesterday.

Ickes said that PWA would allot funds for municipal power projects to compete with private utilities only when the private firms had refused fair offers for their property. Ickes said that projects for which funds already were allotted would not be affected by the new policy.

INCOME OF ILLINOIS IN YEAR $2,844,423 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES

Springfield, Ill., July 9.—(AP)—The state's income was $2,844,423 more than its expenses during the last fiscal year, Treasurer John C. Martin's office reported today.

For the year ended June 30 receipts were $213,124,745, exclusive of approximately $75,000,000 carried as trust funds, Martin said. Disbursements, also not counting trust funds, were $210,280,322.

The treasury had a regular fund balance of $71,228,243 June 30. The general revenue fund balance was $21,727,499.

Total treasury balances, including trust funds, rose to $138,463,385 during the fiscal year, largely due to new entries aggregating $62,800,000 and representing unemployment insurance trust funds held at Washington, D. C.

Martin's report said that the state's bonded debt was reduced by $11,285,000 during year, with approximately $8,000,000 paid out in interest charges. The total debt now is $191,867,500.

40 CENT DIVIDEND PAYMENT VOTED BY TOBACCO FIRM

The Scotten Dillon company, Detroit tobacco products manufacturer, yesterday declared an interim dividend of 40 cents on its common stock. Previous payments this year were 50 cents in February and 30 cents in May.

Companies declaring usual dividends on common included the Union Oil company of California, S. H. Kress & Co., Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Warts, Ltd., the Emsco Derrick and Equipment company, and the Bank of Toronto.

Usual Payments.
Bank of Toronto, $2.50 q...	Sept 1	Aug 15
Emsco Derrick, 15c q........	Aug 25	Aug 10
Hiram Walker-G-W $1 q.....	Sept 15	Aug 26
S H Kress, 40c q	Aug 1	July 20
Union Oil Calif, 30c q	Aug 10	July 18
Interim Payment.
Scotten Dillon, 40c	Aug 15	Aug 5

[Paid 50c Feb. 15 and 30c May 14.]

In the table, the letter "q" refers to regular quarterly dividends.

EGG CONTRACTS SET 1938 HIGHS; BUTTER LOWER

Another buying wave yesterday carried egg contracts to new high levels for the year on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The strength resulted from reductions of storage reserves, reduced receipts, and adverse production weather in the last week.

October contracts, gaining ⅛ cent a dozen for the day, finished the week 1¼ cents higher at 26¼ cents. Supporting the upswing in futures was a markup of 1¼ cents for the week in cash prices and trade estimates that July 1 reserves were the second smallest for that date on record. Cash prices yesterday were steady, up 1¼ cents for the week.

Butter futures eased ⅛ cent to close at 26¼ for Novembers, off ⅛ cent for the week. Cash butter was unchanged, as the government financed Dairy Products Marketing association did some buying, bringing purchases for the week to 440,000 pounds at Chicago.

BRITISH MONEY AT NEW LOW IN DOLLAR VALUE

The value of British currency declined to the lowest figure at which it has been quoted this year in terms of American money in the foreign exchange market yesterday. The pound closed at $4.92⅞, off ⅜ cent from Friday, and about 3 cents below the figure quoted a week earlier.

Transfer of foreign capital to the United States for investment was said to be a factor in the pound's weakness. The market action, however, led to reports that British authorities may revalue the pound at a lower figure in relation to the dollar. The dollar closed moderately higher in relation to French, Belgian, and Swiss currencies.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported the engagement of $5,129,000 of additional Japanese gold for shipment to this country.

STOCKS CREEP AHEAD; PACE OF TRADING SLOWER

Volume Is Smallest Since Rise Began.

New York, July 9.—[Special.]—Stocks tilted upward today in the dullest Saturday trade since June 18. Total sales dropped to 592,300 shares from 1,472,420 shares a week ago.

Price fluctuations throughout the list were narrow. Observers reported a tendency on the part of some traders to even up over the week-end. The opening was mildly lower, but prices firmed later in the session.

Brokers were encouraged by the tendency of trading to diminish during the early decline and by the ability of prices to work forward following the weakness of the preceding session. Issues traded numbered 643, of which 288 advanced, 182 declined, and 173 finished unchanged.

Steel Shares Recover.

Steel shares replaced early fractional losses with gains running to more than a point in Bethlehem on indications that the operating rate of the industry will improve materially next week. However, changes in the section generally did not exceed fractions.

Aviation shares were brought forward, Douglas setting the pace with a rise of 2¼ points in anticipation of its half yearly report to be published Monday. Boeing, North American, Curtiss-Wright, and United Air Lines also made gains.

After opening a point lower, Chrysler worked above yesterday's final quotation only to slip again in the last hour and wind up with a fractional loss. General Motors was bid up a fraction.

Copper Leaders Firmer.

Kennecott and Anaconda moved up fractionally in the coppers. Railroad shares improved after dipping at the opening. New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern railway were among the more active. Greyhound rose fractionally to a new high.

Utility stocks moved forward, but the gains were limited. Traders displayed a likeness for U. S. Rubber, which at one time was up a point. A part of the gain, however, was chopped off before the final bell.

Unlike the last few Saturdays, the majority of traders today remained away from the financial district. Few customers tenanted the board rooms and many brokers began their week-end on Friday afternoon.

Brokerage Opinion Cautious.

Although trading sentiment found encouragement in such factors as the increase in freight car loadings and the prospects of better June earnings for the roads, brokerage opinion was reported to be cautious. Numerous experts believe that stock prices are due for a substantial technical correction on the down side.

Reflecting this belief, many traders showed a tendency to remain on the sidelines despite the better reports coming in on the general economic situation. Opinion seems to be general that the market will have a few weeks' testing period to see if business catches up with share prices.

PRICES OF BONDS TURN IRREGULAR IN QUIET TRADE

New York, July 9.—(AP)—The bond market charted an irregular course today with trading interest limited in all groups. Railroad loans were the best performers on the upside, but even here gains in most cases were minor, and there were a few soft spots.

Total turnover of $2,971,500 face value was the smallest for a Saturday session in three weeks, and less than half of the $7,685,000 a week ago when all departments of the market were in stride with the vigorous mid-year advance.

Industrials and utilities displayed a steady undertone, but there were a few soft spots. United States governments quited down after a fair turnover in the first hour and closed mixed, 3-32 of a point lower to 5-32 higher with gains slightly outnumbering losses.

With the exception of fair moves in some inactive South American liens, the foreign dollar group was lifeless.

2 WEEKS' CLIMB OF CHICAGO BANK STOCKS HALTED

Chicago bank stocks slackened their pace last week after two weeks of steady climbing. Prices wavered, with some issues losing part of the ground previously gained, but a few continued to rise. First National, which had risen $69 in two weeks, declined about $8 a share from its peak to close at $224 bid, $228 asked. Continental Illinois was $1.50 lower for the week at $72 bid, $73.50 asked.

Chicago Title and Trust rose another $3 to $153 bid, $157 asked, and Harris Trust and Savings climbed $15 in bid prices to finish the week at $290 bid, $300 asked. Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank stock and Merchandise National shares were each $5 higher at the end of the week.

Am. Telephone Has $142,134 May Net Loss

Operating activities of the American Telephone and Telegraph company [parent company only] in May resulted in a net loss of $142,134. This was reported to the federal communications commission yesterday. In May, 1937, the company had net income of $451,681.

Gross operating revenues of the parent company for the month slipped to $8,250,176 from $8,708,726 in May of last year. Net operating income after taxes, but before interest paid and other revenues received, was $534,823, against $1,374,681 in May, 1937.

For the first five months, with gross operating revenues falling to $42,762,562 from $45,547,756 in the like 1937 period, the company's net operating income was down to $4,181,648 from $9,101,774.

National Oats Earns More.

Other interim reports yesterday showed higher earnings for National Oats company, St. Louis, and lower profit for Soundview Pulp company, San Francisco, for periods covered compared with last year's results. Air-Way Electric Appliance reduced its net loss from that of a year ago. A number of utility companies reported higher earnings for the twelve months ended May 31, compared with the preceding twelve months.

Consolidated net profit of National Oats for the six months ended June 30 amounted to an estimated $58,000, against $19,499 in the first half of 1937.

NELSON REFUSES TO SAY HE WILL TAKE WAGE JOB

Donald M. Nelson, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., would not say yesterday whether he had accepted appointment by President Roosevelt as administrator of the federal wage and hour law. Although business associates indicated he may not take the job, another report from Washington said he would accept, but had delayed forwarding his acceptance until certain adjustments at Sears could be made.

Nelson said that any announcement of his decision would come from the President. He also termed "simply a rumor" the report that he was in line for the presidency of Sears within two years.

Nelson formerly served as "No. 3 man" in the NRA, as supervisor of all deputy administrators.

A BARGAIN STOCK TO BUY NOW

We have selected a low-priced stock which appeals to us as being one of the most attractive speculations on the New York Stock Exchange. It is selling much below its prospective value, we believe; and those who buy this stock could make excellent profit during coming months.

The security in question is within the reach of all investors, selling as it does for only $14 a share. The company has greatly improved prospects. Business is expected to expand sharply. Earnings should pick up substantially. The action of the stock indicates much higher prices. In short, this is truly a bargain stock.

King Cotton's Reign Periled by New Goods

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Two million cotton growers, who are producing this season a crop of some 11 million bales, are looking with anxiety on the growing use of rayon, paper, and other substitutes where King Cotton has traditionally reigned. They are troubled, too, by the decline in cotton consumption per capita, which slipped from 27 pounds a year in the 1910-'14 period to 20 pounds in 1935.

Cotton growers know, also, that they have lost heavily in the export market. Foreign countries, chiefly Brazil, Russia, and Egypt, have stepped up their cotton output. Others, including Italy, Germany, and Japan, have greatly expanded their production of synthetic fibers.

As a result this country's share of world cotton exports has fallen since 1929 from 63 to 44 per cent, its share of world cotton production has slipped from 56 to 49 per cent.

America's Share Falls.

The world use of American cotton has fallen from an annual 8,300,000 bales [1924-'29 average] to less than 6,000,000 bales. These figures are based on studies of the bureau of agricultural economics.

What to do? The government's answer, since the AAA was launched in 1933, has been crop reduction, but such a program inevitably means unemployment for cotton workers: pickers, tenants, and gin, warehouse, and dock laborers. It means further encouraging of foreign production. It brings the problem of diverting cotton land to other uses.

The answer of the cotton industry, led by the Cotton Consumption council and the Cotton Textile institute, is to find new uses for cotton, to spur aggressive marketing of cotton products by promotional campaigns, and to push sales abroad.

Rayon and paper are the two important displacers of cotton. Rayon is a synthetic product made from a wood pulp base.

Rayon Output Boosted.

Domestic production of rayon has increased nearly threefold in less than ten years—from 116 million pounds in 1929 to 332 millions in 1937. Today millions of pounds of rayon are being woven in cotton mills. The following figures, compiled by the textile economics bureau for the year 1936 show some of the inroads by rayon into the cotton market.

Hosiery, underwear, gloves	57,000,000	95
Dress goods	145,000,000	50
Linings	29,000,000	80
Bedspreads, tapestries, draperies, etc.	165,000,000	75

Rayon is now being used instead of cotton in high speed heavy duty truck and bus tires, although no appreciable dent has yet been made in tires for passenger cars.

The world production of rayon yarn and staple fiber in 1937 broke all records, amounting to 1 billion 800 million pounds, compared with 1 billion 300 million in 1936, according to the Textile Economics bureau. A breakdown of the output shows that Japan was first with 509 millions, Germany second, the United States third, and Italy fourth.

Three Countries Large Producers.

More than half the world output last year was accounted for by Japan, Germany, and Italy, countries faced with foreign exchange difficulties that make cotton importing difficult and with a lack of domestic supplies of cotton. Rayon is one example of

MANY BUSINESS INDICES REVEAL UPWARD TREND

Trade Pace Gains as Stocks Falter.

Although the stock market faltered last week, many business indicators continued to point upward. Freight trafic climbed to a new 1938 peak. Steel production was scheduled substantially higher for the coming week after the July 4 holiday shutdown. Nearly $100,000,000 of new capital issues were successfully marketed.

Retail sales gained 4 to 10 per cent over the preceding week's volume, Dun & Bradstreet reported. Further evidence of business improvement was indicated in the recall of workers in many lines. Bond Stores, Inc., Rochester clothing makers, announced 3,500 workers had been put back to work after a shutdown last spring.

Shoe Concern Raises Output.

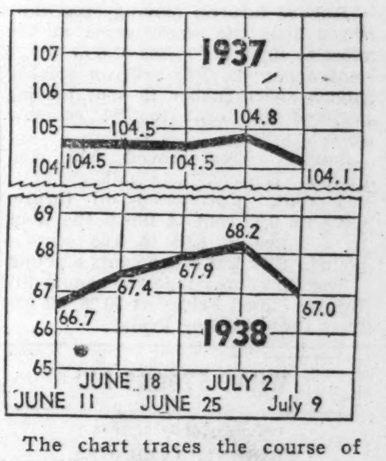
Endicott Johnson corporation, shoe makers, Binghamton, N. Y., stepped up its output. Other factories reëmployed or reopened at a time when seasonal curtailments and vacation shutdowns are ordinarily in effect.

Industrial news was not all on the optimistic side, however. The holiday suspension for July 4 made statistical comparisons with preceding weeks an unsatisfactory gauge of the trend. Power production and automobile output moved lower. The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity slipped to 67 per cent of the 1929-'30 average, from 68.2 per cent in the preceding week. The index gained in the four weeks preceding the holiday. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	67.0	68.2	104.1
Automobile prod	36.0	37.9	114.1
Steel mill act	37.9	38.5	90.3
Cotton mfg act.....	82.7	85.9	127.5
Power prod	106.0	106.7	120.1
Residential bldg	57.5	57.5	64.8
Total car loadings...	60.1	57.8	81.8

General Motors Sales Lower.

The General Motors corporation reported that sales of cars and trucks to consumers in June declined to 76,071 units, compared with 92,593 in May and 153,866 in June, 1937. The General Electric company's orders in the quarter ended June 30 were down to $63,847,423 from $111,518,589 in the corresponding 1937 quarter.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press composite index, and compares the activity with that in corresponding 1937 weeks. The figures are percentages of the 1929-'30 average, which is taken as 100. Last week's decline reflected the holiday shutdowns for July 4, after four weeks' consecutive advance.

The railroads, however, had some good news besides the rise in loadings. The interstate commerce commission granted the eastern roads a rate hike of ½ cent a mile to 2½ cents for passenger fares in coaches. The commission also approved a loan by the Reconstruction Finance corporation of $13,500,000 to the Southern railway for the purchase of new equipment.

New Financing Successful.

The investment demand which met the week's offering of $80,000,000 of securities of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey indicated that the outlook for new financing is good. The offering included $50,000,000 of debentures bearing a coupon rate of 2¾ per cent. This was said to be the lowest coupon rate in history for a long term industrial issue.

Another encouraging note was the report of the member banks of the federal reserve system, which showed the first advance in twenty-one weeks in commercial, industrial, and agricultural loans.

Engineering construction awards for the week gained 15 per cent over the preceding week and 17 per cent over the like 1937 week.

COPPER BUYING SHRINKS AFTER PRICE ADVANCE

Export Metal Quotations Cut Later in Week.

A drop in the demand for copper in both domestic and export markets last week followed markups in spot quotations for the metal and brought a decline in sales and in export prices. This reversal of the previous upward swing of copper prices in recent weeks weakened futures quotations for copper and other nonferrous metals. Other commodity futures moved unevenly during the week.

Major commodity futures markets were closed yesterday for the summer Saturday closing.

Early in the week, after the largest week-end business this year in domestic copper, producers raised the price ¼ cent a pound to 9.75 cents. Export copper quotations moved above the 10 cent mark as orders from abroad were increased.

Buying Exceeds Consumption.

Speculative buying, however, carried the demand substantially ahead of actual consumption, and the export price by yesterday had dipped to 9.65 cents a pound. Last week was the first time in more than a month that the export price was lower than the domestic quotation, which remained steady at 9.75 cents.

The spot price of lead was marked up 0.15 cent a pound to 4.75 cents, East St. Louis, and zinc was unchanged for the week at 4.75 cents a pound.

Copper futures, moving with the spot market, showed strength early in the week, but slipped to close 0.18 cent a pound below the preceding Friday's quotations.

Tin Futures Lower.

Moving in sympathy with the copper market, tin contracts eased late in the week to finish 0.35 to 0.60 cent lower. The spot price of tin dipped ¼ cent a pound, to 42.75 cents.

Lead futures declined 0.06 to 0.11 cent a pound, but zinc contracts, moving against the trend in the nonferrous metals market, gained 0.09 cent.

Hides futures markets were open yesterday. New York contracts, gaining 0.04 to 0.05 cent a pound, were up ½ cent a pound for the week. Chicago hides gained 0.40 cent over the preceding week's close.

Gains for the week were shown in futures contracts for coffee, sugar, cottonseed oil, and wool tops. Contracts for rubber and silk declined, and cocoa was virtually unchanged.

Rubber Futures Erratic.

Rubber futures, moving erratically throughout the week, eased at the close to show net losses of 0.13 to 0.24 cent a pound. The price of smoked ribbed sheet rubber in spot trading declined 0.10 cent to 15.1 cents a pound.

Santos coffee moved 0.15 cent higher. Rio contracts gained 0.01 to 0.11 cent. Cottonseed oil futures were up 0.35 cent to finish the week in a range of 8.60 to 8.69 cents a pound. Silk lost 4 to 5 cents a pound.

CASH GRAIN

Export sales of 500,000 bu American corn were reported yesterday, but the demand for North American wheat was slow. The United Kingdom purchased 275,000 bu Australian and a small amount of Russian wheat.

Shipping sales of cash grain as reported yesterday by Chicago handlers were 17,000 bu wheat, 23,000 bu corn, 16,000 bu oats, 5,000 bu rye, and 3,000 bu barley. Purchases for deferred shipment from the country were 39,000 bu wheat, 78,000 bu corn, and 14,000 bu oats, not including grain bought by Cargill, Inc.

Mills took a few cars of choice quality cash wheat in the sample market yesterday, but elevator interests were the best buyers and were able to make purchases at a decline of ¼@¾c a bu relative to July. Dry No. 2 red winter was ½@1c over, and No. 2 hard 1½@2c a bu over the future. Damp and garlicky wheat sold at a discount.

Basis on cash corn was somewhat easier, with No. 2 yellow 1@1¼c over and No. 3 yellow at July price to ¼c a bu over the future. Basis on cash oats declined ¼c, with No. 2 white 2@2¾c a bu over July.

Estimated receipts of cash grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 599 cars; corn, 245 cars; oats, 29 cars; rye, 6 cars; barley, 4 cars; soy beans, 12 cars. Range of cash grain prices per bushel in leading markets:

WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., July 9.—[Special.]—Substantial quantities of domestic wools were sold by Boston houses during the last week. Prices of original bag fine wools were firm to slightly higher than the week before. Graded territory wools moved more freely and brought advanced prices. Fleece wools were sold at advances ranging up to one cent a pound in the grease. Late quotations on graded combing bright fleeces in Boston were mostly 26@27c in the grease for all grades including fine to low ¼ blood. Prices in cents per pound:

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Soy beans	.84	.83¾	1.15

Hedging pressure and weakness in foreign markets dominated the action of wheat futures yesterday. At no time were prices as high as Friday's close, and final trades were at net losses of 1 cent a bushel.

Expectations of favorable weather for harvesting in the southwest over the week-end and prospects of large receipts Monday had a depressing effect. Although there was some buying of futures which brokers believed was for milling and export interests, the bulk of the support was said to have been received from professional speculators.

Corn Moves Narrowly.

Corn and other grains held within narrow price limits, with net losses largely confined to small fractions of a cent a bushel. Much of the a cent a bushel. A good part of the trade in corn was said to have represented spreading operations between the various deliveries. July corn was bought and September sold at 1½ cents a bushel premium for the latter.

A department of agriculture report, in commenting on black stem rust in spring wheat fields in the American northwest, said the extent of the prospective damage to the crop was problematical and would be determined largely by weather conditions in the next two weeks.

Southwestern flour mills were reported yesterday as having made further liberal sales to the domestic trade. Reports were circulated indicating sales last week were between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 barrels, the latter equal to 18,000,000 bushels of wheat. Daily domestic requirements of flour and commercial feeds, as estimated by the department of agriculture, are about 1,100,000 bushels of wheat.

Wait on Estimate.

There was some evening up in the grain markets yesterday by operators who believe the department of agriculture estimate on the 1938 crops to be issued late Monday afternoon may indicate yields somewhat different from shown by the recent private returns.

Further European demand for American cash corn was reported yesterday with sales in all positions estimated at 500,000 bushels. Reports placed sales all last week as high as 5,000,000 bushels. Comments on the new crop were regarded as generally favorable.

Lard futures closed 12½ to 17½ cents per 100 pounds higher. Gains in the last week ranged upward to 50 cents, largely in sympathy with cottonseed oil.

SHIPPERS FIND SLUMP DEEPER THAN EXPECTED

Use Fewer Cars This Year than They Forecast.

Business was smaller in the second 1938 quarter than the nation's shippers had predicted at the beginning of the period. Tentative figures revealed in a survey completed yesterday indicated that the number of frieght cars loaded by producers or manufacturers of twenty-nine commodities was 26 per cent less than in the corresponding 1937 three months. The forecast of the thirteen regional shippers' advisory boards had indicated the drop from the corresponding 1937 period would be 17 per cent.

At the beginning of the April-June quarter the growers, producers, processors, and manufacturers of the twenty-nine items informed the Association of American Railroads they probably would need 4,989,000 cars in the three months, compared with 6,060,000 loaded in the 1937 period. It appears from the study completed yesterday that only 4,500,000 cars were loaded.

Wrong in First Quarter.

Similarly, it was indicated that shippers underestimated the severity of the slump in the first quarter. The forecast of the thirteen boards, usually accurate to a high degree, indicated 5,084,000 would be needed. This would have been 10 per cent less than the 1937 first quarter loadings. The best guess now is that first quarter volume was 4,000,000 cars, or 27 per cent less than a year earlier. The boards' final compilations will not be available for many weeks.

The fact that the advisory boards' forecast includes only 29 commodities prevents direct comparisons with the weekly reports of the Association of American Railroads on all car loadings. Likewise, the weekly report of the association includes less than carload lots, which the shippers' forecast does not. Thus, in arriving at tentative estimates, it was necessary to ascertain total loadings and then make allowances for less than carload lots and for the difference between the volume of the 29 forecast items and the total of all items. The results are only approximations, but can be depended on to indicate the trend.

Third Quarter Situation.

The apparent wide divergence between the 1938 forecasts and actual freight volume focuses attention on the advisory boards' estimate for the third quarter, made public last Tuesday by the railroads.

The estimate said full carlot shipments will be 19.6 per cent less than a year ago. This would be a marked improvement over the apparent results of the first and second quarters, with their respective showings of 26 per cent and 27 per cent less than the corresponding 1937 quarters.

Shippers say now that the third quarter estimate will prove to be too small. The advisory boards held a meeting in Milwaukee last Thursday. The 300 shippers and railroad men present said the outlook has changed for the better in the last two weeks, and that the estimates will have to be revised upward.

CHICAGO STOCKS TURN IRREGULAR; BELOW WEEK AGO

Chicago stocks, moving unevenly yesterday, finished the week a shade lower than on the preceding Saturday. THE TRIBUNE average of twenty representative stocks closed 0.06 lower for the week at 10.78, off 0.07 for the day.

Yesterday's volume was 14,000 shares, compared with 27,000 on the preceding Saturday. Volume for the five day week totaled 197,000 shares, against 255,000 in the preceding six day week.

Zenith Radio, the stock most actively traded during the week, was the volume leader again yesterday, closing ¼ higher at 23. Thursday it reached a high for the year of 25⅝, and yesterday's close was 3⅞ above the preceding Saturday's price. Aviation Transportation corporation advanced to a new 1938 high of 2¼ before slipping to close unchanged at 2⅛. Bendix was up ½ to 15½, and Marshall Field gained ¼ to 11⅞.

Twenty-one of the fifty-nine issues traded yesterday advanced, nineteen declined, and nineteen were unchanged. For the week forty-three advanced, ninety declined, and thirty-four were unchanged of 167 issues traded.

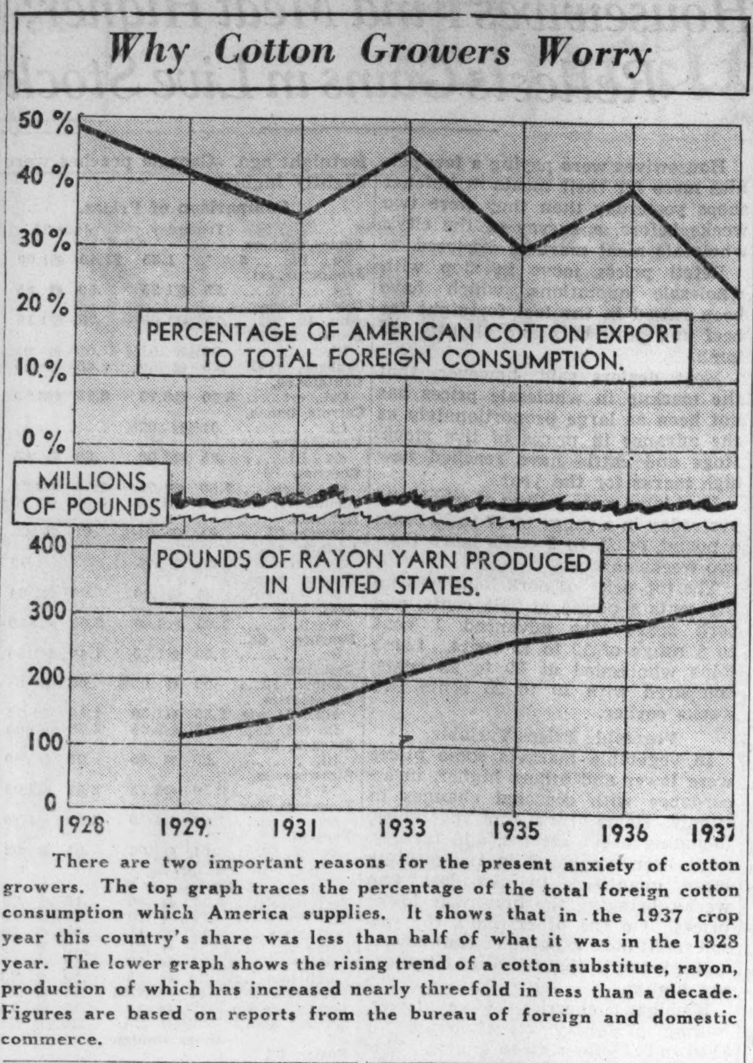
Why Cotton Growers Worry



There are two important reasons for the present anxiety of cotton growers. The top graph traces the percentage of the total foreign cotton consumption which America supplies. It shows that in the 1937 crop year this country's share was less than half of what it was in the 1928 year. The lower graph shows the rising trend of a cotton substitute, rayon, production of which has increased nearly threefold in less than a decade. Figures are based on reports from the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

KING COTTON'S REIGN PERILED BY SUBSTITUTES

their intense drive for economic self-sufficiency.

The other cotton menace, paper, is used because it claims to be cheaper. Cotton men deny this on the ground that paper, used for bags and towels, can be used only once, whereas cotton products are much longer lived. Nevertheless, an example of what paper is doing is found in the fact that in 1925 about 10 per cent of the national cement supply was shipped in paper bags and in 1936 this had been raised to 42 per cent.

Where Is Cotton Turning?

In the face of these changes, where is cotton turning? The Cotton Research foundation, headed by Everett R. Cook, Memphis cotton merchant, already is tackling one problem right at its roots—it is seeking to recapture the rayon market, not by displacing rayon, but by using cotton fiber to produce rayon. The foundation estimates that 75 per cent of the rayon now consumed displaces cotton fiber.

Cotton interests have enlisted research facilities of the Mellon Institute of Pittsburgh and the University of North Carolina to coöperate in laboratory experiments for new cotton uses.

The drive for new markets already is beginning on three fronts—the industrial goods, style and fashion creations, and household uses.

New Market Opened.

In 1935 a cotton inspector hit upon the idea that cotton bales could be wrapped in cotton instead of jute—and an annual market of 100,000 cotton bales was opened. The war on jute bags extended to fertilizer packaging — cotton growers had overlooked a potential market for their own product right on their own acreage, which is the largest fertilizer market in the country.

Cotton marketers are pushing its use in reinforcing roads and airport runways. A layer of cotton fabric underneath highway surfacing has been found to lengthen the road's life. Cotton is being tested for lining in irrigation ditches, soil erosion, and malaria control projects. The Mellon institute has built two test houses with cotton covering for outside wall surfaces.

New places for cotton in automobile construction are being constantly explored.

Cows and Milk Output—1.

The United States has on its farms 23,710,000 milk cows. They produced 103,132,000,000 pounds of milk in 1937, according to federal bureau of agriculture economics. The average production per cow for the year was 4,350 pounds.

The milk cow population of the states varies widely. Nevada had the fewest of any state, 20,000 in 1937. Wisconsin had the greatest number, 2,065,000. Texas had 1,322,000 milk cows on farms, and Illinois had 1,080,000. There were 1,400,000 in Iowa and 739,000 in Indiana.

The 1937 farm production of milk was equal to about 793 pounds per capita. The amount of milk produced per cow shows great differences when the average per cow in one state is compared with that in another state. New York, with 1,320,000 cows, produced 7,392,000,000 pounds of milk, an average of 5,600 pounds per cow. Texas, with more cows, produced far less milk, 4,164,000,000 pounds, or an average of 3,150 pounds per cow.

California's average per cow production, 6,500 pounds, was the largest of any state. Not far behind were New Jersey with 6,450 pounds; Rhode Island, with 6,250, and Washington, with 6,030 pounds per cow. The average in Illinois was 4,550, and in Wisconsin was 5,510 pounds per cow for the year.

FEDERAL AGENCY TO BUY SURPLUS IN COMMODITIES

Washington, D. C., July 9.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace gave the Federal Commodities corporation blanket authority today to buy supplies of oranges, vegetables, fresh peaches, wheat, flour, and cereal products during the next twelve months.

Products purchased by the agency will be distributed to needy families through state relief agencies. Quantities bought will depend, officials said, upon the market situation confronting producers and upon the ability of the states to handle supplies for relief use.

The purchases will be financed from an appropriation of $79,000,000 congress voted for removal of price depressing agricultural surpluses.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET TO PUSH ODD LOT TRADE

Seeks to Widen Scope as Public Market.

The Chicago Stock exchange is revamping its facilities to improve the exchange's "quality" as a securities market place for the public, Arthur M Betts, chairman of the board of governors, said yesterday.

Betts was elected chairman last month under the new constitution, which simplified the exchange's administration. It reduced the number of functioning committees from twelve to five and provided broad powers for a salaried president, as yet unnamed.

Immediate steps to be taken by the exchange, Betts said, will include further development of trading in odd lots [less than fifty shares], and setting up of more rigid requirements for admission to membership. The exchange also will continue to reduce the number of members by "buying in" memberships.

Fee Split Plan Considered.

Changes now being debated include a plan by which members would split commissions with nonmember firms which originate customers' orders. Another possible step is a revision of members' proportionate shares of commission when more than one member participates in executing the order. For example, the floor broker may be given a share of the commission on odd lot trades. Under present rules, if he gets an odd lot order from a firm, the commission goes to the firm only.

"Many problems of our exchange are different from those of the New York Stock Exchange," Betts said. "We believe that we can develop a substantial odd lot market in many issues now traded only in New York. This will lay the basis for an active round lot trade in Chicago."

Some Already Listed.

Thirteen companies that have stocks listed in New York have accepted the exchange's invitation to list on the Chicago board without paying a listing fee. These include American Telephone and Telegraph company, International Harvester company, Montgomery Ward, Deere & Co., Goodyear Tire, Westinghouse Electric, and Western Union. Container corporation has been listed and traded in under the plan.

The invitation plan was adopted on the theory that the exchange would gain a market that would otherwise be lost for stocks of companies with business in the middle west. The resulting commissions to members and increased prestige to the exchange will more than offset the loss of listing fees, exchange members believe.

SUGAR WORKERS MAKE SOUR SPOT OF PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9.—[Special.]—A strike at the city's three sugar refineries, now in its third week, threatened an acute sugar shortage and price rise today. Striking members of the Sugar Refinery Workers' union, aided by other American Federation of Labor unions, have tied up the entire sugar industry here.

A survey showed that in parts of the district dealers were rationing sugar almost on a wartime basis. Small shops and groceries in some sections had none left and housewives were rapidly buying up all the stock on hand in chain stores.

NICHOLS' BANK MAKES FIGURES TELL OWN STORY

Striving to make figures tell their own story, the First National Bank of Englewood departed from the usual style in bank statements in its June 30 report to depositors and stockholders.

Regards FDIC Valueless.

The bank is compelled by law to declare its membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation in its published statements. This requirement was met by listing the membership at no value in the balance sheet. Stock in the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, usually valued at par in bank statements, is carried at 10 cents by the Englewood bank.

J. M. [100%] Nichols, president of the bank, became known throughout the country by resisting the deposit insurance plan when it was first launched.

LIVE STOCK RISE GIVES FARMERS PROFIT MARGIN

Cattle and hog prices have risen in recent weeks to levels that give farmers a profit. Increased demand for meats by American consumers, larger exports of pork and lard, and the higher prices of cattle hides are said to be the principal reasons for the rise.

Meat animals received at the Chicago stockyards last month were valued at $20,873,000, the highest since January. This was an increase of $2,945,000, or 16 per cent, in two months. It was the second highest June value in seven years.

Meat consumption in recent months has been the heaviest in several years. According to the department of agriculture the per capita consumption of meats that were produced in packing plants under federal inspection during May was 7.65 pounds. This was the heaviest for May in four years. In February it was down to 6.81.

More Beef and Veal Eaten.

Beef and veal consumption increased from 3.11 pounds per capita in February to 3.48 during May. Pork and lard consumption rose from 3.24 in February to 3.70 in May. Lard alone showed a per capita increase from .38 to .45 in this period, and lamb and mutton increased from .46 to .47.

Further gains were made in both production and consumption of meat during June, according to live stock men at the yards.

It was estimated that packers under inspection of the government last month produced 974,400,000 pounds of all meats, the largest tonnage in five months, compared with 879,551,000 pounds during June last year. During the first half of 1938 packers produced 6,004 million pounds against 5,668 a year ago. The largest increases in production were in pork and lard.

Rise Sharpest in Nine Months.

The rise in the market for cattle last week was the sharpest in nine months. The week's average price rose 60 cents to $10.35, the highest average since the middle of last November.

Final quotations for hogs were 10 to 45 cents higher than a week ago, the sharpest gains going to the classes weighing from 250 pounds down, with the least improvement in extremely heavy butchers and in sows.

The market for lambs did not follow the higher lead taken by other live stock. This class closed off 25 to 50 cents for the week.

Only a few lots of hogs and cattle arrived on the market yesterday, and these met good demand at strong rates considering quality and weights.

Railroad Equipment Companies.

If you own railroad equipment securities, you probably have suffered from a lot of headaches since the stock market crash in 1929. Aside from a flareup of activity in 1936 and early 1937, the industry never fully recovered from the big crash and the outlook at present is none too cheerful despite the upturn in stock prices in late June.

Two factors seem to stare you in the face every time you think about railroad equipment securities. One is that the industry's biggest customer, the railroads are in the financial doldrums. The other is that the railroads have for the most part stopped growing and the bulk of business in the future must be replacements of present equipment.

It is well to note that, roughly speaking, there are two types of companies in the railroad equipment field, those that manufacture and those that lease their own equipment to the carriers. Some of the leaders do both. These companies, other factors being equal, are in the best position.

You can also further classify manufacturing companies. There are companies that make locomotives, freight cars, diners, passenger cars, and other equipment that the roads would buy if they had the money and trafic were heavy. There are also companies that manufacture brake shoes, track fixtures, car wheels, signaling equipment, and other articles and devices with which the railroads must be supplied with to keep running.

You probably agree that companies which make necessary railroad equipment are better off during a depression than those that make the things the railroads can postpone buying if business is bad. On the other hand, there have been so many improvements in railroad rolling stock that large replacement business undoubtedly will develop if the financial condition of the carriers improves.

The best earnings record during the depression was made by the companies which specialize in leasing equipment to the railroads. They also obtain important revenue from leasing equipment to large private shippers.

Investors' Guide urges you to investigate each company in this field with even greater than usual care before you make a purchase of such stocks. Securities of some companies have investment qualities, but others are suitable only for the speculator. We have a list of railroad equipment companies which you may have by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Investors' Guide.

LAKE IRON ORE MOVEMENT TO BE LEAST SINCE '32

Cleveland, O., July 9.—[Special.]—This season's iron ore movement will be the second smallest in modern Great Lakes shipping history, vessel men predicted today after compiling orders from steel plants.

Pre-season estimates ranged as high as 25,000,000 tons, but veteran observers now believe that fewer than 20,000,000 tons will be transported to lower lake ports.

The all-time low for the last thirty years was 3,567,989 tons in 1932, when the industry was at a practical standstill. The following year, however, ore shipments jumped to 21,000,000 tons. Last season vessels dumped 63,000,000 tons at Lakes Michigan and Erie ports for the second largest movement in history.

Ore Stocks Large.

Vessel men had pinned their hopes on a sudden revival in the steel industry, but even a boom would not help much now. Surplus stocks on lake docks and in furnace yards are the largest they ever have been at this stage of the season and increased consumption would not result in heavier shipments before the close of the regular navigation season.

At present vessels are moving only the amount of ore specified in contracts drawn up prior to the opening of the season. There has been no new business and ore carriers will be sent to the docks after they have fulfilled their contractual obligations.

Lake vessels loaded 2,937,745 tons of ore last month, according to a statement issued by the Lake Superior Iron Ore association. This compares with 10,107,883 tons in the same month last year. Shipments for the season up to July 1 totaled 4,278,962 tons, as against 23,922,294 tons last year.

Oil Cargoes Numerous.

Vessels operating in the ore, coal, stone, and other trades are having a difficult time keeping busy, but there is no dearth of petroleum cargoes. Boats operated by the Great Lakes Transportation corporation have carried approximately 110 cargoes of petroleum products, averaging 18,000 barrels each, as compared with 58 in the same period last season.

The fleet's tankers, Mexoil and Panoil, and the barge Fueloil were unable to take care of the business on hand and the company has chartered the tanker Comet of Marine Tankers, Inc., and the tug Gotham and barge Gotham No. 85 of the Universal Steamship Line.

Housewives Find Meat Higher; Reflects Gains in Live Stock

Housewives were paying a few pennies more for their meats in butcher shops yesterday than they were two weeks before, a survey of the city's wholesale meat markets disclosed.

Retail prices move in step with wholesale quotations, which have been raised in the last fortnight for beef and pork cuts and slightly for lamb.

Meat dealers said, however, that the markup in wholesale prices has not been as large proportionately as the advance in prices of live stock. Hogs and cattle have reached new high marks for the year.

Beef loins were selling at wholesale yesterday in a range of 17 to 30 cents a pound, or ½ to 2 cents more than two weeks earlier.

The top price of pork loins was up 2½ cents a pound at 23½ cents, and pork spare ribs advanced 1 cent to a range of 12 to 13 cents. Lamb loins wholesaled at 20 to 23 cents, compared with 19 to 23 cents two weeks earlier.

Vegetable Prices Variable.

In vegetable markets some prices were lower and others higher, in accordance with seasonal changes in supply. Home grown root vegetables, including beets, carrots, and turnips, have been marketed in increasingly large quantities in the last two weeks, bringing the housewife lower prices. On the other hand, the season for Illinois asparagus, cauliflower, and spinach is about ended and prices are higher.

Michigan cherries were lower, selling yesterday at wholesale for $1.50 to $1.75 for sixteen quarts. This compared with $1.75 to $2.25 two weeks earlier. Black and red raspberries were marked down from a fortnight ago. Georgia peaches were slightly higher.

OIL EXECUTIVES CALLED IN NEW FEDERAL PROBE

Madison, Wis., July 9.—(AP)—Twenty-two oil companies and individuals connected with the industry were under subpena tonight to appear before a federal grand jury which will convene here next Tuesday.

The jury will consider other matters before hearing testimony from the oil men. John Henry Lewin, of the attorney general's staf in Washington, said he would not be ready to present the oil case before July 20.

Price Fixing Case Recalled.

Announcement this week by Herbert C. Hale, clerk of the United States District court, that seven companies and fifteen individuals had been called to testify set the stage for another influx of oil men to Madison. The city became known as "the oil capital of the nation" during a trial last winter which resulted in conviction of sixteen major companies and thirty individuals on charges of conspiring to fix prices in the middle west in violation of antitrust laws.

Hale disclosed today that two companies and five individuals connected with the oil industry had been served with subpenas since his earlier announcement that five companies and ten individuals had been summoned.

Large Companies Summoned.

The new group includes Tide Water Associated Oil company, and the Texas corporation, both of New York; R. D. Ebbert and P. E. Lakin, both of the Shell Petroleum company, St. Louis, Mo., W. F. McDermott, New York; J. W. Carnes of the Consolidated Oil corporation, New York, and R. G. A. Van der Woude of the Shell Union Oil corporation, New York.

Defendants convicted last winter are scheduled to appear before Judge Patrick T. Stone on July 19 to hear his rulings on motions to set aside the verdict and to grant a new trial.

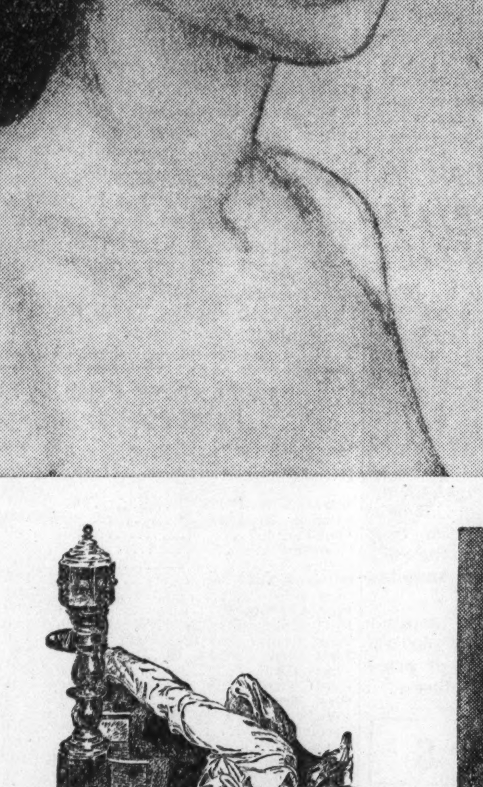
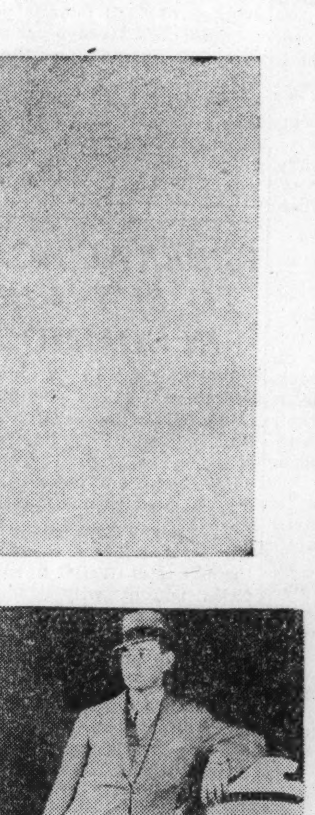
WAS IT A PERFECT CRIME?



An eerie boarding house in a London suburb, a smuggler's den in the desolate marshes of the river Thames, a desperate struggle between two lovers and a super criminal for a fortune of $500,000—these are among the ingredients which make "The Black Mark," by Douglas Newton, a gripping, spine-tingling mystery story you will not want to miss. It begins in next Sunday's Chicago Sunday Tribune.



HOW TO RIDE A HORSE

Learn how to ride a horse from a former West Point riding instructor. Captain Maxwell M. Corpening, Tribune correspondent and a former member of the staf of the U. S. PAY $176,832 FOR SCHOOL REPAIRS

PRIESTS' STUDY OF 'ISMS' DRAWS WIDE ATTENTION

School for Clerics Opens July 18.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Very Rev. Reynold Hillenbrand.

The St. Mary of the Lake seminary summer school for priests of the Catholic church beginning a week from tomorrow, which is devoted to social and economic views expressed by Popes Leo XIII. and Pius XI., not only is attracting widespread attention of Catholic leaders but also has aroused international Protestant interest.

Cardinal Mundelein set up the special school at the famous seminary he founded near the Skokie town that bears his name as a consequence of a Holy Name society address he made in January at Holy Name cathedral. In that address he asked that Catholic action be intelligently invoked to combat "the growing evils of our time, the various isms, atheism, communism or whatever name they bear."

Faculty of Leaders.

As the opening date approaches, the Very Rev. Dr. Reynold Hillenbrand, rector of the seminary, announced that notable clerical leadership from all sections of the country will be traveling toward Mundelein. He stated, however, that most registrations will come from the archdiocese of Chicago, adding that the faculty which the cardinal has assembled is the finest that the church in America could contribute.

The Rev. Dr. F. Ernest Johnson of New York, head of the social service department of the Federal council of Churches of Christ in America, has stated that he has studied the announcements of the summer school with keen interest and said that Protestantism both as represented by the federal council and by the newly instituted world council of churches will follow the summer school's development as closely as is possible.

The special interest of world Protestantism, it was stated, centers in the fact that the school is understood to be the first of its kind in America and represents Cardinal Mundelein's powerful response to Pope Pius' injunction that the church "go to the workingman, especially where he is poor."

Federation Studies School.

Walter R. Mee, executive of the Chicago Church federation, stated that federation leaders have favorably discussed the coming school. These, he said, point with especial favor to the cardinal's Holy Name address when the cardinal expanded the meaning of the pontiff's injunction.

This section of the speech declared:

"Our place is beside the poor, behind the working man. They are our people, they build our churches, they occupy our pews, their children crowd our schools, our priests come from their sons. They look to us for leadership, but we look to them for support.

"Of course there is danger of the spread of communism in our midst. . . . But don't let others use that as a cloak to cover corrupt practices. When they cry out against communism and they themselves practice social injustice, when they fight against minimum wage law and we find girls and women trying to live on 10 and 15 cents an hour, surely we can see for ourselves there is something wrong here. It is here that Catholic action comes in."

Five Chicagoans in Group.

The faculty for the school announced by Father Hillenbrand includes, in addition to himself, five Chicago priests. These are the Rev. T. Lincoln Bouscaren, S. J., of the seminary, the Rev. Bernard Burns of Ascension church, Oak Park, the Rev. Dr. James Magner of Quigley Preparatory seminary, and the Rev. Thomas Meehan of Immaculate Conception parish, Elmhurst.

Among noted teachers from distant points are John Brophy of Washington, D. C., who will teach a class on policies of the Committee for Industrial Organization; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan of Catholic University of America, Washington, head of that institution's school of social sciences and director of the social action department of the national Catholic welfare conference; the Rev. Bernard Dempsey, S. J., translator of the Neil-Breuning commentary on Pope Pius' encyclical; Bishop Robert E. Lucey of Amarillo, Tex., and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis J. Haas of Washington, D. C.

Plan Rural Section.

Rural problems will virtually have a special faculty led by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Luigi Ligutti of Granger, Ia., director of the Granger resettlement project and president of the National Catholic Rural Life conference. The Rev. George Nell of Island Grove, another authority on rural problems, has been added to the faculty. The Rev. Raymond Miller of Oconomowoc, Wis., professor of economics at Immaculate Conception seminary, will lecture on the economic theory of communism and fascism.

68 BUILDINGS ARE RENOVATED FOR THE FALL

Englewood High Is Given $14,000.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Some 68 public high and elementary schools on the southwest side will not be the same when they reopen in September as when they closed for summer vacation last month. Nearly $176,832 is being spent to make them better places for both pupils and teachers, it was shown last week by a survey of rehabilitation projects on file in the office of James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

These southwestern projects are only a part of the $1,330,840 city-wide repair program designed to effect needed improvements during the annual school suspension, when they would not interfere with study.

Of the southwest side's share, $34,214 is being spent on 11high schools and $142,618 is going for improvements to 57 elementary school structures.

Englewood Gets $14,000.

Englewood High is getting $14,000 worth of the new work. About half this amount is required for repairs and augmentation of the school's gymnasium equipment. The rest is to cover the cost of insulating covers for tanks, pipes, and air ducts throughout the institution.

Morgan Park High benefitted from nearly $5,000 of the repair money. The improvements here include a steel vault and necessary alterations, new lunchroom equipment, plastering and new linoleum.

In Kelly High more than $4,000 is being invested in a new chemical storeroom. Lunchroom equipment, plaster repairs and swimming pool work for Calumet High will cost nearly $3,000. Westcott branch of Calumet is getting new lunchroom equipment and miscellaneous repairs to the value of more than $2,300. About the same amount is going for similar work at Fenger High.

Tilden, Lindblom, and the Burnside, and Curtis branches of Fenger are the other southwest side high schools that are sharing in the repair funds.

Repair Fire Loss.

Largest of the area's elementary school projects is that of the Seward school, which was partly destroyed by fire last Dec. 17. A total of $41,295 is being spent here, most of it to repair the fire damage.

Two southwestern elementary schools are getting new boilers to replace the old inefficient ones. The Everett school's will cost $13,880 and the Vanderpoel school's $13,237.

At Hartigan about $6,670 is being expended for general alterations and for installation of a stairway fire escape and other improvements. Replacements and repairs for the Dewey school will cost more than $6,000.

At Gunsaulus the school board has just spent nearly $6,000 for exterior painting and for cleaning, painting and decorating assembly halls. A similar expenditure was approved for the Davis school, for repairs and alterations, new linoleum and plastering repairs.

Gets Outside Paint.

Copernicus is another southwest side school which is to have its "face lifted" by a coat of exterior paint, as well as rehabilitation of its assembly rooms. The total cost will be about $4,000. Nearly that much is being paid out for repairs and alterations at Shields.

To provide additional play space for Mount Greenwood school children the board recently had a low spot near the school filled in without cost. It has just ordered a top dressing of screened cinders, crushed rock and sand to complete the work, the total cost to be about $3,600. More than $3,150 is being spent for painting and decorating the Beale school, and about as much for general repair work in the McKay school.

From $2,000 to $3,000 is being spent for repair work in ten of the southwest elementary schools. These are Pullman, McClellan, Henderson, Earle, Oglesby, Sherwood, Tonti, Holmes, Scanlan, and Graham.

In Other Schools.

In ten others the repair bills will range from $1,000 to $2,000. These are Libby, Mark Sheridan, Altgeld, Healy, Sawyer avenue, Holden, Hubbard, Burroughs, Kohn, and Marquette.

Schools in the southwest area will benefit to the extent of several hundred dollars each. These are:

Jimmy Archer, Ex-Catcher for Cubs, to Give Talk

Jimmy Archer, catcher for the Chicago National league baseball team from 1908-'17, will speak tomorrow at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club of Englewood in the Englewood Y. M. C. A. Robert Bantz, chairman of the program committee, will preside. Dr. Arthur Volkman, club president, has announced that the 60 boys sent to Camp Sutton by the club will be guests at a Tuesday luncheon meeting soon.

SUBURBS UNITE AS GUARDIANS OF LEGISLATION

Aim Is Preservation of Local Interests.

A legislative committee, with James A. Howe, president of Oak Park, as chairman, was established at the recent annual meeting of the Suburban Area and Country Towns Association of Cook County. Other members of the committee are Harry Kinne, president of Wilmette; W. J. Mahaffay, mayor of Palos Park; Joseph Gannon, mayor of Chicago Heights, and Walter Saunders, president of La Grange.

The committee will have charge of drafting laws desired by local officials in Cook county, watching proposed legislation which may affect the interests of municipalities and school and park districts, and cooperate with the Illinois Municipal league.

The association decided to continue its fight for home rule and against any attempt to force residents of the suburbs into any form of consolidated governmental unit, contending that the standard of government is high in the suburbs and that their officials are directly responsible to the people.

Gain in Economy.

It is held by the association that local governments give more economical administration than could be rendered in any other way, that the tax rate in the suburbs has, for several years, been lower than that in Chicago, in many instances only half that of the city.

Improved methods of administration and new legislation which will better these methods is sought. The association decided to renew its effort to have the state assembly permit the use of gasoline tax money by local officials for the improvement of local streets without control by the state department of public works and buildings. At present the city or village share of such funds must be spent on streets approved by the state department.

Elimination of all grade crossings in Cook county will continue as an association objective.

Kingery Gives Advice.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the group in the Oak Park Municipal building, Robert E. Kingery, director of the Chicago Regional Plan association, emphasized the need for well directed planning of all parks, roads, and improvements.

Mr. Howe was reëlected president of the association. Vice presidents chosen were Mr. Saunders of La Grange; Henry Penfield, mayor of Evanston; Curt Krausser, president of Maywood; John M. Hart, mayor of Blue Island, and Henry Proesel, president of Lincolnwood. Mr. Mahaffay of Palos Park was elected secretary and Charles R. Hussey, mayor of Forest Park, treasurer.

Executive Members.

Members chosen on the executive committee are William B. Moulton, president of Winnetka; Arthur B. Jones, mayor of Park Ridge; Mr. Kinne of Wilmette; Mr. Gannon of Chicago Heights; William Zick, mayor of Calumet City; George L. Stredonsky, president of Cicero; Harry Taylor, president of Riverside; John L. Brink, president of River Forest; E. J. Theile, president of Hillside.

O. G. Barrett, Cook County Farm bureau; W. P. Propper, Town Supervisors' association; Harvey Adair, High School district; William Collins, Collectors' association; W. P. Walkowiak, F. J. Poeton and C. A. Hughes.

YOUNG WOMEN STUDY NURSING AS 'SIDE LINE'

Workers in Stockyards Meet Weekly.

On Monday nights the kindergarten room of the University of Chicago settlement house, 4630 South McDowell street, resembles an emergency hospital after a Japanese air raid on some populous Chinese city. Young women move swiftly about, deftly preparing bandages for immediate use and filling hot water bottles for a groaning patient in one of the beds. It is a sight to startle the casual onlooker who wouldn't know that the Questionettes were holding their weekly meeting.

Knowing this, however, and realizing that the "patient" is just one of the Questionettes acting as a guinea pig for the benefit of her fellow members, it becomes intensely interesting to watch the "nurses," who are workers in the stockyards by day. They are members of a Y. W. C. A. industrial group and have chosen home nursing as a leisure time study.

What They're Taught.

They are under supervision of Miss Delfont Fallbacher, a Red Cross nurse, and are taught to take temperatures, make a bed [with the patient still in it], mix that old standby, the mustard poultice, and keep the sickroom occupant cheerful.

The course is a combination of first aid and nursing and most of the girls learn swiftly, according to Miss Annette Dieckmann, industrial secretary of the Chicago Y. W. C. A., which sponsors the group.

"Since each club in the department chooses its own interest of a recreational or educational nature for its leisure activities, the Questionettes decided to devote part of their time to this useful and practical subject.

"They became interested in nursing because some of them are married and many others expect to be soon. In any event they are learning the simple rules of health and how to care for members of their family who are ill but not sick enough to be taken to a hospital. They are taught how to care for babies, also, which is helpful to young mothers in the group."

Club Two Years Old.

The club was organized by the girls about two years ago and later became affiliated with the Y. W. C. A. Club leaders are Mrs. Estelle Zabritz, 3558 South Hoyne avenue, president; Mrs. Lillian Shaw, 4501 South Lake Park avenue, secretary; Miss Toni Ciplis, 4601 South Hermitage avenue, treasurer; Mrs. Agnes Daniels, 1708 West 62d street; Miss Irene Bukowinski, 5021 South Winchester avenue; Miss Charlotte Balicki, 1346 West 51st street; Mrs. Kate Pavesic, 5853 South Ashland avenue; Mrs. Kate Gerbac, and Miss Marion Porter.

"We call ourselves Questionettes," she explains, "because we all ask questions concerning our problems and help each other find the answers."

ORPHANS' ANNUAL PARTY IS AUG. 17 IN LINCOLN PARK

Plans were formed last week for the thirty-fourth annual outing of Chicago's orphans and crippled children to be held in Lincoln park, Aug. 17. Almost 5,000 youngsters are to be convoyed in 1,000 private automobiles by the Orphans' Automobile Day association.

The association is maintained by five organizations, Lions club, Woodlawn Business association, Funeral Services Associated, Chicago Automobile Trade association, and the Chicago Motor club, and fifty individual men who devote their services on a voluntary basis.

The outing group will call for youngsters at thirty-seven orphanages and institutions and for 800 crippled children in private residences scattered throughout the city. Officers of the association are Hobart J. Thurber, president; L. C. Smith, vice president; Nate Jacobs, treasurer, and John P. Keating, secretary.

Books in Foreign Tongues Are Added at Auburn Park

Foreign language and rental sections were recently added to the Auburn Park branch of the Chicago Public library, 747 West 79th street, according to Miss Blanche McLaughlin, librarian.

2 EX-HOLLYWOOD ACTORS DEBATE ITS RADIO FUTURE

Henry Hunter Optimistic, but Not Soubier.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

What Hollywood's place in broadcrasting will be this fall remains to be seen. In mid-summer it looks weak by comparison with January. Most of the big Hollywood shows are missing now. Of course, many of radio's bigger shows from New York are off the air too. Chicago, on the other hand, has lost less than New York and Hollywood and has added several new network shows to its list this summer. Among these are Attorney-at-Law with Henry Hunter, lately of Hollywood, Win Your Lady, a dramatic offering featuring Jim Ameche; the Laugh Liner with Billy House and Jack Fulton, a new variety hour, and People I Have Known, with Ransom Sherman and Clark Dennis. And Scattergood Baines, long aired from Hollywood, has been moved to Chicago.

A Few Remain.

That leaves Bing Crosby [who will vacation starting late this month with Bob Burns taking over], George Burns and Gracie Allen, Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, and company, Marion Talley, Jimmy Fidler and one or two others doing the cheering from Hollywood for the summer.

Many of the above mentioned will be back in the fall, others will not. And there will be some new ones, a new Bob Hope show being among these. But what the Hollywood place in the radio sun will be in the next few years cannot be said with certainty.

Two Chicago performers lately returned from the west coast hold divergent views. Henry Hunter has a lot to say in favor of Hollywood. Mr. Hunter played leads in "The Road Back," "Secret Agent X9," "Yellowstone," and other pictures. Cliff Soubier, who played in "Tovarich," "Black Legion," "Gold Is Where You Find It" and "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air," is not so hopeful about Holly wood as a broadcasting center. Soubier is now working in the Uncle Ezra series.

Picture People Learning.

Hunter asserted that Hollywood will eventually originate most of the big night time shows. He feels that NBC and CBS have the same views, since they are building lavish broadcasting plants on the coast.

"Picture people are learning," he declared, "that it isn't enough to insure the success of a broadcast just to have some glamorous star come to the microphone and say a few words. When this lesson sinks in radio listeners will have a greater respect for broadcasts originating in Hollywood."

"If there is one thing that will bring Hollywood to the fore as a center of radio," said Hunter, "it is undoubtedly the fact that it is not afraid to build personalities. Just as the movies have grown by the use of the star system, so radio will increase in favor and popularity by stressing personalities as well as programs. Chicago, and to a great extent New York, are committed to the theory that it is the programs that count, and the performers remain annonymous.

"Perhaps the producers of programs in Chicago and New York will wake up to the fact that radio listeners-in are just as much interested in a pleasing personality as they are in an interesting story, and begin building personalities before it is too late. If they don't wake up to this fact they will find, in a few years, that the interest which should go to their programs is going instead to the broadcasts produced in Hollywood."

Soubier's Viewpoint Opposite.

Opposite viewpoints were expressed by Soubier:

"I doubt whether Hollywood will ever be the center of broadcasting," he declared.

"In the first place it is not geographically situated for such a position. The time element is important in radio, and the sponsors of programs will always have to pay for two broadcasts so as to reach the west coast and the east and middle west at the most advantageous time of day. In the second place the cost of producing a program in Hollywood is so much greater than it is here in Chicago or in New York that only the largest sponsors can afford to produce their shows on the coast.

Analyzing Star System.

"There is a great deal to be said for the star system as it is practiced in picture work, but I don't think it will work out when applied to radio.

"Besides, when all the ballyhoo is boiled down, the star system means simply that one actor or actress gets all the fame, the glory and the money for a picture or a broadcast, while the supporting cast, who have worked just as hard and have put as much of their own personalities into the production, get little besides the dubious honor of telling their friends they once worked with so-and-so."

'PAGLIACCI' IS MUTUAL'S NEXT OPERA OFFERING

Streamlined Version on W-G-N Tomorrow.

The third in W-G-N-Mutual's streamlined opera series "I Pagliacci," will be aired from the W-G-N audience studio from 9:30 to 10:30 tomorrow night. Five principals, all of them noted in the field of opera, will head the cast. Kathryn Witwer, W-G-N and City Opera soprano, will be Nedda. Attilio Baggiore, famous tenor of W-G-N and the City Opera, will sing Canio's part. Mark Love, basso, will sing Tonio's rôle.

Richard Schreiber, the young baritone who won the Chicagoland Music Festival last year, will appear as Silvio. Mr. Schreiber has been heard on W-G-N several times the last year. Gunther Decker will sing the part of Peppe.

Streamlined opera as heard over W-G-N is an attempt to bring grand opera within the limitations of radio, and to exploit it to the full extent offered by radio. Librettos are brought up to date, with language modernized and simplified, and the story is put into straight dramatic form.

Henry Weber, W-G-N. concert orchestra director, who is in charge of the series, believes the streamlined operas appeal to both the music lovers and to listeners who like a stirring story but who have never had an opportunity fully to appreciate opera. Mr. Weber declared that "Pagliacci" is perfect for streamlining purposes. He pointed to the fact that in its full length "Pagliacci" runs only one hour and twenty minutes. Hence, he said, it has been necessary to eliminate only twenty minutes for the W-G-N version. He said that this has been accomplished by eliminating stops and dramatic action, which would not register on the air anyway, and that listeners will hear a practically complete "Pagliacci."

Working with Mr. Weber on the opera are Louis Jackobson of the W-G-N production staf and Francis Coughlin, W-G-N continuity writer. The translation used in the preparation of the script was that of the late Charles Meltzer.

Social Security Talk.

H. L. McCarthy, regional director for the United States Social Security board, will be heard in a ten minute talk on social security over W-G-N from noon to 12:10 today.

Songstress

Julie Gibson, songstress currently heard on a nightly schedule over W-G-N and the Mutual network with Jimmy Grier and his orchestra from the Bon Air Country club.

Ready for Beach

ALL-GERSHWIN SHOW PLANNED ON MAGIC KEY

An unfulfilled ambition of the late George Gershwin will be realized during the Magic Key of RCA program at 1 p. m. today over WENR when Nathaniel Shilkret conducts an all-Gershwin program just one day before the anniversary of the death of the American composer.

Shilkret, a close friend of the brilliant composer, whose untimely death on July 11, 1937, shocked the entire world of music, revealed recently that Gershwin always had wanted to record his works with an orchestra directed by Shilkret, but that pressure of other work had prevented their collaboration on an album of Gershwin music.

Soloists with Shilkret's Magic Key orchestra will be Jane Froman, contralto; Felix Knight, tenor, and Sonny Schuyler, baritone. Linton Wells, Magic Key roving reporter, will continue his 30,000 mile trip through Latin America, speaking from Caracas, Venezuela.

◆

Selections to be played during the special memorial program will cover the scope of Gershwin's writings, ranging from his first big success, "Rhapsody in Blue," to his more recent works. Not only the songs linked with Gershwin's name but also his less widely known compositions will be heard during the commemorative broadcast.

WAY DOWN HOME WILL RETURN TO NBC NET TODAY

Way Down Home, a dramatization of the story of the life of James Whitcomb Riley returns to WENR-NBC at 12:30 today.

The first episode will be in the nature of a condensed version of preceding broadcasts of the drama. Author Howard McKent Barnes will set the stage, however, for future weekly broadcasts.

Carlton Brickert again will be heard as narrator and Gene Arnold, as the adult Riley, will read some of the great Hoosier poet's poems. "My Philosophy" and "The Prayer Perfect" will feature the July 10 program. Willard Farnum will play the youthful Riley and Betty Caine will portray the feminine lead.

EDWARD ARNOLD TO SUBSTITUTE FOR DON AMECHE

Edward Arnold assumes the rôle of master of ceremonies of the 7 p. m. variety hour on WMAQ-NBC starting tonight. Presiding as host for the first time in the absence of Don Ameche, Arnold will greet Basil Rathbone as guest during the broadcast. Arnold also will have the task of helping Edgar Bergen keep Charlie McCarthy under control. Furthermore, as Don's sub, he will star in each of the weekly dramatic sketches until Ameche's return.

Dorothy Lamour, John Carter, the Stroud Twins, and Robert Armbruster's orchestra will continue to entertain listeners to the Sunday variety hour.

Edna O'Dell, the quartet, and orchestra will do "Red Sails in the Sunset." Miss O'Dell, with Gunther Decker, chorus, and orchestra, will also present "Harbor Lights." Kirk Douglas and the Three Graces will sing "Let's Sail to Dreamland."

The chorus and orchestra will sail through "Rock and Roll," "Row, Row, Row," and "Smooth Sailing." The Memory Lane feature, with Kirk Douglas, the chorus, and orchestra, will also be nautical. Selections include "Moonlight Bay," "Beautiful Ohio," and "Swanee River."

On the Melodies from the Sky program at 9:30 Wednesday, Stokes and the dance orchestra will have all the regular features, including the popular Meet Your Neighbor feature, in which members of the W-G-N studio audience come before the microphone and interview each other in accredited Man on the Street style.

Henry Weber's Concert Revue, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday, will feature themes from Victor Herbert. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and William Miller, tenor, will combine their talents with those of the octet and orchestra in "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "Kiss Me Again," "Eileen," "In Thine Arms," and "Ah, But In Dreams So Fair."

Miss Witwer will also sing a Johann Strauss classic, "Tales from the Vienna Woods." Miller will sing Edwards' "By the Bend of the River." The orchestra will play Smetana's "Fields of Bohemia" and Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance No. 2."

NEW THREE ROOM HOUSE PLANNED FOR EXPANSION

Alcove Supplants Large Dining Room.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If you are interested in a really small home with distinctive design, a home for two which will hold three, and can grow later, there is much to intrigue you here.

The future owners of the house in question which will be built shortly in Downers Grove are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hoelle, 2312 South Kirkland avenue, Chicago. The architect, Harold A. Zook, 140 South Dearborn street, Chicago, has designed the house for a fifty foot suburban site. Serious effort has been made to plan the rooms for the requirements of a family of two or three, and yet to make future growth of the house size possible.

This home is quite definite proof, if proof is really needed, that a dwelling can have esthetic charm even though its cubage is only 13,000 cubic feet. And that it can be sturdily built, weather resistive, and easy to keep up, though it is built of materials which are not costly.

Has Stone Chimney.

It is the type of house which would fit into any suburban setting—a dark brown shingle roof laid in wavy pattern, a massive chimney of stone, white wood exterior walls of twelve inch siding, deep brown shutters, and a captivating Dutch entrance door, also painted a rich brown.

It is also the type of house which will be weather resistive, for its walls and roof and first floor ceiling are well insulated, and easy to maintain, too, with an oil fueled forced warm air heating system in the basement space under the living room.

The living room at the right, 14 by 15 feet, is reached through a plaster arch and will be a bright and sunny room with its large corner windows and walls painted in a soft pastel shade. This room will also have a wide, log burning fireplace of brick.

Alcove for Dining.

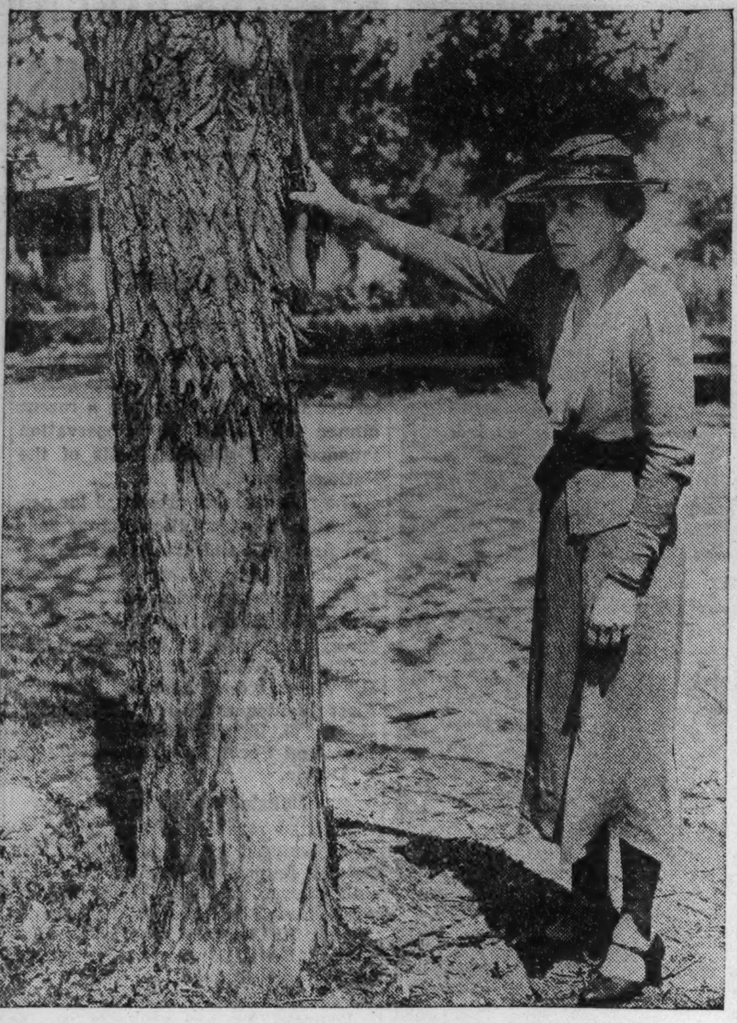
From this living room you step into a hall, very small, but space saving, which gives access to the bath closets, and kitchen.

The bathroom has walls and floor of linoleum, with simple, ready cut borders, and cove and base to provide for close joining of floor and walls and easy care.

The kitchen has a two room capacity. Besides its accepted function as a culinery workshop, it will have a dining alcove or nook between its two large corner windows. This means a considerable saving in actual building costs and some saving in furnishings.

In a surprising number of instances we see either the kitchen or the living room taking the dining room under its wing. A few years ago and it would have seemed distinctly odd to see a home with a well appointed, well heated garage, and no conventional dining room. Now we see it frequently, and it scarcely causes comment.

Suburban Trees Infected



Five garden clubs of southern Cook county are co-operating in a campaign to save the trees of the locality. According to a report by Mrs. Katherine Powers, landscape contractor of Homewood, and the Homewood Garden club, Hazelcrest Garden club, as well as the garden departments of the Chicago Heights, Midlothian, and Harvey Woman's clubs, hardwood trees are infected with a scaly, contagious disease. Contending that even the Carolina poplars are being killed with scale, Mrs. Powers is pictured in the front yard of a Homewood home pulling dead bark from a green-leafed tree. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

This Week in the Garden

Monday, July 11.

Now that the summer planting is completed, the gardener should see that the beds are maintained in proper manner. Cultivation should continue and where the plants are far enough apart to warant hoeing it should be done after every rain to keep the surface loose, the soil serving as a mulch which conserves the moisture by preventing too rapid evaporation. However, a mulch of well decayed manure, peat or other material is better than a dirt mulch. Strawy manure that has been properly composted or decayed retains some fertilizing elements, but its greatest value is in the organic matter it contains. Water through it and what food there is will be washed down into the soil and aid in producing a better growth. Foods may be readily supplied by using a complete commercial fertilizer, watered in. Trees and shrubs that were planted in the spring may be mulched with manure. Watch for an attack of red spiders on evergreens and if any are observed, spray with a miscible oil.

Tuesday, July 12.

The iris should be divided about every three years, otherwise the plants become root-bound, a condition that may encourage winter heaving. Make the divisions large enough to produce a good, strong plant immediately. When dividing, lift the clump with a spading fork, shake out all the soil, and the rhizomes will separate easily. Cut the fans back to about six inches to reduce evaporation. It is best to plant in groups, the divisions being 18 inches apart. Do not plant too deeply. Have plenty of drainage, for the common iris is not a swamp plant. The Japanese iris does well in a more moist location and the German iris in a well drained spot. Cut garden flowers early in the morning and plunge into a deep container. Remove the lower leaves and keep in a cool place at night. Rearrange whenever any of the flowers have ceased to look well. The phlox will respond to liberal applications of food as they approach the blooming period. A mulch will aid them. Give copious waterings during dry weather. Spray with Bordeaux to combat fungus attacks.

Wednesday, July 13.

If green scum appears on the lily pool dilute a small amount of permanganate of potash until it is a claret wine color and add to the water; it will not injure animal life, such as fish. Or place a very small amount of copper sulphate in a cloth and drag it through the water three or four times. An eighth of an ounce is enough. There is a commercial preparation that is quite effective for controling ants. It is carried to the queen, causing her death, after which the whole colony dies. Carbon tetrachloride injected into the hills with an oil also will kill the ants. Apply more than once if any ants remain after one application.

Thursday, July 14.

Chickweed in the lawn will not endure in a strong, well developed turf. If any appears it should be dug or pulled out and the surface reseeded. Cut dahlias when fully open, remove the lower leaves and place in cool water immediately. A good coating of salt on the asparagus bed tends to keep down the weeds, and it is beneficial to the plants. Pansies, sweet alyssum, and straggling rockery plants should be cut back to encourage new growth.

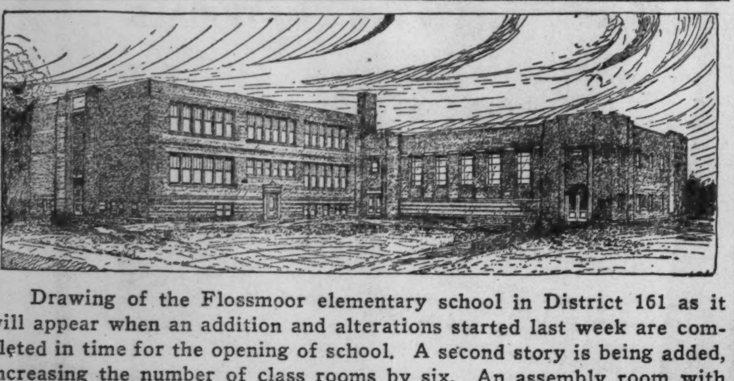
Friday, July 15.

As soon as the oriental poppies die down the plants should be transplanted. Propagation may be accomplished by cutting up the roots and sowing in flats or frames. If the foliage on nasturtium plants seems excessive, remove some of the leaves and the plants will bloom better. These plants like a sunny location. Arsenate of lead will rid the potato plants of beetles.

Saturday, July 16.

It is a fine time to clean and paint the small greenhouse. Order and cleanliness are among the most important operations in greenhouse care. The hotbed sash also should be painted, all broken glass replaced, and the sash stored until again used.

Flossmoor School Enlarged



Drawing of the Flossmoor elementary school in District 161 as it will appear when an addition and alterations started last week are completed in time for the opening of school. A second story is being added, increasing the number of class rooms by six. An assembly room with a seating capacity of 500 is being constructed at the north of the present building. A new boiler room is provided in the addition and a vacuum heating system will be used with stoker firing. The estimated cost will be $67,000, obtained through a bond issue. Public Builders, Inc., of Calumet City is the general contractor and W. Vernon Pipher of Flossmoor the architect.

SCALY DISEASE IMPERILS TREES OF SOUTH AREA

Word of Danger Spread by Garden Clubs.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

This country is not New York, Chicago, or Hollywood, but a patchwork of tree-arched Main streets. It is made up of small towns, villages, and cities whose claim to beauty lies in leaf-shadowed lawns, heavy laden orchards, and tree-guarded thoroughfares.

Southern Cook county is typical of the nation. Dotted between its farm lands are quiet towns landmarked with elms, oaks, poplars, and fruit trees. Residents of these villages are as proud of the trees as they are of their homes.

That a specter sits in the branches, however, is the alarm being spread by the garden clubs of Homewood, Hazelcrest, Chicago Heights, Midlothian, and Harvey, and particularly by Mrs. Katherine Powers, landscape contractor of Homewood.

Disease Attacks Trees.

The gardeners say only that their trees are dying, but Mrs. Powers declares that most of the trees in the county are infected with a contagious, scaly disease which is spreading throughout Chicagoland.

Backed by the Homewood Garden club, she will explain the situation before the board of her village Tuesday evening, having already appealed to the Harvey council at the invitation of the mayor and the village boards of Ivanhoe and Chicago Heights. It is her ambition to organize a "Save the Trees" league of southern Cook county.

Mrs. Powers contends that the disease which she diagnoses as San Jose scale, or aspidiotus perniciosus, is responsible for the high percentage of dead timber in Thornton woods during the last season and for the skeleton rows of lombardy poplars, blackened oaks, anemic elms, and bleeding Carolinas that dot Homewood and East Hazelcrest.

San Jose scale is generally believed to infect only fruit trees. Formerly a licensed grower, Mrs. Powers states that it is contagious to all deciduous trees. Governmental reports reveal that it causes $100,000 loss yearly in the nation's fruit market.

Feeds on Sap.

Over a period of five or six years San Jose scale will eat the sap bark of a tree. In early stages, according to Mrs. Powers, small black dots can be seen spotted on the bark, but as it gradually spreads, the outer bark cracks and bleeds.

The lower trunk appears as if covered with ashes while the branch bark takes on a reddish hue. The crown of the tree will not be a hearty green. As a remedy Homewood's lady landscaper advocates semi-annual spraying, in autumn with lime sulphur and in summer with plain kerosene emulsion.

Mrs. Powers lists the communities which she believes to be attacked by the disease to include Homewood, East Hazelcrest, Thornton, Harvey, Hazelcrest, Chicago Heights, Crete, Steger, Dalton, Riverdale, Midlothian, Blue Island, Ivanhoe, and south Beverly Hills.

Presenting another viewpoint on the subject, Chester G. Nelson of Flossmoor, graduate horticulturist of the University of Illinois who has practiced his profession in southern Cook county for 13 years, says:

"Our trees throughout the country are in a weakened condition, but I do not believe it is due to any individual disease. Many factors enter into the life of a tree, food elements and water being the most important.

"It is true, however, that neighboring home owners have neglected their trees and that oyster shell scale has attacked elms and lilac bushes, while maple scale is also prevalent. I have found San Jose scale on apple trees and berry bushes.

"It is my contention that village boards have not paid enough attention to their shade trees and that home owners are reticent about asking professional aid. The trees in Flossmoor are in good condition, although our park board has been concentrating on young trees the last few years somewhat to the neglect of our maturing ones."

Garden Clubs Concerned.

Concerned that residents should see the handwriting in regard to their shade trees are heads of several village garden clubs. Last year Mrs. Farrell Wettingel, now past president of the Homewood Garden club, wrote to Washington concerning the shoddy appearance and weakened condition of generally hardy oaks and elms in the neighborhood. She was informed that the matter should be taken up through the village boards and it was suggested that towns rent spraying appartus available to residents.

The problem was also brought before the members of the Hazelcrest Garden club last year by Mrs. Henry Lange, president, and it was decided that since the village was not in a financial position to be of assistance, individual landowners be made aware of the situation.

Strongly advocating, too, that the members of their respective communities join in the drive to save the trees are Mrs. W. J. Bahlman, chairman of the garden department of the Chicago Heights Woman's club; Mrs. Lowell Burton, chairman of the garden department of the Midlothian Woman's club, and Mrs. Herbert Lundmark, chairman of the garden department of the Harvey Woman's club.

Retail advertising,
Chicago Tribune

June 27, 1938

Dear Mr. McMahon:

We have found in our sales records for the first five months of 1938 some facts we think will interest you.

In March we began to advertise in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section. Since then, sales have shown a gain each month, including the current one, ranging from 6% to 19%.

The direct response from old and new customers to our advertisments in the Tribune has made us conscious of the important part the Tribune has played in increasing our business this year.

Sales to date this year on one item alone which we have featured in our Tribune advertising amount to more than $5,000.

By offering merchandise in the Tribune that our customers want we have found that we reach the able-to-buy families of the west side. We know that the Tribune has expanded our trading area because some 65% of our business now comes from outside Oak Park.

Because we are convinced that our customers and best prospects read the Sunday Tribune, we are planning to continue our Sunday Tribune advertising which is proving so effective in increasing our business in Oak Park and throughout the surrounding territory.

Very truly yours,

1,000 ACCORDION PLAYERS AWAIT MUSIC FESTIVAL

More School Bands Join Mammoth Group.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Edwin Charles Platte.

The largest massed piano accordion band ever assembled will march into Soldiers' field Saturday night, Aug. 20, at the ninth Chicagoland Music Festival. It is expected that nearly 1,000 players will be in this group. All teachers of this instrument are invited to meet in the festival headquarters, Room 1418, in Tribune Tower Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock to discuss plans for rehearsals.

This will be one of several large massed musical organizations to play and sing at the festival. Others are a 1,000 piece Chicago high school band, a chorus numbering 5,000 voices, and a large massed festival band. In all nearly 8,000 men, women, and children will take part in the festival program.

10 Year Old Twirler.

One of the youngest baton twirlers in THE TRIBUNE's drum major contest is Jean McArthur, 10 years old, of 3210 East 92d street. Jean is the junior twirling major for the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. drum and bugle corps.

Patricia Martina.

Two of the vocal contest entrants are Edwin Charles Platte, 23 year old tenor, of 8008 South Loomis boulevard, and Miss Patricia Martina, 25 year old soprano, of 6645 South Winchester avenue. Mr. Platte was a winner in last year's Charter Jubilee talent competition, for which he received a trip to Hollywood and a screen test. He is a student at the University of Illinois where he took leads in campus musical productions and was a member of the Illini quartet and of the Champaign Presbyterian octet. He won first place last year in the Champaign vocal contest, which was held preliminary to THE TRIBUNE'S.

Looking forward to a career in grand opera, Miss Martina has been soloist with the LeBrun and the Terzetta Singers and a member of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church choir. Her teacher is Umberta Sorrentino.

One hundred and ninety-six more high school students who reside in the south and southwest sections of the city have joined the massed band. The schools and their directors are as follows: Calumet, William J. Morris; Lindblom, Jay M. Sawyer; Kelly, Franklin R. Borger; Tilden, Capt. Howard Stube; Du Sable, Walter H. Dyett. AID BROADCAST DESCRIPTION FOR NAVIGATION DAY

Eight from South Area on Program Tonight.

Eight south and southwest side residents will have integral parts in the broadcast from 10 to 11 o'clock tonight in connection with the celebration of Navigation day.

Termed "a short wave broadcast destined to make radio history," by Miles Reed, WCFL program director, the program will emanate from the Rush, coast guard cutter serving as a studio for short wave station W9XAA.

As the cutter cruises from Foster avenue to the Calumet district, city officials and civic leaders, headed by Superior Court Judge John P. McGoorty, chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration, will make short talks on the various improvements that are part of the billion dollar Chicago waterfront development.

Boost for Chicago.

The program is planned as a gigantic educational effort to direct the attention of Chicagoans to the recreational and commercial opportunities afforded by the lake front. The short wave broadcast will be picked up by WCFL and sent out through the middle west on the regular wave length of the station.

Operators on top of the Palmolive building will direct the two billion candlepower beam of the Lindbergh beacon on the improvements as they are discussed.

On the Rush.

The south and southwest side leaders who will participate in the program from Rush are E. L. Burchard, executive secretary of the Chicago recreation commission; George W. Schaeffer, commodore of the Lake Michigan Yachting association; Loran D. Gayton, city engineer; M. W. Oettershagen, member of the bureau of river and harbors; Harry J. Bartz; V. K. Brown, director of recreation and aviation for the Chicago Park district; James J. Versluis, engineer of waterworks construction, and L. B. Barker, sanitary district engineer.

The future trend of Chicago commercial water freight will be toward the Calumet river and harbor district, Capt. S. N. Karrick, federal district engineer of the rivers and harbors for the Chicago area, recently told the members of the Navigation day committee.

Commerce on Increase.

"Calumet harbor," he said, "carries a large and constantly increasing amount of commerce. In 1937 commerce in the harbor amounted to 2,691,207 tons with a value of 57 million dollars."

During the broadcast and display tonight Mr. Gayton will tell of the struggles which the city engineering department had with the clay under the lake in building the Edward F. Dunne crib. This construction feat is still discussed in engineering circles.

Harry O'Hare, who has charge of the beaches for the park district, will discuss the fight to claim the south lake front for recreational purposes and the administration of the life saving corps.

Duties of the coast guard stations at Jackson park harbor and Calumet harbor will be the topic for Capt. H. K. Ahern of the coast guard.

Legion Notes

Officers recently elected by Marshall Field & Co. post of the American Legion are James A. Boyd, commander; Emil L. Johnson, senior vice commander; Ross W. Middleton, junior vice commander; George E. Jacobs, adjutant; John J. Jeck, finance officer, and Harold A. Lutterleh, sergeant at arms.

Carson Pirie Scott post, with a membership of 151, the largest in six years, recently elected George H. De La Mar, commander; Arthur S. Nelson, senior vice commander; George Behrens, junior vice commander; George Collignon, finance officer; L. C. Winters, sergeant at arms, and Fred Lawrence, adjutant. Delegates to the state convention are Frank B. Kepner and Carl A. Gers. Alternates are George De La Mar and Edward Vazny.

Works to Aid Blind

Miss Annette Lang, 6148 South Peoria street, is president of the Sodality of Our Lady, of Our Lady of Solace church, which plans to begin work this week transcribing books into Braille for use by the blind. The group, numbering 100 young women, will work with the Englewood Red Cross.

SODALITY TAKES UP MAKING OF BOOKS FOR BLIND

Women Join Work with Red Cross Chapter.

The making of books for the blind is to be started by the Sodality of Our Lady, of Our Lady of Solace church, at a meeting to be held Friday evening in the church rectory, 2614 Sangamon street. Miss Annette Lang, 6148 South Peoria street, is president of the Sodality.

The group, which numbers 100 young women between 15 and 22 years old, will act during the summer as a branch of the Braille center sponsored by the Englewood Red Cross. When the center reopens in the fall the sodality will merge its activities with that body.

Address by J. L. Parker.

At Friday's meeting the sodality will be addressed by Judson L. Parker, general chairman of the Englewood Red Cross, and by several Braille certificate holders who are graduates of the center. The graduates will instruct sodality members during the summer.

Mr. Parker has expressed appreciation of the sodality's wish to aid in the work of transcribing Braille and points out that the demand for books for the blind is always in excess of the supply.

Permanent Work.

Miss Rita Quinn, 1124 West 63d street, chairman of the Braille committee, has announced that the work of transcribing, although now being undertaken by the group for the first time, will become "a permanent and major activity of the sodality."

Other officers are Miss Virginia McKittrick, 6214 South Green street, vice president; Miss Ruth Lynch, 5940 South Peoria street, secretary, and Miss Mary Quinn, 1124 West 63d street, treasurer. The sodality is sponsored by the Rev. David O'Connor, church pastor.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver R. Reed, 3433 West 66th place, recently announced the engagement of their daughter Betty to Donald H. Cravener, 3517 West 62d street. Mr. Cravener is a June graduate of Lewis institute.

Mistakes in feeding caused constant scratching, shedding

VETERINARIAN CORRECTS CONDITION BY FEEDING PARD

The owners of this Clumber spaniel were surprised to discover that the real reason for his constant shedding and scratching was wrong diet. In 9 out of 10 dog ailments veterinarians place the blame on hit-or-miss feeding or on nutritionally deficient dog rations.

To restore this spaniel to perfect condition, Dr. O. P. S_____* simply fed Swift's Pard. Like many other leading veterinarians, he puts complete confidence in this scientific feeding formula.

Proven in feeding tests extending through four consecutive generations of dogs, Pard is the result of years of experiment in Swift & Company's biological laboratories and kennels. Fresh beef meat food products are combined in Pard with seven other choice ingredients in properly balanced proportions. To give your dog just the food elements he needs, including vitamins and minerals; to keep him healthy, feed Swift's Pard. Swift & Company, Chicago.

*Permission has been given by Dr. O. P. S_____ to supply his name and address on request

THROWN FROM THE ROOF BY BIG STOOP, YURK LANDS IN THE RIVER, AND SWIMS TO HIS MOTOR BOAT! PAT LEAPS ABOARD AS THE CRAFT MOVES AWAY, THE TWO MEN STRUGGLE... AND JUST AS YURK GETS THE EDGE THE LAUNCH STRIKES THE STEEL SIDE OF A SHIP IN THE DARKNESS...
YOU HAULED ME OUT OF THAT INK JUST IN TIME! LUCKY YURK TOSSED ME OVERBOARD—THERE'S NOT A TRACE OF THE LAUNCH AFTER THE CRASH! WHAT SHIP IS THIS?
HIS MAJESTY'S RIVER GUNBOAT SPIDER —AND WHO ARE YOU?

I SAY! —WAS THERE A SMALL GIRL AMONG THE PRISONERS?
YES... I KNOW LITTLE ABOUT HER—BUT SHE'S ASHORE THERE WITH MY FRIENDS!
THAT'S ENOUGH! WE WERE SENT HERE TO INQUIRE OF HER FROM THIS YURK FELLOW! BOATSWAIN! ORDER A LANDING PARTY!
I KNOW YOU'RE CROWDED, SIR, BUT COULD YOU GIVE MY FRIENDS AND ME A LIFT TO HONG KONG? WE'RE PRETTY FED UP WITH THIS BOMB TARGET!
I THINK SO, RYAN! MEANWHILE WE'LL FERRY YOUR FRIENDS OUT... AND I'LL WAGER A CIGARETTE WOULD HELP WHILE YOU WAIT—WHAT?
AND YOU, MISS, ARE NASTALTHIA VINCENTA SMYTHE—HEATHERSTONE, I TAKE IT? YOUR FATHER ARRANGED FOR US TO SEEK YOU OUT!
SO THAT'S HER NAME! —NO WONDER SHE DIDN'T TELL US!
NOW I AM BEING TREATED AS I AM ACCUSTOMED!
PROBABLY COULDN'T MEMORIZE IT!
SHE'S JUST "NASTY" TO ME FROM NOW ON!
YOU SEE HOW IMPORTANT I AM—! ONE OF HIS MAJESTY'S SHIPS COMES FOR ME!
COME, MISS! THE CAPTAIN WISHES TO SEE YOU!
HERE WE STAND! SAFE AND TOGETHER AGAIN! —THERE'S SO MUCH TO SAY I CAN'T THINK WHERE TO START!
ONE THING'S SURE! IT'S GOOD TO SEE PAT—AND BIG STOOP AGAIN!
THAT GOES DOUBLE, BURMA! IF I WEREN'T SO FILTHY AND FURRY I COULD KISS YOU!

SAY, WHERE'S BETTY EVANS?
SAID SHE WAS GOIN' FOR A RIDE
"ALL OF A SUDDEN WE HEARD A SCREAM...THERE WAS BETTY'S HORSE RACIN' LIKE A BLUE STREAK THROUGH BROKEN COUNTRY. WE FOUND OUT LATER THAT A BLACK BEAR HAD CROSSED THE TRAIL AND SCAIRT HER HORSE. THE HORSE SHIED AND REARED—THEN BOLTED—BETTY LOST A STIRRUP—"

"WE KNOW TOBACCO BECAUSE WE GROW IT—WE SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE WE KNOW TOBACCO"—Tobacco Planters say

ED THOMPSON'S fine tobacco crops show the care of an experienced planter. He says: "My fancy grades went to Camel last year. So did the best lots grown by my planter friends. We know Camel buys the quality tobaccos. And we smoke Camels. Yes, so do most men who know tobacco from the ground up."

"I KNOW the difference between tobaccos that go into various cigarettes," states tobacco planter Joe R. Galloway, who knows tobacco from the ground up. "Year in—year out, my extra-fine grades have gone to Camel, including the best of my last crop. Camels are the smoke for me—and for most other growers!"

ALTON BARNES, though a young planter, already has a splendid record for growing top-grade tobaccos. He says: "When I saw my finest lots—and those of other planters—go to Camel, believe me, that's the cigarette I chose. From what I see all over, Camels sure are the favorite down in our tobacco country."

WE'LL HAVE TO RETURN IT RIGHT AWAY—BUT WHERE'D HE GET IT?
I BET IT'S MRS. KINNEY'S. THE LETTER K IS ON THE NAPKIN. BESIDES, IT'S FULL OF TATTLE-TALE GRAY—AND HER WASHES HAVE IT BAD!
HEY...
FIRST YOU STEAL OUR CHICKEN—THEN YOU INSULT US!
I'LL PUNCH YOU IN THE NOSE.
HERE, WHAT'S THE TROUBLE?
MY DOG STOLE THEIR CHICKEN, BUT I'M WILLING TO PAY FOR IT.
AND I DIDN'T INSULT HER.
YOU DID! I WON'T HAVE ANYBODY SAY I CAN'T WASH CLOTHES.
WHO SAID THAT? WHY MY OWN CLOTHES HAD TATTLE-TALE GRAY TILL I LEARNED MY SOAP LEFT DIRT BEHIND.
YEP, ME WIFE HAD THE SAME COMPLAINT TILL SHE FOUND THOSE NEW SOAP FLAKES WITH REAL NAPTHA IN 'EM.
THERE! EVEN THE COP KNOWS THE ANSWER—FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS! THE ONLY FLAKES WITH RICHER GOLDEN SOAP AND GENTLE, DIRT-LOOSENING NAPTHA! TRY 'EM, LIKE I DID, AND SEE HOW DIRT FLIES!
OH, I SUPPOSE I SHOULD TAKE THE TIP INSTEAD OF BEING SORE.
YOU'LL SHURE LIKE 'EM, MUM. ME WIFE SAYS THEY HAVEN'T THAT SNEEZY DUST.
AND IF POWDERY, DUSTY SOAPS HURT YOUR NOSE, THINK WHAT THEY DO TO CLOTHES!
OKAY, I'LL GET A BOX. AND IF THEY WORK, I'LL BLOW YOU ALL TO A CHICKEN DINNER.
FEW WEEKS LATER
M-M-M-M! WHAT A LUCKY BREAK FOR US WHEN MIKE STOLE THAT CHICKEN.
LUCKY BREAK FOR ME I'D SAY—SINCE IT PUT ME WISE TO FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS! THEY CERTAINLY GOT RID OF TATTLE-TALE GRAY IN NO TIME. MY CLOTHES LOOK LIKE A MILLION!

WONDER BREAD helps build VITALITY!

TRUE CHARM COMES FROM RADIANT VITALITY—NOT MADE-UP PRETTINESS!

HELEN, YOU REALLY AMAZE ME. YOU'RE SO FULL OF VITALITY! AND YOU KEEP SO FRESH AND PEPPY ALL DAY LONG

I CAN FEEL THE DIFFERENCE, TOO, MARGIE. I GET SO MUCH MORE FUN OUT OF THINGS NOW

OH—DO TELL ME HOW YOU DID IT!

IT'S SO SIMPLE IT SOUNDS HARD TO BELIEVE. BUT ACTUALLY ALL I DID WAS CUT DOWN ON THOSE HEAVY, RICH FOODS THAT SLOWED ME DOWN—MADE ME DULL. THEN TO BUILD UP MY ENERGY. I STARTED EATING 2 OR 3 SLICES OF WONDER BREAD WITH EVERY MEAL

YES—I BUILT UP MY ENERGY AND VITALITY THIS WAY —AND I ACTUALLY GREW SLIMMER, TOO!

WELL, I'M CERTAINLY GOING TO TRY WONDER BREAD MYSELF. THERE'S NO REASON WHY IT SHOULDN'T HELP ME, TOO!

SLO-BAKED—GIVES YOU VITAL ENERGY YOU NEED!

Do you want the kind of energy that builds vitality . . . that sustains you through a long hard day . . . keeps you feeling full of "go"?

One of the best sources of this kind of energy, food authorities agree, is Wonder Bread. It is made of specially selected, costly ingredients to give you the food-energy you need.

And remember—Wonder Bread is slo-baked . . . a special baking method that makes this energy-rich food easily digestible. Thus you get the sustaining energy that helps build vitality.

Says FAY WRAY

FAMOUS MOTION-PICTURE STAR

READ WHY 396,531 WOMEN OUT OF 439,688 SAY SLO-BAKED WONDER BREAD IS BEST

What an amazing record! To date 439,688 women have made the famous 1-2-3 comparison of breads in stores all over the country. They have compared virtually all popular brands by the very method experts themselves use to compare bread quality.

And of these 439,688 women, the choice was 9 to 1 for Wonder Bread over all others. This is a matter of record.

Yet, a few months ago most women thought all bread alike. Now these women have proved that Wonder Bread is really better . . . is the finest bread any woman can buy.

See for yourself! Its flavor is wheatier, more delicate. Its texture is smoother, softer, more moist. Its fragrant aroma more appetizing.

Get a loaf of Wonder Bread tomorrow. It's Slo-Baked—rich in quick energy—just the thing for growing children. Remember —the best costs no more than the second best.

"Go West, Young Man—"

It seems that sooner or later every boy must get a certain amount of wanderlust out of his system. Before going to college, two young fellows started on a flivver trip to the west and needed funds for expenses. One pawned a fine .85 Ct. Blue White, American Cut exceptionally brilliant diamond, set in a gent's attractive yellow gold ring with 4 diamonds, and has been unable to redeem because of college expenses during the past year. He says, "Education first; ring second"—and we agree with him.
Liquidation price $90

"What Is So Rare—"

The poet sang, "Oh, what is so rare as a day in June?"—and when this young lady lost her purse with over $150 in it, just a little more than a year ago, she hoped it would be the rarest June day in her life. She needed cash at once, and fortunately had a beautiful ½ Ct. Blue White Perfect Wesselton Quality Finest American Cut diamond, set in a lady's all-platinum mounting of attractive design with 6 diamonds, which she pawned to make up her loss.
We are forced to sell it now for.......$85

Moon Madness.

He told us that the girl he met at the summer resort and for whom he bought the ring didn't look nearly so good in his mother's living room, or at his friends' parties, as she did on the beach. "I guess summer and the moon and everything does something to you," he sadly remarked, as he pawned a ring that had never been worn. You'll like this exquisite lady's all-platinum, smartly styled ring with 8 round and 2 marquise diamonds and center diamond weighing 1.17 Ct of Blue White quality, Fine American Cut, and exceptional brilliancy.

Third Time the Charm?

A fight fan bet on Braddock to beat Louis—and pawned his diamond ring to pay. He'd make up for it, he said, when Schmeling fought Louis—and recently pawned his wife's diamond bracelet to make that bet. Brothers-in-law are now "gunning" for him, we understand. He'll come back with Baer, he says. In the meantime he hasn't come back with the money for the diamond ring, and you can have this lovely 1.78 Ct. Blue White, Fine American Cut Perfect and Flawless diamond, set in lady's platinum tailored prong mounting with 6 dias. for only..$375

"Nertz," said the Queen.

Just a little over a year ago she swept majestically into our establishment—a woman of queenly mien and well be-jeweled. Taking a beautiful diamond brooch from her purse, she held it up questioningly. "Don't you hate to part with such a beautiful piece?" said our appraisal expert. "Nertz," she replied. Suffice it to say, we asked no further questions and can give you no more of the story except to say that whoever gets this marvelous diamond brooch-clips combination, All-Platinum, Handmade, and distinctively fashioned with 279 diamonds; 54 baguette diamonds; 2 keystone shaped diamonds. All Blue White, Full Cut, Perfectly matched diamonds. Approximate weight, 12 Cts., which can be worn as brooch or clips, and which must be seen to be appreciated, will have a virtually unprecedented value in a remarkable piece of jewelry.

The Jeweler Who Overstocked Himself.

He bought on notes, anticipating large sales which did not develop. He had to raise cash quickly or default and ruin his credit reputation. The goods were sold at sacrifice prices, the jeweler saved his business—and you can save real money by purchasing any of these new items; diamonds, watches, wedding rings, etc.

DON'T DELAY
BUY NOW

Due to uncertain conditions the past few months less houses in the $12,000 to $15,000 class have been built—the result will be an acute shortage, now that confidence has been restored and the stock market advance indicates vastly improved business conditions by Fall.

We have under construction or completed in Scarsdale only 10 new houses for the Fall market—not counting, of course, those that are being built to order.

Six of these are six room houses—four have seven rooms. The floor plans are the result of our architects' careful study and best efforts.

We Will Assume Your Lease

If you want to move in to one of the finished houses we will assume your lease, or you can buy any of these houses on a basis of October first occupancy. By making your selection NOW you get your choice. if you wait—the particular house you prefer may be sold. You might as well buy NOW —and we will carry the house until you are ready to move in.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Mark Turkey Nest.

July 9, 1938.

ONE of the turkey hens that is nesting in a clover field on the Tribune's Du Page county farm was given an unusual bit of scenery this week. There are no trees or fence posts near this old hen when she sits on her eggs. But after the workers got through decorating her nesting site this hen had one pole about four feet long surmounted by an old tin can standing above her cozy home in a clover field.

The idea behind this stunt was to make some kind of easily seen reminder which would tell everybody where the hen had her nest. The boys were all set to work the big mower in the clover field. They didn't want to injure the turkey nest, so they decided on the pole and tin can as a reminder of this nest location. The turkey selected for a nesting site a bit of high ground in one corner of the field. When the boys came to this spot they mowed around it, leaving the patient old hen in a small island of uncut clover.

Wild Birds Saved.

Wild bird nests in this clover field were located by the flushing bar attached to the mower. This is one of the handiest gadgets ever designed to prevent the clattering blades of the mower from destroying birds and their young. The bar is just a long pole placed ahead of the mower and draped with old burlap sacks or other material which drags over the vegetation. When this curtain sweeps over a hay field it is bound to frighten a bird on a nest and make it flush. If a bird does fly out of the vegetation the man operating the mower invariably has time to stop his machine, find the nest and lift the blades so that he won't destroy the bird family. By using a flushing bar it's possible every season to save thousands of song and game birds that help the farmer by consuming weed seeds and injurious insects.

Dog owners living near the Tribune farm were reminded again this week of what may happen when they allow their pets to run all day over the countryside. Sometimes it may mean the loss of the roving dog. Sometimes it costs the owner money to let his dog roam around. The trouble started when a pair of dogs attacked a flock of turkeys on a farm close to the Tribune acreage. They killed and injured so many of the birds that when the owner figured up his losses they amounted to $250. The landowner saw the attack and finally caught the two dogs. Both of the raiders carried identification tags on their collars which made it easy for the farmer to find out who owned the animals. He returned the turkey killing pets to their owners, who had to pay for the $250 damages which the dogs had inflicted on the turkey flock.

Hatch 12 Bob Whites.

One of the bantam hens which has been incubating game bird eggs on the farm has turned out to be a sort of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." This bantam has spent the last few weeks on a nest of Bob White quail eggs in one of the hatching coops. The other day she hatched 12 young Bob Whites, so she was given an extra meal of grain for this good work. But the next day the bantam stepped on two of the tiny quail chicks, killing them. She got a black mark on her report card for this carelessness. Her 10 chicks are already running through the grass in search of insects, and as soon as they are large enough to care for themselves they will be freed in the farm woods.

The grebes or helldivers that nested on the farm this season are cheering the weatherman and all the big rains that he poured over the landscape recently. These birds don't mind it when the farm ponds raise their levels. They are expert divers, and the more water the merrier is their fun in going under the water to find food. Two families of these expert divers made their nests and hatched their young on the farm this year. With the helldivers taking the deep water and the black crowned night herons and the blue herons staking out their claims in the shallow water around the edge of the ponds, the water birds have their hunting rights pretty well defined.

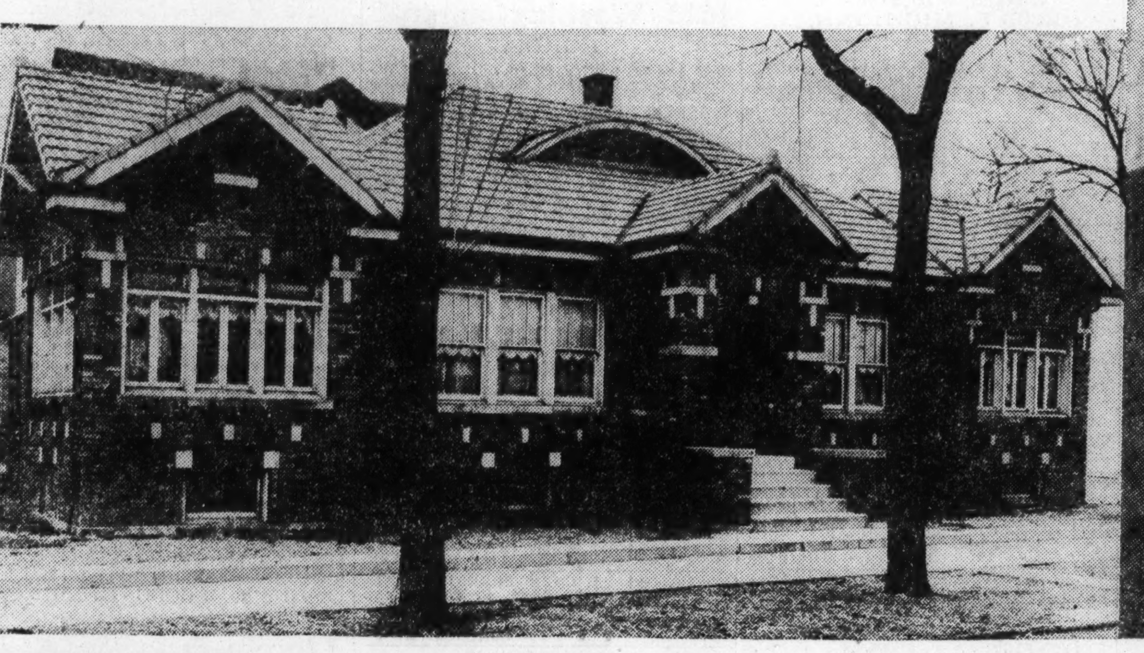
"It was such a bargain we bought within an hour"

Mrs. Arthur V. Smith, 6422 S. St. Louis Ave., tells how she and her husband found a new home with the help of Tribune want ads.



The home at 6422 S. St. Louis Ave. which Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Smith found through a Tribune want ad.

"THE firm my husband works for moved from Austin to the Clearing industrial district. Although we owned our own home in Austin, we decided to move and locate on the south side.

"We sold our house and spent two or three weeks driving around south side neighborhoods looking for houses for sale. But we didn't find anything we wanted.

CONSULTS TRIBUNE WANT ADS

"One Sunday morning my husband said, 'Let's drive by 64th Place and St. Louis Ave.' He had seen a house at that location advertised by Dovenmuehle, Inc., 110 S. Dearborn St., in the Tribune want ads.

"It was a large, bungalow-style house with a tile roof, and very good looking from the outside. We looked through the house and decided that we liked it very much.

LESS THAN HALF OF COST PRICE

"Then we called up the real estate department of Dovenmuehle, Inc., and talked to Mr. Jannotta. He gave us a price of $7,500. He told us the house was eleven years old and had cost $17,000 to build. My husband asked him to hold the phone a minute while we discussed it.

"We decided it was a real bargain. My husband asked Mr. Jannotta if he would give us an option for one hour until he could get to the office with a deposit. He got there within the hour with a $200 deposit and signed the contract.

"We have been in the house for some time now and like it very much. We are grateful to the Tribune want ads for helping us to find it."

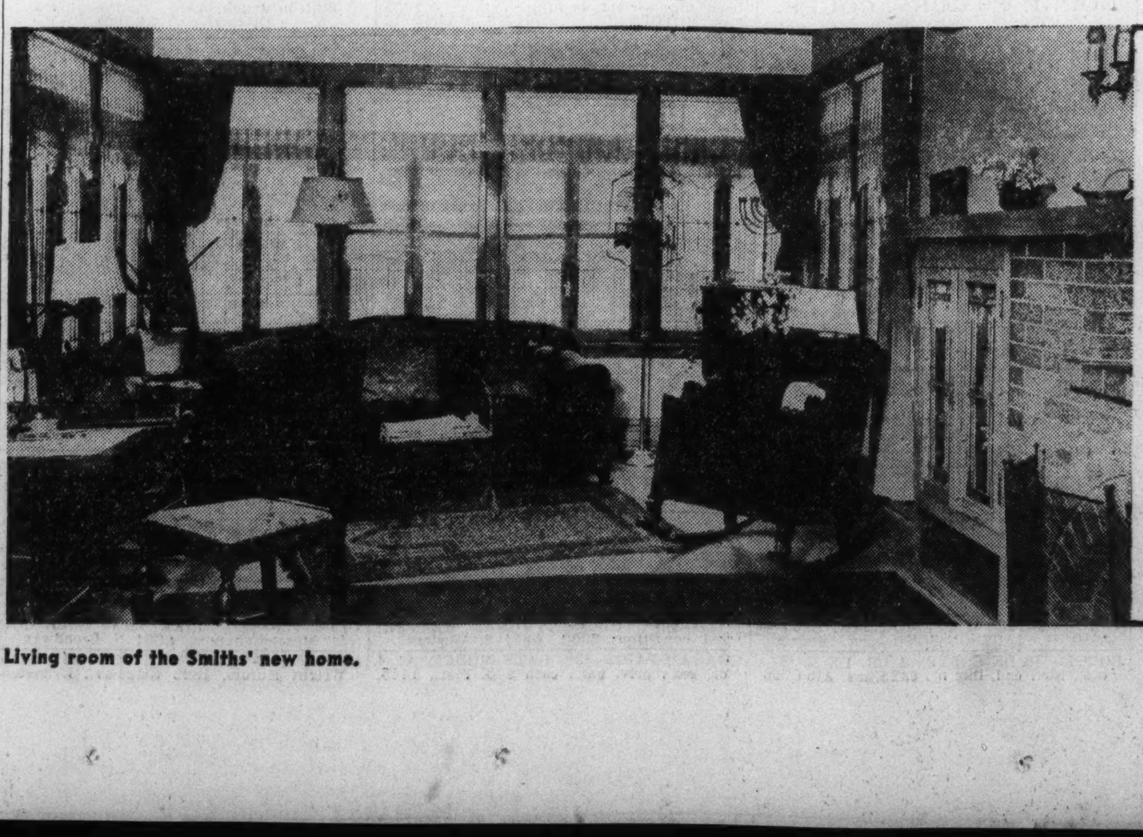
ARE YOU looking for a house, bungalow, two-flat, or a building site? Tribune want ads can help you find what you want, as they have helped thousands of satisfied home owners.*

IF YOU are thinking of buying a home of your own, watch the offers in the real estate columns of the Tribune want ad section. In the Tribune you have far more opportunities to find what you want.*

TODAY, as for more than 20 years, the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.*



Living room of the Smiths' new home.

"I have wanted to tell you how very helpful the Chicago Tribune has been to us in the sale of real estate properties. We have been using Tribune want ads for nearly fifteen years with consistently good results, and a large share of our classified advertising money now goes to the Tribune.

"We have come to look upon the Chicago Tribune as an invisible partner in making property sales."

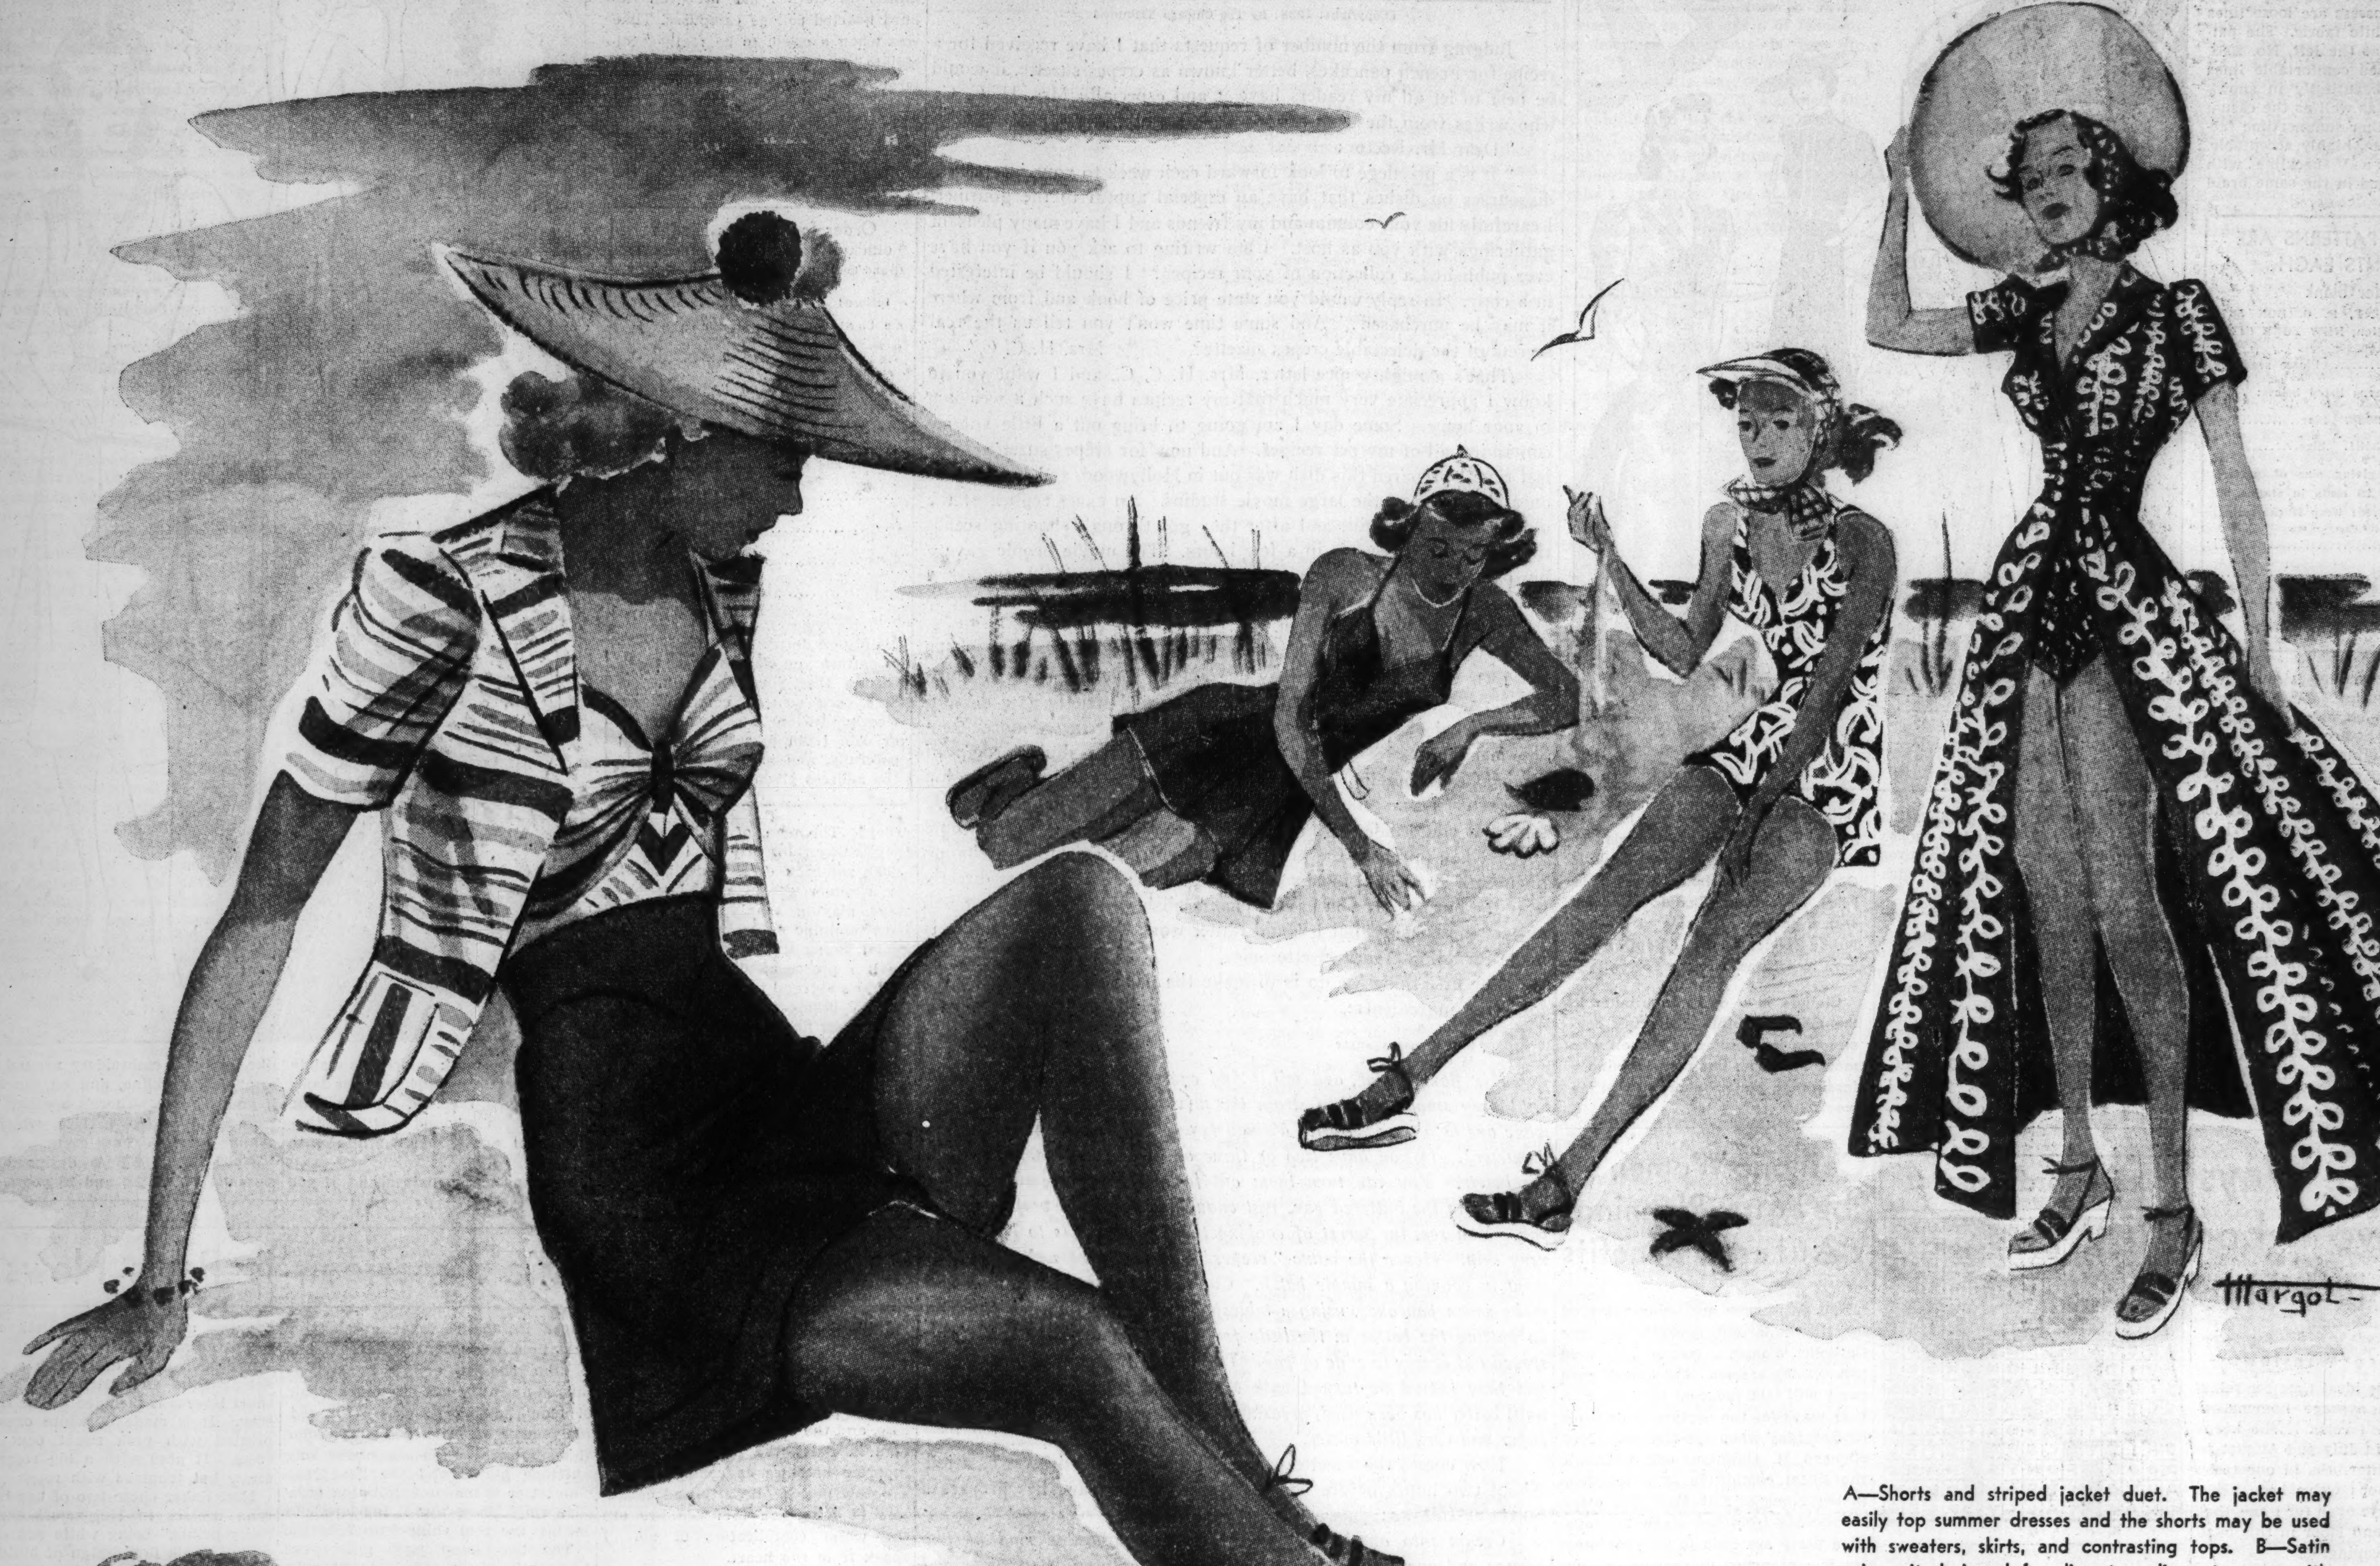
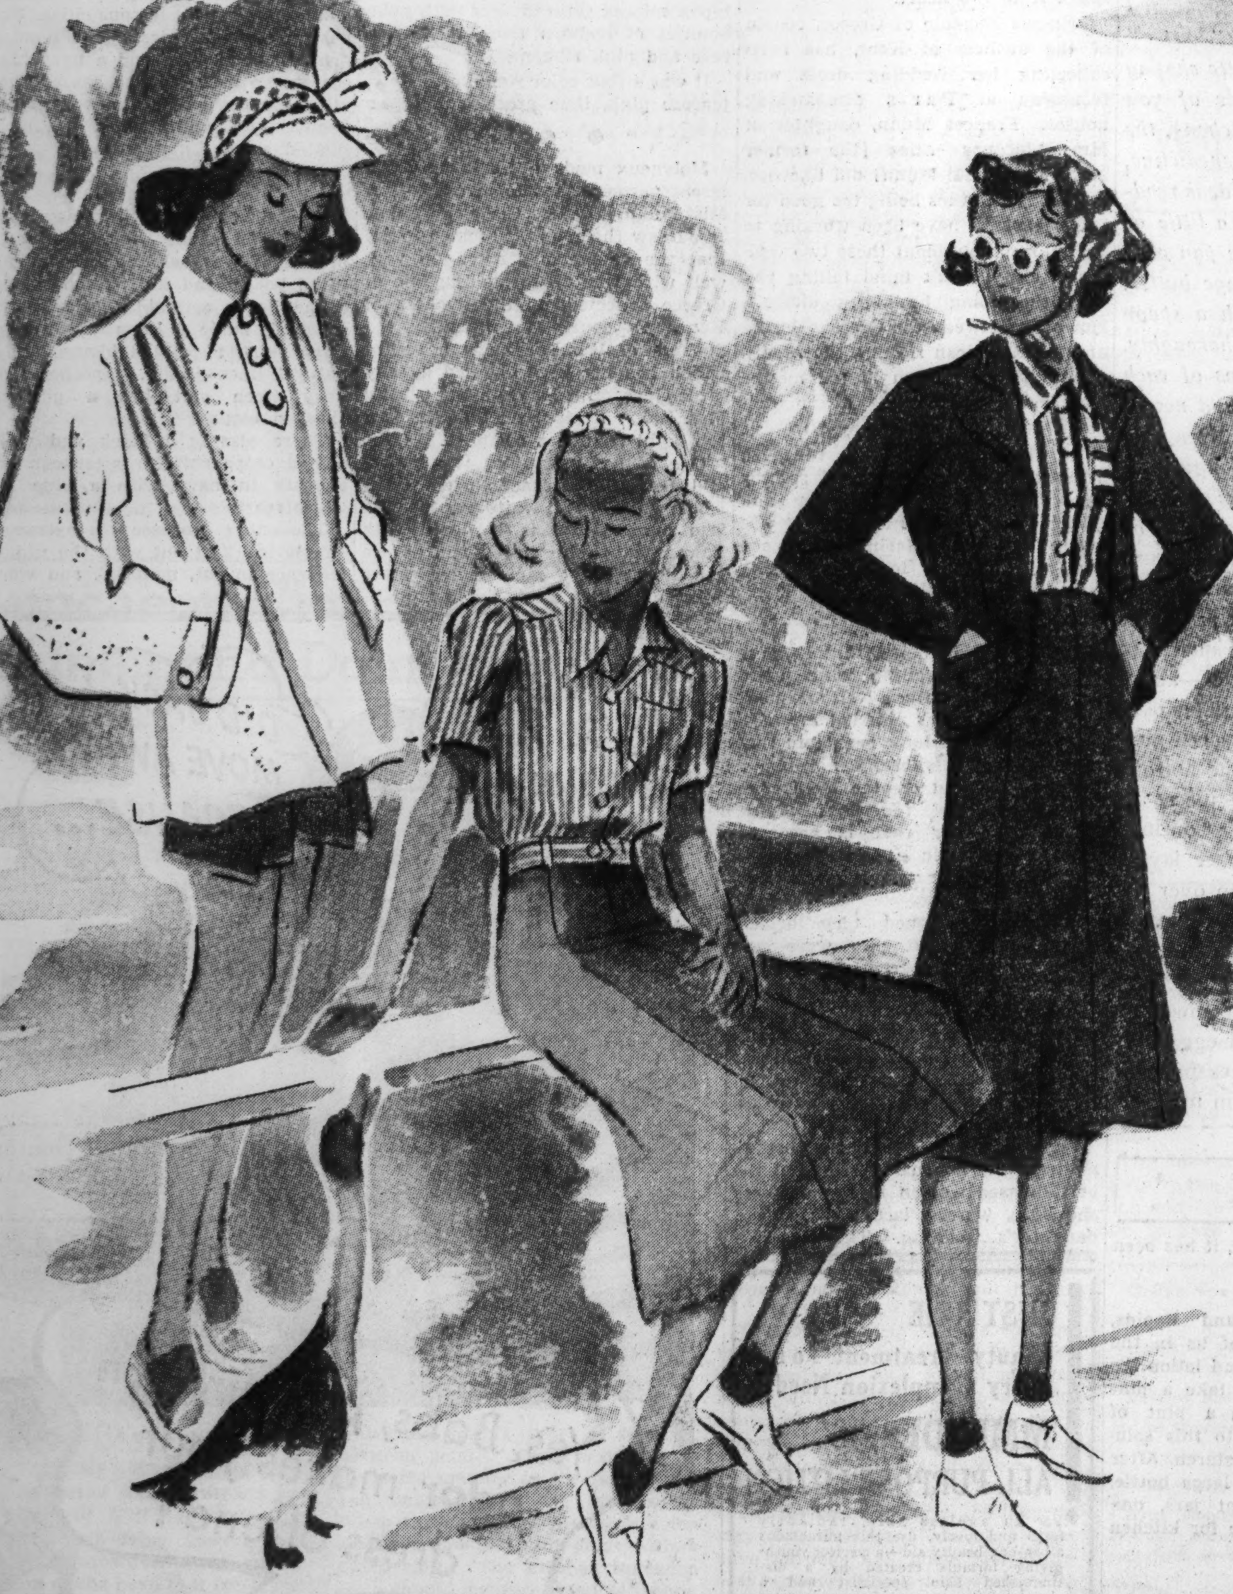
Part 6 | Women's Features

JULY 10, 1938



A—Shorts and striped jacket duet. The jacket may easily top summer dresses and the shorts may be used with sweaters, skirts, and contrasting tops. B—Satin swim suit designed for slim streamlines, to wear with contrasting beach coat, accessories. Comes in variety of vivid colors in either skirt suit or daring one-piece affair. C—Another form-revealing buy, printed stuff that stretches over the streamline and clings there. Especially effective in black and white. D—Moderately priced find in vivid print cotton. The coat is made to match the suit of the same cotton mixed with stretchable lastex. A floppy hat may top the ensemble.



E—Newest beach idea, short smock of white or colored terry cloth, the sleeves long and cuffed in plain material to match shoulder bands and pocket flaps. F—New and as neat as a pin is this twosome of demure chambray skirt, slightly flared, and a short-sleeved striped cotton top. Belt of striped fabric accents the skirt. G—Denim suit to be worn with striped or plain shirt. Suit skirt flares slightly and short jacket hugs the ribs and closes down the front with amusing wooden buttons. Created in other colors, too, and priced around $5. Grand outfit for the summer-time gadabout.

Toqs for Both Beach Lounger and Ardent Swimmer Adopt Brilliant Color and Artful Trimming

By RHEA SEEGER

SNAPPY beach togs, ready for the lazy hours in or out of the water, come along each season to stun even the most hardened shopper with new ideas, colors, and materials, together with all the trickery that makes such important loot so irresistible. Swim suits are, 'tis true, shrinking areas of fabric. They simply can't be shorter or briefer, but the few inches of stuff used for the making grows sleeker, more shining, and more colorful every summer.

Terry cloth still fashions the smartest and most practical beach robes (smart shoppers buy them for summer beach wear and then use them as bathrobes later), but the colors have become more dramatic—sun yellow, jade green, cerise, with the white numbers coming out with artful trim of colorful bands down the front, around the cuffs, collar, and pockets. Short, long, and in-between lengths are plentiful, with both short sleeves and long sleeves, and any number of capacious pockets decorating the exteriors.

Slacks are made of every imaginable color and fabric from seersucker to smooth sharkskin, hop sacking, and rustic weaves of cotton and simulated linen. Even sailcloth in bold colors and white is used for tailored beach and play slacks. Shirts to go with these slacks boast as many as four to six deep pockets, and either very short or long sleeves, with a cinched-in belt around the middle. Capes are in second place for popularity as compared to the robes, and most of the latter are cut with flared skirts and neat little waistlines and are so cleverly cut and designed that lots of them go out with summer dance dresses, never to see a beach.

Printed cotton, printed coarse linen, plain or printed smart piqué, and sharkskin are the materials most effective for such coats and robes, for most of them are severely tailored, with chest lapels, moderately puffed shoulder lines, and sleeves that fit as well as anything you will see in coats with more expensive price marks. Coats and swim suits to match provide excellent beach ensembles at extremely low prices, especially the colorfully printed bright cottons.

Lastex swim suits are peak attractions in any of the collections. The colors are gay, with plenty of white and black. The black satins and the shining white satin lastex models are worn with robes that contrast. Black and white accessories are high fashion, and white against suntan or with a cerise robe is something to make the most blasé beach lounger sit up and start talking. Skirted suits, the skirts shorter than formerly and flared smartly, with built-up tops, are the answer to the demands for suits that are feminine, and such finds come in cotton, satin, the satin lastex, silk, and jersey weaves. New colors are sulphur yellow, turquoise blue, cerise, chartreuse green, aquamarine, and the copper tones. These are particularly effective against a good suntan and may be worn with dark, high colored, or white accessories. Sun glasses with rims to match, small but important accessories, with swim caps to match exactly the color of the suit, are this year's important contribution to a good beach scene.

Vacation clothes not particularly designed for beach wear, but casual enough for the free life away from town and dress-parade bother, are denim suits in three fascinating summer colors, two tones of blue (light and dark) and a dusty rose. These are priced down around $5 and consist of a simple skirt and fitted short jacket. Other finds of the season are the skirt and shirt top combines, the skirt of smooth flannel and the shirt of matching silk, or the skirt of plain cotton chambray and the shirt of fine striped material. These may be used for daytime wear and sightseeing binges for the summer gadabout, and also are grand buys for the wardrobes of the crowds that trek across the country in trailers.

Aquatic accessories to accent swim suit or beach outfit—dark green sun glasses rimmed in white; Schiaparelli's cellophane disk hat in amber or dark green, made of a perfect disk with twin slits through which the band of material is pulled that anchors it to the headline. Beach bags reach capacity limits this season. They're made of sailcloth, peasant crash linens, large floral patterned cotton, and widths of striped, plaid, or checked awning cloth.

From the numerous stunning showings of summer beach and play clothes we've sketched the best looking loot of the collections. New, bright, and fitted by experts, they all will make a perfect vacation wardrobe at prices to please the most limited budgeteer.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

Two of the most cooling factors any dress can possess are loose lines and spanking white fabric. The pattern illustrated at the left, No. 2088, has the prescribed comfortable lines and makes up beautifully in snowy white sharkskin as well as the casual hop sacking. Other summertime fabrics are, of course, highly acceptable. The dress has a V neckline with rever collar, edged in the same braid that trims the flowing sleeves and the buttoned closing. Shirring emanating from the shoulder yoke lends fullness to the bodice. The skirt is trim through the hips and plaits front and back achieve desired fullness for the hemline. If you like, make the frock with a buttoned high neckline, as shown in the center sketch. Prints are especially suitable for this version of the pattern.

George Rector

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Judging from the number of requests that I have received for a recipe for French pancakes, better known as crêpes suzette, it would be best to let all my readers have it and especially Mrs. H. C. C., who writes from the deep south—Montgomery, Ala.

"Dear Mr. Rector:

"It is a privilege to look forward each week to your interesting discourses on dishes that have an especial appeal to the gourmet. I carefully file your column and my friends and I have many pleasant gatherings with you as host. I am writing to ask you if you have ever published a collection of your recipes? I should be interested in a copy. In reply would you state price of book and from where it may be purchased? And some time won't you tell us the real secrets of the delectable crêpes suzette? Mrs. H. C. C."

That's a mighty nice letter, Mrs. H. C. C., and I want you to know I appreciate very much that my recipes have such a welcome in your home. Some day I am going to bring out a little volume containing all of my pet recipes. And now for crêpes suzette. The last time I prepared this dish was out in Hollywood, and it was done on a set in one of the large movie studios. An exact replica of the old Rector's was built, and after they got through shooting scenes they busted up Rector's in a few hours. The movie people gave a big party as a final gesture to the passing of Rector's. I was asked to prepare crêpes suzette for the guests and I found myself back in the restaurant business again, but not for long.

There's a Lot of Showmanship in Serving Crepes Suzette.

A lot of people think that French pancakes are something like our own flapjacks. Well, they are except they are ever so much thinner and are served strictly as a dessert. I know of no food that attracted more attention when served in the dining room of Rector's. There's plenty of showmanship in doing this dish right at your own dining table. If you decide to go in for crêpes suzette in a big way, I would suggest you purchase the proper equipment. It resembles a chafing dish, with an alcohol burner and a large flat pan which sets directly over the burner. If you have a chafing dish with direct heat, it will answer the purpose, but I would rather work with the gadget that is made for doing crêpes suzette only.

The first thing we do is to make the pancake batter, using the following ingredients:

1 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
3 eggs, unbeaten
Butter for frying pan

Mix flour, sugar, and salt. Add eggs and milk slowly, stirring until very smooth. Then strain the mixture. French pancakes are made one at a time. Butter a small frying pan (about five inches in diameter). If you have two or three of these small pans, so much the better. You can turn them out faster. Pour a small amount of batter in the buttered pan, just enough to cover the bottom of the pan. You see, the secret of cooking these pancakes is to have them very thin. Hence the name "crepes." It would be well to experiment in cooking a sample batch. Cut the recipe in thirds; this will make seven pancakes, using a tablespoon of batter for each pancake. In putting the batter in the little frying pan tilt it so the batter will spread out evenly to edge of pan. These little pancakes brown quickly and they should be turned with a spatula. Keep on cooking them until batter has been used, greasing the frying pan each time with soft paper and very little butter.

Now comes the suzette part of this wonderful dessert creation. About two hours before you start cooking the pancakes prepare a butter as follows:

Cream into one-half pound of butter the grated rind of one orange and one lemon, also two tablespoons of granulated sugar and the juice of half the orange. After you have prepared the "butter" place it in the refrigerator until needed. Set the crepes suzette chafing dish before you at the dining table. Also have alongside of you the stack of thin pancakes (which you have made in the kitchen), the orange butter, and three liqueurs, not liquors. A bottle of Benedictine, a bottle of Grand Marnier, and a bottle of cognac. No, my dear readers, we are not going to use the whole three bottles, just a little of each. Now watch. Ignite the alcohol burner and place the pan over it. Drop on the pan two tablespoons of the prepared orange butter. When the butter has melted add four pancakes, and with a spoon and fork push and turn the pancakes around to heat thoroughly. Right now pour quickly over the pancakes two tablespoons of each of the liqueurs. Ignite the liqueurs with a lighted match and now a beautiful colored flame will arise. More showmanship! Now fold the pancakes and fold again so that they will be sort of triangular in shape. Keep spooning the sauce over them. Serve three or four to a portion, with the sauce, and then proceed with the next batch of pancakes and repeat the operation.

Rice and fruit combinations are most popular for family desserts, so I thought you would like to try baked rice and pineapple pudding. Cook one cup of rice in two quarts of rapidly boiling salted water until tender—about fifteen minutes. Drain, pour fresh hot water over rice and again drain. Butter a medium sized pudding dish. Spread a layer of rice on the bottom, sprinkle lightly with brown sugar and dot with small pieces of butter, then a layer of chopped or shredded pineappe. Continue these layers until rice and pineapple have been used. Rice layers should be about one-half inch high. Pour pineapple sirup over the top and bake in moderate oven (uncovered) for twenty minutes. Chill and serve with plain sweet cream, or if you would like a cream sauce here is a very nice one: Separate two eggs, beat yolks with one-eighth teaspoon salt, beat whites with one-third cup of powdered sugar until foamy, pour one-half pint of heavy cream over egg yolks and beat with rotary beater until thick, adding one-half teaspoon of vanilla. Combine by folding beaten egg whites into cream mixture.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

This current rage for plenty of femininity in clothes has hit even the hard hearted college campuses. Time was when a co-ed, to be really "collegiate," had to affect sweaters too large for her, borrow her brother's shirts, and be dressed just too "casual" for words to be in true campus style. It seems now that "pretty" clothes are the order. Who gives the order? The men, of course. Didn't they always, directly or indirectly?

The sun-back dress I designed for my summer school stay [we're always playing tennis after classes] is as feminine as perfume. Bob, the genial young instructor in Victorian English prose, liked it very much! And he's a grand tennis player, which is NOT beside the point!

My frock has wide shoulder straps at the décolletage in back, whereas the front is softly draped in surplice fashion, a flattering style for the bustline. The waistline is snugly fitted and dips up in a charming arc into the bodice. I made my outfit like the one illustrated at the lower left. I chose navy and white polka dotted piqué for the frock, which has a slide fastener down the back, and the same color scheme reversed for the little bolero, which is bound in still another polka dot arrangement, white with red.

You may use a plain shade, if you like, and use embroidery around the armholes, neckline, and on the belt, if you use one. There's another pattern for this, No. E-11175, which is available for 15 cents extra.

Trousseau of Chic American Is Paris News

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—When a Big Somebody marries a Big Somebody Else, and the bride collects her trousseau in Paris, the life of a fashion reporter becomes as complicated as a jigsaw puzzle. Royalty and daughters of America's first families are the worst complicators of all. I speak from the heart.

Princess Eugénie of Greece, cousin of the duchess of Kent, has been collecting her wedding dress and trousseau at Paris dressmaking houses. Frances Munn, daughter of Mme. Jacques Allez [the former Mary Astor Paul Munn] did likewise.

Nobody's clothes being too good for you readers, I have been working to get information about these two weddings, and I don't mind telling you that the going has been difficult. However, between the Greek princess and the American royalty, the American won hands down in the matter of keeping dark vital information about her trousseau and bridal dress. Now, at last, all has been revealed, although the atmosphere of secrecy at Molyneux's was as heavy and guarded around Miss Munn as it was around Princess Marina when she was being garbed for her wedding with the duke of Kent.

You may have heard that Frances Munn wore a trailing white satin wedding dress with a veil of point lace when she was married recently, but you may not have been told that the satin was a brand new kind, finely ribbed and created by French looms especially for Miss Munn. That's an honor that is accorded only to royalty in general, and is a Gallic bow to our reigning American families.

Molyneux designed the bridesmaids' dresses, but they were executed in America from his designs and French material, which is a tearose pink classic satin — no special weaving for the ladies in waiting. Their hats were enormous, natural colored leghorns, trimmed with tearose pink satin sashes and pink roses. Long mitts were worn.

Molyneux made about twenty different garments for the trousseau of Miss Munn, now Mrs. George F. Baker Jr. I saw them, and it seemed to me that the trousseau stacked up very well with what Princess Eugénie of Greece collected, or the duchess of Kent. Of course, for quantity the duchess of Windsor made a record which has not been equaled by any bride since. But for taste and quality Mrs. Baker has proved that she is a top flight trousseau compiler.

One of her ensembles is a jacket and dress for afternoon wear, made of black, gold, and white printed silk. The loose jacket is bordered with flowers cut from the design, as are the short sleeves. Molyneux gives the dress a plaited skirt, the box plaits running up above the waistline to make the midriff very slim.

A garden party dress with a long, flaring skirt and fitted bodice with short sleeves is included in the trousseau. It is made of white organdy printed with pink sweet peas and roses. It goes with a big romantic straw hat trimmed with roses.

Mrs. Baker chose two of her trousseau dresses in Molyneux's famous "city prints," being white silk crêpe with a chalk line design of buildings and monuments of famous cities. She has an afternoon dress of a London print in chalk blue and a navy blue coat to go over it. She has another afternoon dress in a Cannes print in brown and white with a finely plaited skirt.

• • •

She has a scrambled color sports ensemble made of linen with a black linen skirt, a printed blouse, and a natural linen jacket. Another light navy linen suit has a gingham checked blouse.

There also is a black and white dotted crêpe suit for afternoon and another in navy with a blue and white scarf.

The entire trousseau is extremely simple in effect but with the utmost elegance in cut, material, and workmanship.

Here Are Ways to Save Labor in Your Home

By Claire Winslow.

Summer is the ideal time for relaxation, but the average homemaker and mother can't relax if she keeps the same pace in July and August as she does in winter. So, in our treks through the shops we've been keeping a weather eye open for items that will save time and labor in this business of housekeeping.

There's the matter of tablecloths, for instance. Why not dispense with them altogether, for summer, and use linen place mats, instead? Or try the new, pyroxylin-coated material that comes in several sizes for the informal dining table and that can be kept clean simply by wiping off with a damp cloth.

If you're in the country or the woods or at the shore there's no need to worry about costly knives and forks and spoons if you use the types we discovered, the other day. And you'll want some of the cheap but sturdy and practical dish towels to wipe them with, too—ones that are already hemmed for you.

We've found a short-cut for cleaning silver. It's safe, economical, and rapid.

So, we'll list all these items for ready reference:

1. A tablecloth in a waterproof, flexible material [not oilcloth], and chair pads to match, if you wish. The new basket design in red and blue on white, as shown in the picture today, is especially pretty. This cloth never goes to the laundry. To clean, simply wipe it off with a damp cloth.

2. To save your best flat silver [and ideal for use in the summer cottage] is a 26 piece set of stainless steel knives, forks, and spoons with stunning handles in red, blue, ivory, green, yellow, or horn brown. A butter knife and sugar shell come in this handsome box, the price of which will surprise you. It's a wonderful value. And if you wish to get iced tea spoons, salad forks, and butter spreaders, they're available at a slight additional cost.

3. It hardly pays to save flour sacks, boil them and hem them for towels when you can get a dozen of them with the work already done for you, and with brand new flour sack liners used, too. These come in neat packs of a dozen each and the cost is just a fraction of what you pay for linen dish towels. They're grand economy for the summer place.

4. Save time in the summer by cleaning your flat silver in a jiffy. Instead of polishing and rubbing, and then rubbing some more, try a cleaning kit that consists of a tray and a chemical powder. Dissolve the powder in warm water, as directed, and immerse all the silver at once by placing it on the tray and dipping this in the solution. Then rinse and dry with a soft towel. That's all there is to the process, and it's harmless to the silver, of course.

WIPE IT OFF AND IT'S LAUNDERED

This tablecloth saves time and energy for it never has to go to the laundry. Made of an attractive, pyroxylin-coated fabric, it is quickly cleaned by wiping it with a damp cloth. It will not crack.

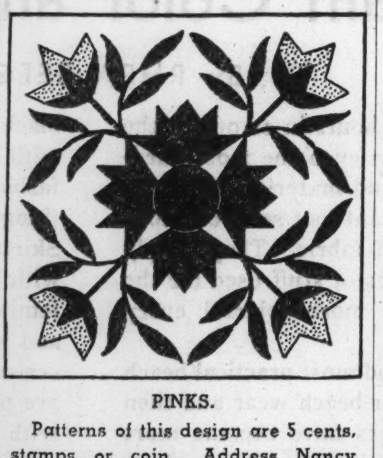
Spiced Pinks Give Delicate Colors to Quilt Block



PINKS.

By Nancy Cabot.

Spiced pinks, those dainty and fragrant flowers, furnish a perfect model for a quilt pattern to be used for special occasions or as a spread instead of a quilt. The elaborate applique design, "Pinks," is one of those blocks seen frequently in exhibitions and at state fairs, and it is one which usually takes a prize. The needlework on this type of quilt must be almost perfect. The color scheme always should be the same as that of the natural bloom, shading from a soft pink through rose to a magenta. The lacy green leaves always are a rich, almost forest green, against a snowy white background. "Pinks" measures 15 inches square when completed, and twenty applique blocks are set together with 4 inch bands between blocks, and surrounded by an 8 inch border and a one-half inch bias binding.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Rae McNab, Cleveland, O.: I use sour milk to clean and brighten my silver. Once every week or so I put my silver in this milk and leave it about an hour. It comes out bright as new—unless, of course, it has been allowed to get too dark.

• • •

Laura Bell B—, Grand Rapids, Mich.: There are ten of us in the family and I mix our hand lotion for winter and summer. I take a pint of vinegar, mix it with a pint of water, and then mix into this solution four tablespoons of starch. After that I shake well in a large bottle, and divide up into pint jars, one for upstairs use and one for kitchen use.

It is well, we think, to pause in the year's occupation with beauty to ask the whys and wherefores of it all. Is all the creaming, massaging, dieting, hair styling and general beauty pursuit worth while?

As a matter of fact, the idea was inspired by a man's remark at a recent luncheon attended by what this editor believes to be the perfect tribute to modern beauty representation. The occasion called out about 200 women whom we may classify as the successful business and professional type. Present, too, were more than half a hundred young women graduates on the eve of their chosen careers. Here, more than among the usual Hollywood pictorial entries, one saw the success of modern beauty pursuit.

The man's remark referred to was a slight belittlement of the beauty appeal, but the concession that clothes, makeup, the streamlined figure and smart posture did lengthen the youthful appearance of women who'd possibly served fifteen, twenty or more years in business or the professions. Inquiry disclosed that the particular man likes 'em young and blonde and starry-eyed, which may still be a common weakness of the masculine sex, but which does not alter the status of the older woman whose economic success depends upon her own self. However, it may be remarked in passing that probably 90 per cent of the women present on that luncheon occasion was married and conducting homes, indicating them as a preferred group romantically, too.

Our point, however, is that modern beauty practices and modern beauty advantages contribute largely to the success these women enjoy. They are smart. They look smart, beautifully groomed, up on their toes, and an authentic charm of manner and grace of being distinguishes them. Which, we insist, stems from all this modern beauty education. Nor is the state of fine personal being peculiar to any one class or group of women today. One meets it in every vocation and pursuit. Before it became known that every woman had a chance at distinction of appearance, the rewards went only to a chosen few, blessed at birth with the gift of beauty. It is thanks to modern beauty preaching that the girl born plain has acquired the wit and the courage to proceed to make herself over.

And often she becomes a miracle of perfection. She still may not subscribe to pretty-girl requirements of face, or to great classic beauty, but her modern beauty weapons are so potent that through sheer smartness of dress, coiffure, figure, charm and grace she can stand up to the born beauty and often outshine her. If she has personality she very likely will outdo the born beauty.

But you do not need to confine your observations of what the modern beauty technique accomplishes to groups of working women or groups of home women, social or otherwise. You can march right into the chosen field, Hollywood, and see what you may see there today. We know that the so-called glamor is largely a matter of build-up. The scenes they adorn are glamorously set. The clothes they wear tax the artistic wits of the best in designing. The coiffures they wear are the result of artistic study.

None of which advantages, incidentally, is denied to women in nonprofessional walks of life, so publicized are the Hollywood methods of building up potential star material. Neither is it asked of the future box-office star that she be of a pretty-girl type or a classic beauty. Look over your own roster of favorites and see how they have come up from little, in the way of arresting beauty, to their current status. True, they had something—sparkle, personality, acting ability, freshness of appeal, or time and money would not have been spent on them.

We repeat that all women have access to their secrets. Magazine and newspaper articles, charm and personality developing aids, beauty salons and advertisments all combine to pound in the truth that there is no such thing as an unattractive woman today, only those who do not want to be attractive.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

If pretty perfumes have palled on you, try the newest offering of a great French house. It has elegance, distinction, sophistication and sheer beauty that set it apart from all others.

For the last few months perfumes all have been in the sweetness and light category. The admonition to women that they "look pretty, please," was taken seriously by the perfumers, so out they came with a family of definitly "pretty" fragances.

If prettiness has palled, here's good news for you: There is a de luxe perfume out now that is a magnificent blend of elegance and sophistication. Nothing coy or cute about it. It's a poetic perfume, with undertones of languor and overtones of exuberance. It strikes a new note in the season's perfumes. It's original, interesting, AND the kind men like.

If we can judge by some careful checking we did recently, men abhor sweetness in a perfume. They may talk as they like about femininity being a fine thing in a woman, but when it comes to fragrances a woman wears they stand about 100 per cent for the scents we would describe as sophisticated.

They like this perfume. Like it even better than some women did. It doesn't have heaviness, which they loathe, but it does have a certain elegant, well bred "zing."

It's a bouquet, but not floral. There is just a breath of an oriental note to give it the haunting, provocative quality that sets it apart. And it is a good perfume, in the real sense of the word. Made and bottled in France, product of one of the world's leading houses, an establishment that launches a new perfume rather rarely and then after considerable reflection.

The bottle, like the perfume, is de luxe. It takes the shape of a broad bow of gold ribbon, sides and stopper of gold, and the top, which is the inside of the ribbon's loops, a rich, dark blue. It rests, jewel like, in a white and gold chest that will do decorative and useful service later as a case for your valuables.

Some shops sell this by the dram. Many shops have it now in the one size in which it is imported. Its arrival in this country is considered by those "in the trade" as the most exciting perfume news of the summer.

For information about this perfume, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write to her in care of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

If you are looking for ways and means of keeping your bedroom cooler, check on the new electric fans with increased fan efficiency. If you have only one window in your bedroom, place the fan on a window sill, the blades facing into the room, the window open and the fan tilted so that the air flow across your bed is slightly upwards. If your bedroom has two windows, open both, place bed between them if possible in the path of air current and set your fan in window with the blades facing outward. In this way the fan will exhaust the hot air from room and at same time draw cooler outside air across room and across your bed.

Your bathroom or kitchen wall can be given a new complexion by a new acid resisting and stainproof wall board which has a smooth and lustrous glasslike surface. This material comes in large sheets and any good carpenter can apply it on your existing walls.

The warmer the night, the later we stay out—and for those of us who have gardens and pools and shrubbery we love, there's a charming new pedestal outdoor lighting unit of the mushroom type. It is low mounted with a choice of soft reflector colors in blue and gold, blue and red, or in two shades of green. These reflectors will cast a soft twenty foot circle of light.

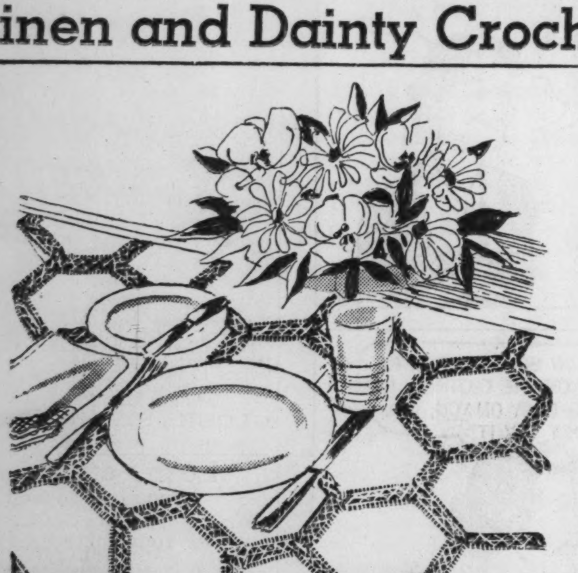
Luncheon Cloth Uses Fine Linen and Dainty Crochet



By Ellen Bruce.

Gay summer luncheon parties in town or in the country always have the aspect of festivity. Tables are decorated with fresh flowers, tableware is pleasantly informal, and the luncheon cloths have that fresh, crisp air of an iced delicacy. The luncheon cloth illustrated today is a mosaic design combining dainty handkerchief linen and fine crochet work. The linen is cut into hexagonally shaped blocks and then hemmed. The crochet edge is worked around each block, and the finished hexagons are set together with over and over stitches. In joining these blocks care must be exercised in having the grain of the linen run in the same direction.

The luncheon napkins used with the set are dainty bits cut into hexagons which measure 14 inches in diameter between points. These are made in the same manner as the large cloth and finished with the same edge. When the napkins and cloth are finished, stretch flat and press with a damp cloth. The finished luncheon cloth should measure about 44 inches. A fine white mercerized crochet cotton No. 50 is used, but one may obtain any desired color to match the linen selected.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the mosaic luncheon set, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Sally to Take 100 Guests to Film Preview

By Sally Joy Brown.

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.

Sundays seem to come along pretty fast this time of the year, don't they, boys and girls? We no sooner get all set for one party than it's time to announce another. In spite of all the good times we've had so far, we're just getting started; so those of you who have been disappointed in your former attempts to win invitations can just remember that there are lots of nice treats ahead of us.

I think you're going to be thrilled with our plans for July 21. I'm excited about them myself. It's something that I'm sure none of you boys or girls ever enjoyed before, but I know you've heard of such things, and envied the people able to attend them. Know what we're going to do? We're going to see a movie, one that's just suited for children—AND—we'll see it in a private projection room! The picture is "Lord Jeff," starring two of your favorite stars, Mickey Rooney and Freddy Bartholomew, and I know you'll enjoy every moment of it. It's about a school for children who have no parents, and these youngsters are taught seamanship, so that when they grow up they can belong to the crew of some of the biggest and finest boats afloat. The story is laid in England, and the boys who make good have a chance to sail on the Queen Mary.

The movie is quite exciting, and it's going to be screened especially for us. It's not playing at any theater just now, although it probably will be in the Balaban and Katz neighborhood houses later on, so Bill Bishop of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has very kindly arranged that we have a regular preview of it, just the way they do in Hollywood. We'll go to a miniature theater, and the picture will be screened just for us. The public is not admitted and you can't even pay to get in to such a screening.

I'll have lots more to tell you about our party tomorrow, but now I must let you know how to go about winning an invitation. We'll have room for 50 boys and 50 girls, and they'll be the children who can prove to me by their letters that they deserve an invitation. Of course, I want to take the children who'll enjoy this special kind of movie the most, and if you think you should be included, sit down and get to work on that letter.

About those letters—you all must write your own, and don't forget to tell me your name, address and age. If you ask for invitations for some one else, or forget those three items, you're out. Just tell me in your own words why you'd like to come with me on July 21, have your note on my desk by next Thursday and maybe you'll see your name listed with the winners in next Sunday's TRIBUNE. The address is Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Here are the names of the fortunate boys and girls who'll come out to Wrigley field with me next Thursday to see the Cubs play Philadelphia. Judging from your letters, the Cubs are going to have some of the most enthusiastic cheering any team ever received. See you on the fourteenth, boys and girls!

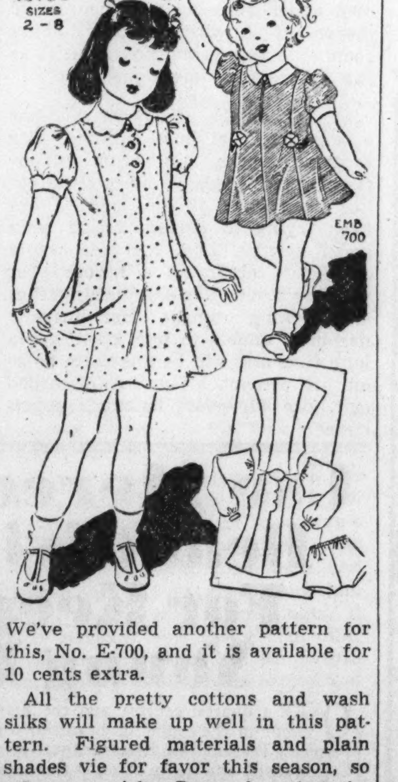
Clotilde Children's Fashions



If you have a small girl in your family you know all about the dress problem. How the youngsters grow, and how they soil their frocks in a hurry! The wardrobe of your small daughter must be a large one, an inexpensive one, and easy to launder. Simple styles are best, and the pattern illustrated today is simplicity itself, although designed with a lot of snap.

The lines are princess, fitted attractively to the figure. The collarline is high and the collar may be a straight one or have a scalloped edge. The puffed sleeves are cuffed to match. A slide fastener or buttons may be used at the front closing, which may be scalloped to match the collar and cuffs, if you so desire.

The very small girl might like a touch of embroidery at the waistline. We've provided another pattern for this, No. E-700, and it is available for 10 cents extra.

All the pretty cottons and wash silks will make up well in this pattern. Figured materials and plain shades vie for favor this season, so take your pick. Remember that the pattern includes some comfortable French panties to match the dress.

Style No. 2766 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the dress and ½ yard of 39 inch material for the panties.

Paris Pattern Frock Clings to the Figure Flatteringly

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Here in Paris, as elsewhere in the world of fashion, the feminine silhouette is tops in chic. The more a frock reveals the figure in a subtle way the smarter it is considered to be. I attended an art exhibit and tea the other day at which I observed hundreds of fashionably dressed Parisiennes and lovely Americans. I saw so many pretty frocks I was dizzy. One of the most attractive is the softly shirred model I've copied for our pattern today, No. 5249.

The V neckline of the original was edged in a frill of lace. The puffed sleeves were left plain. Down the front was a slide fastener in a shade to harmonize with the print, which happened to be of soft, supple, silk jersey. The widely spaced print was definitly on the noisy side, but that's the style these days.

You will like this model because there is no belt. The shirring that lends delicate fullness to the bodice also defines the waistline. The hips are molded and the skirt is flared. This combination makes it possible to employ almost any silk or cotton, as long as the material drapes easily.

Helpful Hints for Housewives

Lime, lemon, pineapple, or mint ice makes a refreshing topping for fruit juice or diced fruit cocktails. The ice also may be used to top a punch bowl filled with chilled fruit beverages.

Try peanut butter frosting for covering white or spice cakes. Add one-third of a cup of peanut butter to your regular uncooked white frosting. Blend in the peanut butter well before icing the cake. Add a few roasted peanuts as decoration.

Sunshine yellow is an excellent color for an attic room whose rectangular lines are broken by a sloping roof and dormer windows. If there is a dormer alcove, paint its sides a lighter tint. This will make it seem as if more light were coming in through the window.

Parent Should Share Child's Joys with Him

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

He's two and a quarter, and life, at the moment of discovering these marvelous playthings, is—well, a bowl of cherries for him!

I'm still surprised whenever I hear mothers talk of being bothered by their very small children—of not being able to keep them amused and happily occupied. I don't know anything easier in the world to do than to keep a little runabout child contented. Their world of interest lies within such a small compass and the littlest thing is an adventure or a novelty to them.

Of course you can't plank them down in a room by themselves and expect them to play in solitary felicity while you go about your affairs finding, I half suspect, more interest in your housework or whatever else it may be, than in your little son or daughter.

No small child likes that, and it is natural that he shouldn't. He needs companionship; he needs interest; he needs the small things of his world explained, interpreted, talked about. He wants to share his experience—he needs "give and take."

For instance, the baby boy comes staggering through the grass. The cherries lie on the ground. The catbirds and bluejays flutter in the tree. They stab at the cherries. The chipmunk slips smoothly across the grass and runs up the trunk to reap his own harvest and pack his little cheeks full. The small chap sees all that well enough with his own eyes.

But let his mother join him, talk about the red cherries, hold her hands cupped while he gathers them delicately one by one, imitating her with his "Get mo-ah chewwies;" let her look up with him at the branches rustling with the eager feasting of the birds and talk about them, and it all gains in significance to him.

Sharing all this, discussing it, gives it all more meaning, and surely makes him keener in observation and more aware of the lovely world of the moment. The small child really cannot meet the world alone. He needs its objects and his experiences actually named as well as shared, translated, interpreted.

This doesn't mean your child can't or shouldn't ever play contentedly alone. Far from it. In fact, paradoxical as it may seem, the little boy or girl who has no interest shown in him and no mother companionship is the very one who is always crying or whining or "tagging" his mother every moment of the day, while the child who feels the security that comes with interest and a sense of his mother's enjoying him is the one who can play alone in deep absorption for long stretches of time, not needing, you see, to struggle for attention.

I don't know just how to give the clue to those mothers who tell me in a dozen ways how annoyed they constantly are with their small children—how nervous—how irritated. But perhaps the clue is, after all, a simple but a fundamental one—the one of feeling.

If you feel the right way toward your little, busy, into-everything son or daughter, you'll act pretty nearly right and these other difficulties won't overwhelm you. If you feel really interested in your runabout, if you enjoy him, if he seems important to you as a person, you won't I'm sure, have any trouble [whether you live in city or country], in keeping him happy and contented and occupied [the only way in which he can blossom].

If you feel right, you won't put him aside. You'll like having him around. You'll take your sewing where he is settled at play just to be with him. He may talk little or not at all, you may speak a quiet word now and then, or you may both chatter sociably.

You'll be glad to have him in the kitchen sitting up at the kitchen table or climbing in and out of a big carton from the grocer's. Or there'll be other times when he'll play alone.

The point is, without going into details, that if you feel right toward your small one you'll find ways of keeping him happy and contented without explicit directions.

"Mealtime Troubles—How To Cure Them," is the name of a leaflet which is helpful to parents. It will be sent out on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Contract According to Culbertson

Correct Responses to Opening Two Bids

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Last Sunday the main subject under discussion was opening two bids. Now let us consider an equally important phase of bidding, namely, correct responses to these highly informative, invaluable bids. It goes without saying that not one hand in ten thousand can be bid to the correct contract by the efforts of one partner alone, and it follows, therefore, that if a player picks up an enormous hand he will merely find himself in possession of a gold brick unless he can extract vital information from his supposed helpmate. One of the most shameful of all spectacles at the bridge table, as elsewhere, is the squandering of natural resources. Fate sends players only so many big cards during their careers, and unless they cash in on these as, if, and when issued they had better turn to croquet, or some other more congenial pastime.

Now for the schedule of responses to an opening two bid:

Pass—barred in all situations, except when an intervening bid by an opponent has held the bidding open for the two bidder, in which case a pass is proper if the responder holds less than one honor trick. If the bidding is:

South	West	North	East
2 hearts	2 spades	2 no trump

North, for his free 2 no trump response, must have about 1-plus or 1½ honor tricks, including a spade stopper; something like ♠K 10 6 ♥9 5 ♦Q 6 4 2 ♣Q 10 5 3.

With a weaker hand than this, North should pass, for South is assured of another chance to bid. The fact that, due to an opponent's overcall, the responder may and does pass on the first round, in no way relieves either the opener or the responder from the subsequent obligation to keep the bidding open until game, or its penalty equivalent is reached.

Two no trump—a blanket minimum response denoting a hand that contains less than one honor trick; or, if the hand does contain one bare honor trick which is not suitable to a raise or suit takeout. Regardless of the fact that responder may hold a long and fairly strong suit such as Q J 10 8 7 6 5, he must deny honor tricks by first bidding two no trump. He may show his suit at his next opportunity.

Three no trump—a hand containing at least 1½ honor tricks, but no biddable suit or trump support. The 1½ honor tricks may be in one suit [as A Q x] or divided among two or more suits.

Four no trump—shows at least 2½ honor tricks—and five no trump three honor tricks, including at least one ace. These bids should be avoided as immediate responses, however, since they prevent an exchange of information. A four, or five no trump bid by the responder carries the same meaning whether bid immediately or subsequently, unless five no trump is bid as a response to a four no trump conventional bid; and also unless responder has by his original two no trump response denied so great an honor trick holding.

BRIDGE PROBLEM.

♦K Q J 10 9 8 5

♠A K J 10
♥K Q 10 9 8
♣J 9

♠9 8 4 2
♥None
♦7 6 4
♣Q 7 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
♥A J 7 6 2
♣K 10 8 6

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

West	North	East	South
1 heart	2 diamonds	Pass	2 no trump
Pass	3 no trump	Pass	Pass
Pass

West leads the spade king. What is declarer's best chance for fulfilling his contract? [Warning: This is decidedly not a double dummy problem. Obviously, if West immediately shifts to clubs, the dummy is dead—South's lone diamond ace blocks the entire suit. Hence, if South is to succeed, he must rely on a psychological coup].

Answer—South's best chance is to drop the spade queen under West's king. Only if West can be induced to lead three more spades can South hope to take nine tricks. If West "falls for" the play of the spade queen, and runs his spade suit, South, of course, discards his blank diamond ace, thereby assuring himself of seven diamonds, one heart, and one club. South knows that West probably has no more than four spades, so that suit should not be dangerous.

Admittedly, a smart player in the West position would figure out the reason for South's play of the spade queen when South follows to two more rounds of spades, but the play would succeed against thousands, perhaps millions of players.

A single raise shows adequate trump support with at least one honor trick in the hand. Even when holding very strong trump support and more than one honor trick the responder should give only one raise on the first round. Holding more than the strength required for a raise, and also holding a biddable suit, it is better to bid the suit and raise later; but with a biddable suit and a minimum raise the raise should be chosen in order to "set" the trump suit.

A double raise [from two to four] has a special meaning. Responder should give a double raise only when holding five trumps, or four trumps to the queen, and when he has no singleton or any honor higher than a queen in his hand. This is a neat little convention which enables the opener to stop dead in his tracks short of a dangerous slam, or slam try, or, if he is strong enough to bid a slam without assistance, to make the proper decision between a small and a grand slam.

A suit takeout is made with any biddable suit, provided the hand contains 1½ honor tricks with any biddable suit; one-plus honor tricks with a biddable suit headed by A, K, or Q-J; one honor trick with any five card, or longer biddable suit headed by A, K, or Q-J.

It has been brought to my attention that in certain circles it is the fashion to show aces, if any, in response to an opening two bid. As a matter of fact, this practice is followed by some players whose opinions cannot be lightly ignored. Nevertheless, I fail to see any virtue in the ace showing idea, and I do know that it has dangerous disadvantages. Not only that; it is unnecessary. The ace locating certainly can be done through the use of the four-five no trump convention after the partners have agreed upon a suit, or at least have a notion about where the combined hands will eventually play. Consider such an East-West combination as the following:

WEST
♥K J 9 8 5 2
♣K Q J

EAST
♠Q 9 8 6 4 3

If, under the ace showing convention, West opens this hand with two hearts and East is obliged to respond with three hearts, I am frank to confess that West's proper rebid is obscure to me. Certainly there would be no point in his bidding four no trump merely to be reinformed that East has the heart ace; what West wants to know is whether East can support hearts. The blank ace is, of course, quite insufficient, and if West leaps to six hearts he will be dismally disappointed. But what is his proper bid over East's three hearts? Of course four hearts, as it happens, on this particular hand, will turn out well because East will then bid four spades. But what if East's suit happened to be diamonds? Would he be obliged to show the suit at the five level and, thus, perhaps jeopardize a game, or would he discreetly pass to four hearts and perhaps lose a slam? How much simpler and safer it is to bid normally, as follows:

WEST	EAST
2 hearts	2 spades
3 spades	4 spades
4 no trump	6 hearts
6 spades	Pass

Here it will be noted East is forced to jump in hearts to show the ace, because a mere five heart bid would be a signoff in the lowest bid suit, and West would get the idea that East had something like the K-Q of diamonds and a good spade suit, but no ace. This jump, however, would be unimportant inasmuch as the agreed spade suit is higher ranking and can be returned to at the same level.

The correct responses to opening two bids have been so well codified, as above, that the responder need do little but follow orders; only rarely must he exercise judgment as to his first response.

Suppose North opens with a two heart bid and South holds:

♠6 ♥10 9 7 6 ♦A 9 8 5 2 ♣K 7 4

South is really in an enviable position; he may with propriety raise hearts at once, or show his diamond suit and reserve his heart raise for later. With this exact hand, which of course is an excellent one opposite a two bid, the suit takeout to diamonds is slightly preferable. By bidding diamonds first and later strongly supporting hearts, South will present a better picture of his distribution. If the deuce of diamonds were the deuce of clubs, i. e., if South's distribution were one spade, four hearts, four diamonds, and four clubs, a direct heart raise would be better.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. By Sally Joy Brown.

Due to the uncertainty of rent money a number of families on relief have been evicted within the last few months and have suffered a consequent loss of furniture and other belongings. Occasionally several days elapse before a family can find shelter in such circumstances, and during this period their possessions are exposed to rain, wind, and theft.

Other families merely have been unable to replace wornout possessions for a good many years and finally were forced to ask assistance.

A case worker has sent an urgent request for two families. In one, the D. family, there is no income at all, and the youngest child, 1½ years old, soon will be released from the hospital after a severe illness of more than six months. The child formerly slept with several of the other children, but the hospital insists that it is essential for her to have a separate bed during her convalescence.

The X. family must be moved from their present unsuitable and unhealthful quarters. They need two full sized mattresses and one full sized spring. They also need a kitchen table and four chairs, since they now own none. They have, of course, no means of furnishing their living room, but this is not so essential as the other items mentioned.

Mrs. O., on the northwest side, has a large family of small children. Her husband works, but earns an extremely small salary. Since their gas has been shut off the mother has been trying to prepare meals on a small electric grill, and she would appreciate obtaining a kerosene or gasoline stove. She also needs dishes and cooking utensils. Her husband has been unable to buy a suit for a long time and will be unable to do so on his present salary. A discarded suit, size 40, would be much appreciated.

Dinner Menus for 'Company' Listed Today

Few women, I think, follow a printed menu exactly in preparing a company meal. There must be adaptations or substitutions to fit the cooking materials at hand. There usually must be minor changes to adapt the plan to individual ability of the cook, too.

I don't expect any one to follow these menus exactly, for reasons just given. But women tell me they find such outlines a great deal of help when company is in prospect. Good cooks always are hunting menu suggestions.

COFFEE REFRIGERATOR CAKE

[Serves Six]

1½ dozen lady fingers
1 cup butter
2 egg yolks
1½ cups confectioners' sugar
¼ cup strong coffee
¼ cup toasted almonds
½ cup whipping cream, whipped

Arrange a layer of lady fingers on the bottom of a spring form mold. Cream together butter, egg yolks, sugar and coffee until the mixture is light and fluffy. Spread this over the lady fingers and press more lady fingers into the top. Chill in the refrigerator from six to eight hours and serve with whipped cream and almond topping.

CHERRY-ALMOND COCKTAIL

[Serves Six]

2 cups pitted sour cherries
½ cup blanched almonds
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup cherry juice
½ cup powdered sugar

Chill cherries and almonds, pouring mixed remaining ingredients over them. Serve in sherbet glasses with a sprig of mint in each.

STUFFED PORK TENDERLOIN

Wipe tenderloins with a damp cloth. Split them lengthwise [or have them split at the market] so that, when open, they lie flat. Rub with salt, using about a teaspoonful to a pound of meat. Fill with plain bread dressing, roll, and tie into shape. Roast uncovered in a 300 degree oven until tender, about an hour.

BAKED ALASKA

Baked Alaska may have a cake or pie shell base. For this menu a layer of spice cake would be splendid. Cut it just a little larger than the size of a brick of ice cream, and cover it with the cream which has been frozen very hard. Spread thickly with meringue and brown very quickly in a hot oven or under a broiler. The meringue may be beaten before dinner and stored in the refrigerator until time to put the Alaska together, to save time between courses.

The first courses in all of these menus come from our newest booklet, "Taste-Teasing Appetizers," 5 cents by mail. The coffee refrigerator cake is from another new booklet, "Thirty-three Refrigerator Cakes," which sells for the same price. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing. When writing for information, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

AZ EUCHARISZTIKUS KONGRESSZUS ALKALMÁBÓL
SZENT ISTVÁN KIRÁLY JUBILEUMI ÉVÉBEN
1938

This souvenir stamp sheet was issued in compliment to the Hungarian Philatelic exposition commemorating St. Stephen and the Eucharistic congress. The stamp is in crimson, the lettering in green, and the arms in crimson and green. It is shown through the courtesy of Steven Milis of Springfield.

The stamps of the Danish West Indies are of interest to many collectors of United States stamps, for this important colony of Denmark, through purchase, became a possession of the United States on April 1, 1917. Its first stamps issued in 1855 followed the pattern of Denmark with a change in denominations from rigsbank skillings to cents. From that time until 1917 only seven designs were used and all follow designs of the mother country with the exception of the silhouette and man-of-war issues of 1905. At four periods it became necessary to overprint certain stamps in order to provide needed values, but as a rule the stamps of this colony have been free from unnecessary and speculative issues.

The first design, a small square bearing the arms of Denmark, was in use from 1855 until 1873. The 3 cent value was originally imperforate and is found in numerous shades from carmine to dark brown, many of which were due to the action of the gum, these stamps having been regummed in the colony. This value was issued perforated 12½ in April, 1872, and in February of the following year the 4 cent stamp appeared, also perforated 12½.

The first examples of the second design which closely follows the 1870 bicolored design of Denmark were issued in August, 1873, the 1c, 3c, and 4c being released at that time. The 14c value followed in September, 1873, the 7c in June, 1874, the 5c and 10c in September, 1876, and the 12c in September, 1877. The 50c of the same design but not bicolored was issued in July, 1879.

The bicolored stamps are subject to many varieties, including the inverted frames and plate varieties of various kinds on both the frame and vignette plates. The frame design was so nearly symmetrical that it was difficult to tell when it was in the right position and there are often as many inverts as normal stamps in some values. The frame plates were those used for the contemporary stamps of Denmark and, of course, any varieties found also will occur on the stamps of Denmark.

A scarcity of 1 cent stamps in 1887 and 10 cent stamps in 1905 accounts for the overprinted stamps of this series, which were issued in the 19th century. In May, 1887, 396 sheets of the 7 cent value were overprinted by hand, "1 cent," and in May, 1895, 732 sheets of the 50 cent value were overprinted, "10—cents—1895," in three lines.

Stamp Notes.

The stamp program of the United States postoffice department for the remainder of the month is as follows: July 11, 4½c, White House; July 21, 5c, Monroe, and July 28, 6c, John Quincy Adams. These stamps will be placed on first day sale at Washington, D. C. On July 15 the 3c stamp commemorating the establishment of civil government with the territory of the United States northwest of the Ohio river will be placed on sale at Marietta, O.

First day sales of the new 3 cent stamp of the regular issue amounted to 303,011 stamps at the Washington, D. C., postoffice, and 279,785 stamps at the philatelic agency. Postmarks were applied to 118,097 first day covers.

Alfred Bodin of Worth has submitted a 2 cent postage due, flat plate printing, which has a very strong offset on the reverse, directly on the paper, of a 3 cent postage due. This is interesting as it proves that due stamps are sometimes printed on a press equipped with plates of more than one denomination.

The Finland postoffice has announced that 1,360 first day covers bearing the new Finnish Delaware commemorative stamp were presented for mailing on June 1, the first day of sale. This was in addition to 4,500 covers which were specially prepared for American collectors and sent to the American-Finnish tercentenary committee, Crozer building, Chester, Pa. It is stated that these latter were prepared without addresses through the courtesy of the Finnish director of posts. Although this column respects almost everything emanating from the only debt paying country in Europe, it cannot but take a stand against blank covers postmarked and shipped in quantity to a foreign country for sale. They will not class with the 1,360 bona fide covers which passed through the regular mails.

Club Notes.

The Tampa Stamp club announces that arrangements have been completed with officials of the Pan-American Hernando de Soto exposition for a Latin American stamp show in connection with the exposition which will be held in Tampa from Jan. 31 to Feb. 18, 1939, to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the landing of the explorer in 1539. It is expected that official exhibits will be provided by the postal authorities of twenty-one Latin American countries. Application for a commemorative stamp has been made and postal officials have expressed themselves as favoring the idea.

In Defense of Mrs. Maxon

By George Agnew Chamberlain

Caglieri Accuses Mrs. Maxon of Killing Hugh Riggs, but Red O'Malley Comes to Her Rescue

CONCLUSION

(Copyright: 1938: By George Agnew Chamberlain.)

MARCIA half turned toward the window, settled her cheek in her hand and watched the little gnomes of jockies—six hundred of them—pour out from their afternoon school session and spread like an opening fan.

She could hear Creighton kicking off his boots, then taking a bath—familiar sounds. The opening of a drawer, the clicking of coat hangers, the thud of a dropped hairbrush tantalized her ears and brought tears to her eyes.

She sat up and faced about. Through the half-open door of the bedroom she caught a reflection—Creighton already in trousers and shirt, struggling with his tie before a mirror hung too low. She rose quickly and ran to him.

"Let me, Creighton. O, please let me."

His hands dropped and with chin lifted he let her have her way. She knotted the tie slowly, carefully, then doubled down the collar of his soft silk shirt, caught up the coat he had tossed on the bed and held it for him. He turned, thrust his arms through the sleeves, and turned again. His hands closed on her shoulders with a grip that bruised. Though she felt no pain, her lips began to tremble violently.

"Don't," he said. "We're through with crying. Come along."

"Not yet," she said, doing her best to smile. "You've had your turn, now give me mine. Bring me my hat, please."

When she had tidied herself so she looked fresher, more lovely even than when she had come, they went down and through the lobby together. He was Creighton Hadley and she was Mrs. Maxon, both immaculate, both unperturbed, thoroughbreds in an atmosphere that bothered with nothing else, notable amidst surroundings where only the superlative is noteworthy. The chasseur brought up Hadley's car with a flourish. It was open.

"Shall I have it closed?" he asked.

"O, no." She took her place beside him. "Please don't go the quickest way. Please."

In the amber glow of the setting sun he drove down one long vista and then another. They came upon bars and gates that were locked and were glad to have to turn and roll slowly back. The twilight took on weight, pressing out the odors of the woods as though distilling a heady wine.

At last they came to the replaced bar beyond which stood the gates of Virelay. Reluctantly, her hand moving so slowly it seemed scarcely to stir, she gave him her key. He descended, opened the bar, called to her to run the car through, and locked the bar again. She stopped short, still in the embowered tunnel of the woods. He came forward and stood at her side.

"Good-by, Marcia."

"No," she whispered. Her head dropped and she gripped the wheel with both hands. "It can't be now—already. It can't."

"Do you think I might say good-by to Virelay?" he asked after a long pause. "I'd like to, and I can stand it if you can. Can you?"

She straightened and moved from the wheel. "Yes. You needn't be afraid of me. O, Creighton, please let there be no good-by between us two. It will be easier that way—easier for my mind to live where you live, go where you go, and hear over and over again the things you've said."

"That's right, Marcia, my dear. Leave our world where it is. While we two live it will never be empty."

• • •

THE children had had their supper and gone to bed. Barbara and Guy, tired of waiting at the cocktail table in the rotunda, had passed into the unlighted drawing room and were seated side by side before an open casement facing the garden beyond the moat. Worn out and hungry, they were content to hold hands and say nothing. Marcia called, and when they answered she switched on the lights.

"We're sorry to be so late," she said in her natural voice.

"O, is Mr. Hadley with you?" said Barbara, vaguely disturbed. "I wondered where you could have gone, all dressed up and without Sam."

"Let's go in to dinner just as we are," said Marcia, not deigning to offer an explanation.

She presided at the meal with an ease which seemed to Creighton a near miracle. He could not know she was striving to live this moment, this hour, with the exact joy she might have had from a lifetime at his side. One of the maids slipped out, presently returned and addressed McNeir, telling him he was wanted on the telephone.

"What did she say?" asked Guy. "Telephone? That's impossible. Nobody knows I'm here."

"C'est pour m'sieur, je vous assure," said the maid confidently. "On telephone de Londres."

"It's a call from London, Guy," said Creighton. "You'd better take it."

McNeir went to the closet of the rotunda, started to close the door, then left it open in case he needed help. He need not have worried; a moment later Ballinger's voice was bellowing at him from London.

"Where the devil have you been, anyway? What sort of a newspaper man are you? Who's going to pay the bill for telephoning every hotel in Paris, to say nothing of the suburbs?"

"Shut up," said Guy. "What do you want?"

"There's a rush message for you, telephoned from Plymouth—at least it was rush before it began to stink with age."

"What is it?" asked Guy, his lips suddenly dry.

"Got a pencil?"

"One minute," said Guy, and called to Hadley through the open door: "Creight, bring a pencil and a bit of paper. Step on it, please."

Creighton hurried to the guests' desk in the anteroom, snatched up an envelope, wet a pen, and came to stand beside Guy.

"Shoot," said McNeir into the telephone. Presently his face turned livid. "What's that? Read it again. Read it slowly and as if it made sense." He raised an elbow toward Hadley. "Write this, Creight."

"Arriving Paris sixteenth still in tow," wrote Creighton. "Preach loud and long the golden word."

"Is that all?" yelled Guy.

"Yes."

"Who signed it?"

"It wasn't signed, you goof," said Ballinger irascibly. "It was telephoned into my private ear."

"By whom?" asked Guy hoarsely.

"That you'll have to guess for yourself," said Ballinger. "I did."

There was a click as he hung up. Guy and Creighton stood staring at each other. A maid came to light the coffee lamp. Marcia and Barbara entered from the dining room. Guy turned desperately toward Barbara.

"What day is this?" he asked.

"Monday," said Barbara.

"No, no," said Guy. "What day of the month?"

Marcia answered, "The sixteenth."

"God!" breathed Guy. "Do you begin to get it, Creight?"

"Part of it," said Hadley, his face white.

"What are you two worried about?" asked Marcia.

"This message," said Creighton, looking down at the scrawled envelope in his hand. "Shall I read it, Guy?"

"God, no."

"I think you'r wrong," said Creighton. "Here's what it says, Marcia." He read the message slowly and clearly.

"Who sent it?" asked Marcia, her eyes only faintly troubled.

Guy's lips opened and closed, uttering no sound. Creighton glanced at him. "You know, don't you, Guy?" he asked, an even coolness in his voice. "It was Red O'Malley, wasn't it?"

"Yes," breathed Guy.

• • •

IN THE long silence that followed the color drained from Marcia's face and slowly returned. "He arrived in Paris today," she said softly, "apparently not alone. Who is with him?"

"Caglieri," said Guy. He continued desperately. "But the rest of it doesn't make sense. Preach loud and long the golden word! What is he driving at? What did he think he was saying?"

"Silence is golden," murmured Barbara.

"What's that?" asked Guy sharply.

Marcia's head went up. "Yes," she said, "Barbara has guessed your riddle, Guy. Silence is golden."

"Preach silence loud and long," murmured Creighton. He stepped forward, lit the envelope at the coffee lamp, and held it by one corner inside the fireplace until the draft snatched the last scorched scrap from his fingers. He avoided looking at Marcia and continued as though deliberately giving her time. "I liked O'Malley. He's nobody's fool."

A maid hurried through the rotunda and down the shallow steps into the entrance hall.

"Somebody must have rung," said Marcia, moving toward her usual chair. She sat down. "Coffee, Creighton?"

As he had striven to reassure her, so now was she reassuring him. "Yes, please," he said, "but no sugar tonight."

There were voices in the hallway—the maid's low tones protesting in French and then O'Malley's breezy drawl as he brushed her aside.

A moment later his lanky form, broken like a jackknife, was bending over Marcia. He took her hand and held it in a steady grip whose strength astonished her, yet it was not the strength of sinew and bone. He talked to her through his hand, reassuring her before he spoke.

"Mrs. Maxon, you'll simply have to forgive the unpardonable. Since Mr. Caglieri insisted on having a chat with you tonight, I thought you'd like it better if I came along." He drew back. "This is Mr. Caglieri."

"Won't you sit down?" said Marcia to Caglieri, not offering her hand. "Would you like a cup of coffee?"

"No, not for me," he answered.

His eyes were round and unblinking. The rotunda seemed to emphasize all his little roundnesses—his head, his cherub's face, round belly, round legs, and the emphatic note of his round bowler hat. He made no move to sit down, his shoebutton eyes appraising not only Marcia but all others present with quick, conclusive glances.

"Take a seat, chief," drawned O'Malley.

"Thanks," said Caglieri, but did not move. "I come to talk with Mrs. Maxon, but a few witnesses won't do no harm."

Marcia rose. "Perhaps we'd all be more comfortable in the other room," she said.

Her voice, even and low, had a compelling power as though asserting her right to command in her own house. The curtains in the drawing room were drawn only on two sides, leaving the casements toward the moat open. Around one of these the furniture formed a sort of bay, and she chose for herself a central chair almost thronelike in its proportions.

The others, with one exception, settled along the wings, Caglieri deciding upon a position at the end of the line which dominated all five faces. The exception was O'Malley. True to his instincts, he slouched in a big chair with its back against the wall. His pale eyes dwelt steadily on Marcia's face.

For the first time in many years Caglieri was nervous. Inwardly he cursed himself for not having insisted on staying in the rotunda. This room got him. He had seen interiors more ornate, more plastered with luxury, but none that so completely excluded himself and his round black hat.

Miss Clinton, as sweet a bit of blonde fluff as he had ever beheld, undoubtedy belonged. So did Hadley, cool as flowing water in his thin gray suit and soft shirt. So did Guy McNeir. As for Red O'Malley, he even had the nerve to stretch out his thin legs at full length.

But it was Mrs. Maxon who most troubled Caglieri's penetrating gaze. While the others only belonged, she was embedded. The room and all it contained was a matrix for her, baffling as polished quartz.

His hat slipped from his fingers, rolled, and settled in the center of the circle. Every eye but his followed it, which was exactly what he had planned. Nobody smiled.

So, he thought with a sudden recovery of confidence, nobody smiles at a thing like that! He drew typewritten sheets from his breast pocket and buried his black eyes deep in Marcia's. Now he could do some excluding himself; he saw nobody else, nobody else existed.

"Mrs. Maxon," he said, tapping the typewritten sheets, "this here is your confession. I don't want to make things hard for you; I want to make 'em easy. Think of all the bother of extradition. The long fight your lawyers would put up. Think of McNeir's papers, blowing the lid off decency. Take a look at this here Hadley, posing for pictures as a mighty sleuth——"

Creighton leaped to his feet and stood slanted as though not only the doubled fist at his hip but his whole body were gathering for a blow. But Caglieri did not move or shrink, nor did his eyes shift. Neither did Marcia's. Her voice cut smoothly into the silence.

"Mr. Hadley, you'll either sit down and keep still or the rest of us will go elsewhere."

Creighton sank back and covered his eyes with one hand. Caglieri resumed as if no interruption had occurred.

"All that sort of thing would raise hell with you, Mrs. Maxon, and not a bit of use. You'd only get the works a lot worse than me and the courts want to give 'em to you. I can't promise you'll go free as the day you was born, because it wouldn't be Hoyle, but that's just what I think, so help me God.

"Now, listen what I've done, Mrs. Maxon. I've written out exactly what happened like you were saying it yourself. If it's true I want you to sign it before these witnesses, then me and everybody else will do all they can to make things easy for you. If it's like I say, true in every word, will you sign it?"

He paused and waited. There was no answer, no sound, not even the sound of breathing. He tried to study Marcia's features and to his astonishment found he could not. Her face was there, framed beneath a smart little hat of straw. Her body was there, enfolded in flowered silk. The hat and the veil of silk jeered at him.

He couldn't see her, by God. All he could see was her eyes, unchanged by a flicker, deep as wells. He wrenched his own away and started to read, his voice unnaturally high.

"I, Marcia Maxon, of my own free will do attest and confess as follows." Phrases leaped into hearing out of the legal jargon like peaks overtopping a jumble of crags. "Quarter past eleven when I left the bank. Walked three blocks north and half a block east. Day was so hot the street door was open. Easy to find the apartment on account of his name on a card. Must have been asleep when I knocked. Then I was standing there with my back to the desk, facing him, telling him what I thought of him and holding tight to this——"

THERE was a dull thud as a heavy object slipped from Caglieri's left hand to the floor. The brass penguin by Brancusi scarcely rolled, stopped by its pointed beak. Barbara stared at the glinting ball of brass with eyes suddenly turned glassy. Hadley, McNeir, and O'Malley all stared down at it. Only Marcia's eyes remained immovable, continuing to engulf Caglieri as though she were a floating ship in a boundless sea. Deep color stained his sallow cheeks as he resumed his reading.

"This ornament, a sort of ball of brass with a beak." Again he paused. "Mrs. Maxon, you sign to what comes next whether it's true or not." He found his place on the paper and continued to read. "He came at me with his fist raised, but before he could strike I threw the brass ball and saw the beak sink into his forehead." Caglieri folded the sheets. "There you are, Mrs. Maxon, and your best friend couldn't have done it fairer by you. Will you sign like I said or won't you?"

Silence fell on the room. It was a strange silence, completely unexpectant. To Caglieri it seemed as though it enveloped only Hadley, Miss Clinton, Guy McNeir, O'Malley, and himself, inexplicably leaving Mrs. Maxon out. The rest of them were possessed by silence, hung on silence with caught breath, lived in and for silence, yet somehow it didn't touch her, had nothing to do with her one way or the other. Suddenly rage shook his whole round body into a jelly of fury.

"Wake up!" he shouted. "God damn it, say whether you'll sign or take what's coming to you."

O'Malley gave a single thump on the floor with both his extended heels. "I'm surprised at you, chief," he drawled. "Anybody could see by looking at Mrs. Maxon she thinks you're the biggest dumbhead ever tried to put over a fast one."

"Who handed you an oar?" snarled Caglieri, his angry eyes shifting to O'Malley and back again. "She can say yes or no, can't she? And the way I'm feeling I don't care a noodle which."

"Now, chief," said O'Malley soothingly, "I'll admit you were pretty decent up to the last minute or two, and I'm for letting you down easy."

He drew some papers from his own breast pocket. "I've got a couple of statements here myself; the big difference is they're already signed and attested according to law. By two girls, both employed at the big confectionery a block and a half north of the bank. It has two doors. In the areaway of the first, which isn't the main entrance, Mrs. Maxon bumped into Jenny Engleberd at sixteen minutes past eleven on the day we're talking about.

"The way Jenny came to remember the exact time is because the girls work in four shifts and her relief, Mary Goodenow, was sixteen minutes late. It was Mary who went in with Mrs. Maxon, steered her to one of her tables, and waited on her during twenty minutes by the clock. The identification isn't only by photograph, but by a queer small thing. Mrs. Maxon was the only woman they saw that day wearing gloves—long white ones. There you are, chief."

He tossed the documents into Caglieri's lap. "Naturally those are nothing but photostats. The originals are deposited in Mrs. Maxon's bank, and if you don't think they'll hold water just try them out and give New York its biggest laugh of the year."

Caglieri sat studying the documents for a long time. He read every word, examined the seals, and returned to the beginning again. Gradually the puffed, explosive tenseness of his body seemed to deflate, leaving him more comfortable than at any moment since he had forced his way into Virelay. A smile softened his eyes, his cheeks, and even his belly as he folded the papers and thrust them in his pocket.

"This lets me out," he said, "and I don't mind saying I ain't a bit sorry. Up to a minute ago Mr. Hadley had me on a spot, but now he can go full speed ahead and butt his fool head into all the glory there is.

"Mind you, Mrs. Maxon, I ain't apologizing for nothing I done in the line of duty. I'm glad I come here. You'll be happier because I did, and that suits me, Mrs. Maxon. I don't give a hoot about the rest of the folks in this room, but I admire you for a particular reason and I hope you'll be happy as long as you live."

He paused, but Marcia continued to look at him out of an impenetrable seclusion. He rose and gave a quick nod toward the door. "Coming, Red?"

"No, thanks," said O'Malley. "I'm staying. Somebody else will have to loosen up and drive me into town."

Caglieri started alone across the room. Hadley, then McNeir, and finally Barbara, moved by a single impulse of decency, echoing the decency the funny little man had shown, got up to accompany him into the rotunda. Surprisingly, it was Barbara who thought to offer him a drink from one of the decanters on a side table. He accepted and stood sipping it, his bright eyes moving almost playfully from face to face.

"Sure you can get back to town all right?" asked Creighton.

"Positive," said Caglieri. "I got a two-tongued Frenchy for a shover."

"I wish you'd apologize for the trick you played me," said Creighton earnestly.

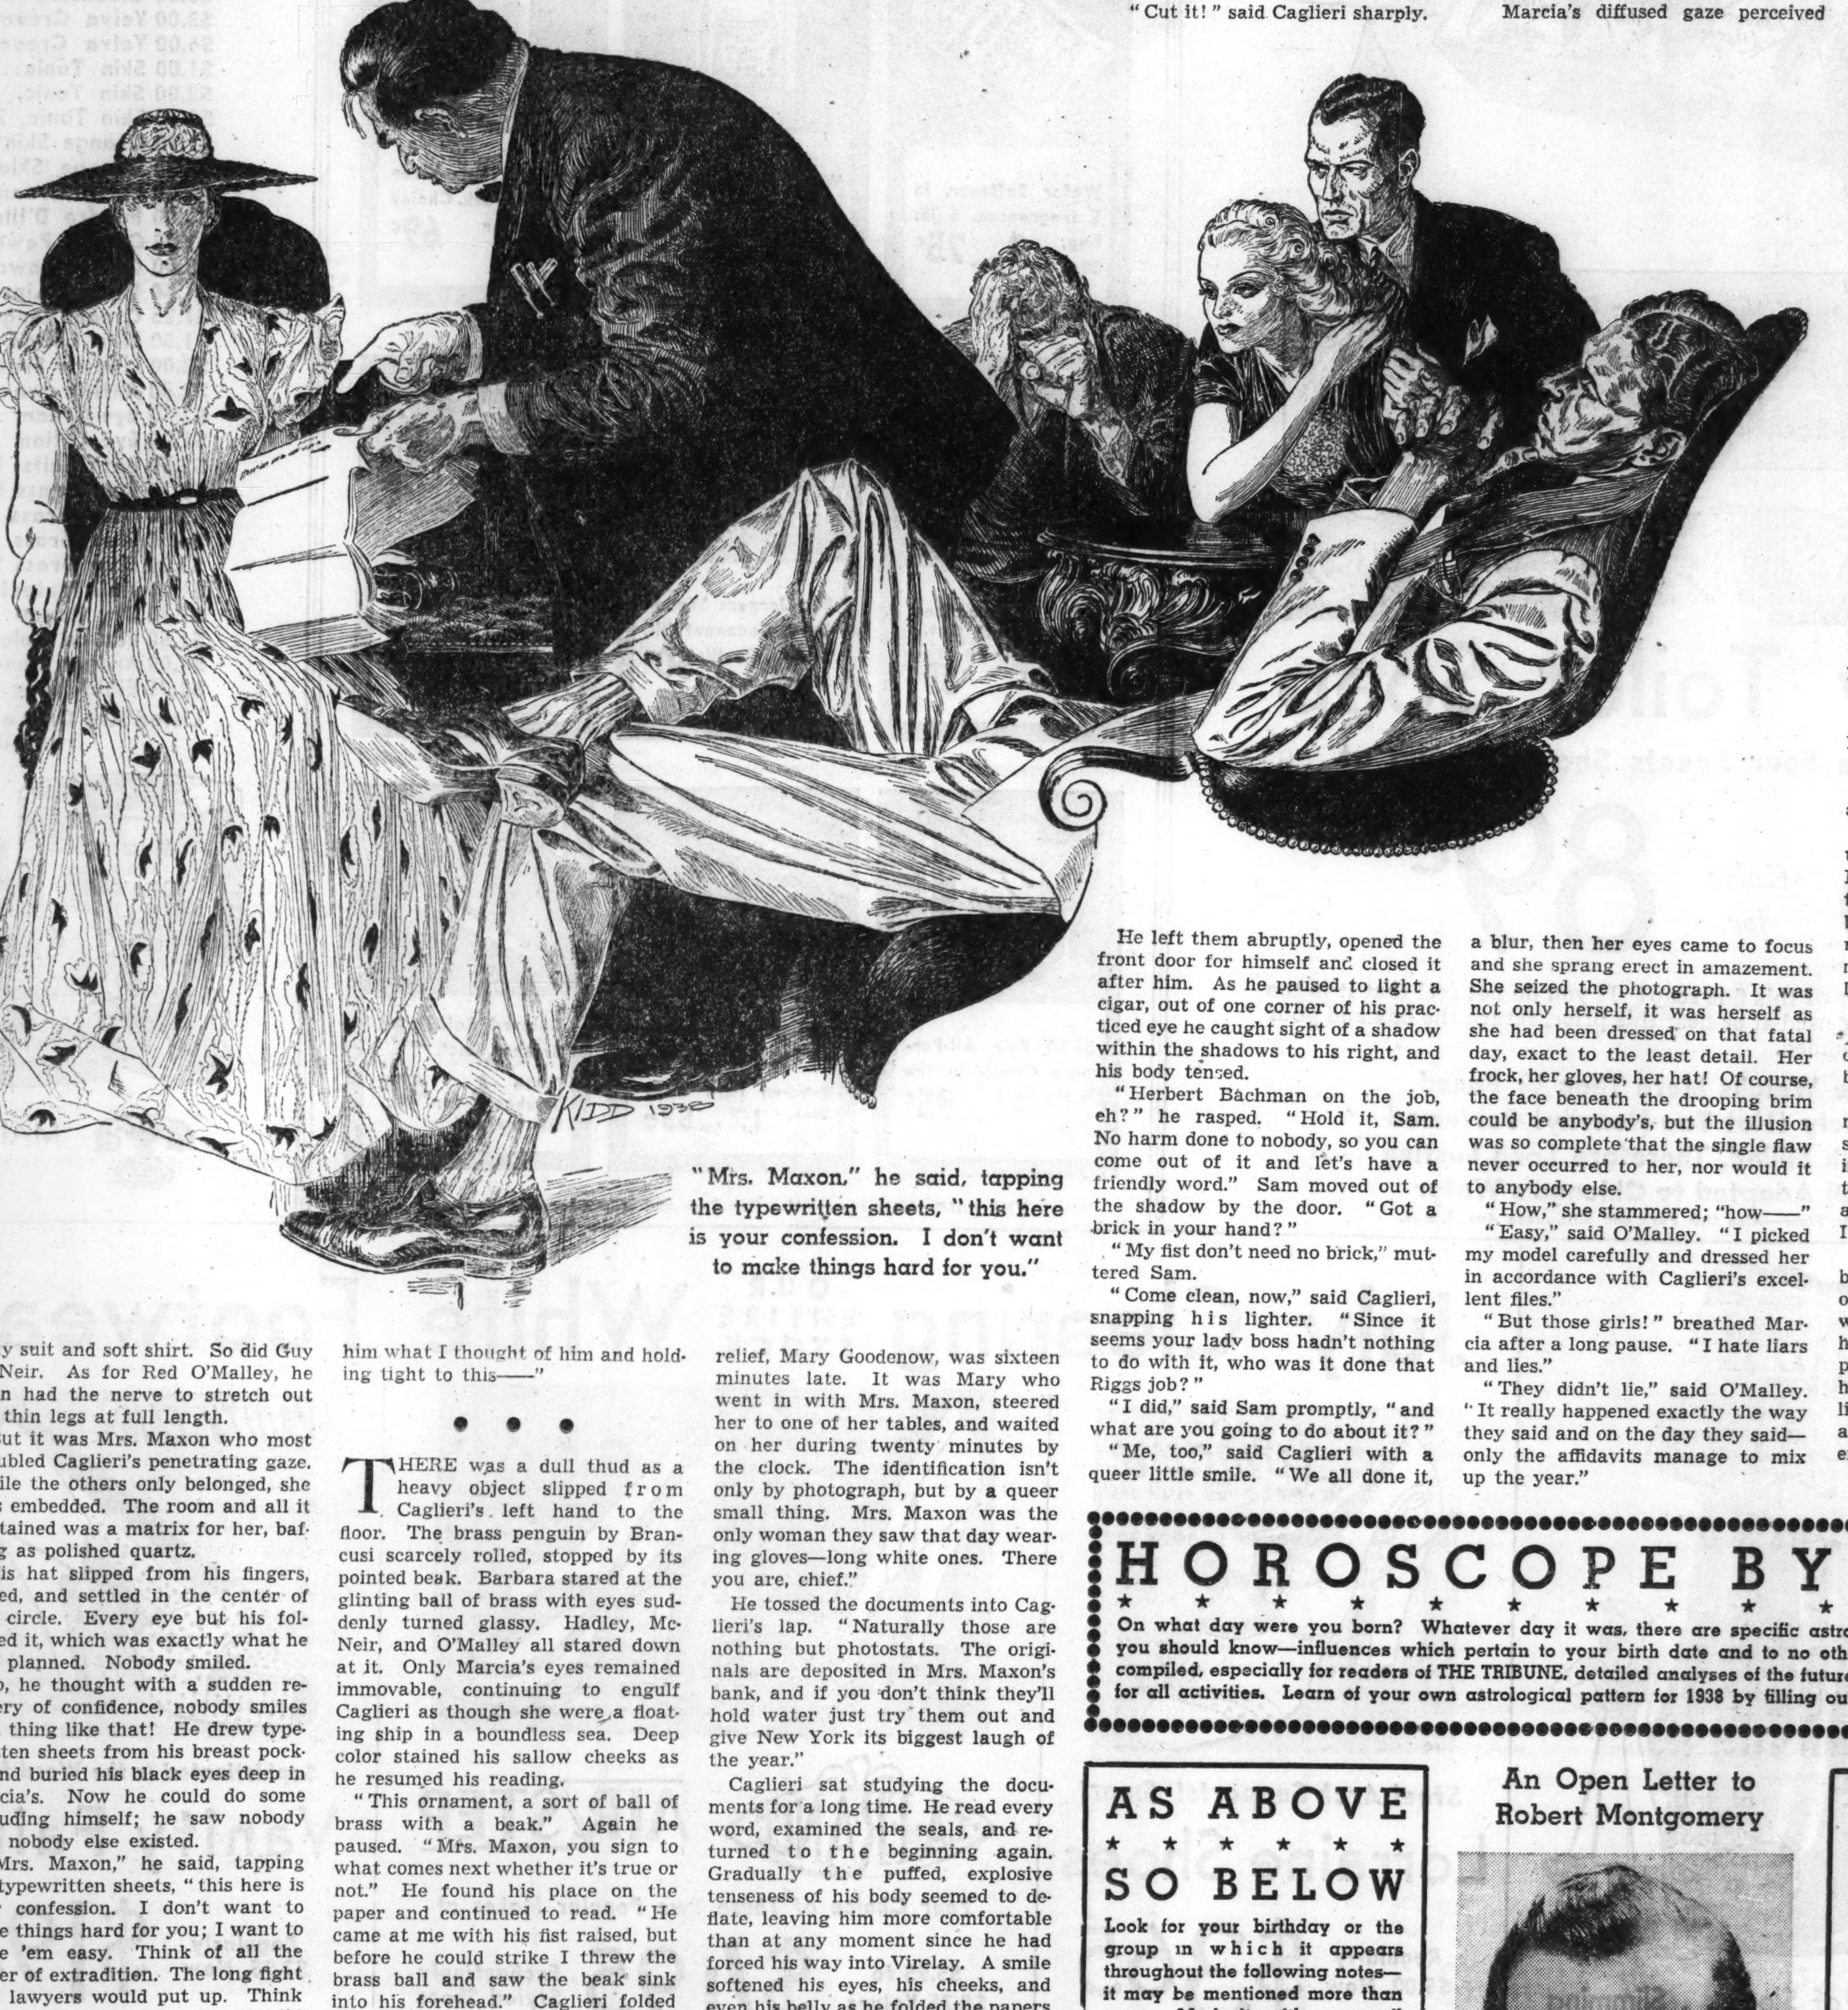
"Me apologize!" exclaimed Caglieri. "Why?"

"So I can like you as much as I want to like you."

"All right, I apologize. Now what?"

"Now we shake hands," said Creighton with a sudden smile, "and give thanks to God and Red O'Malley."

"Cut it!" said Caglieri sharply.



"Mrs. Maxon," he said, tapping the typewritten sheets, "this here is your confession. I don't want to make things hard for you."

He left them abruptly, opened the front door for himself and closed it after him. As he paused to light a cigar, out of one corner of his practiced eye he caught sight of a shadow within the shadows to his right, and his body tensed.

"Herbert Bachman on the job, eh?" he rasped. "Hold it, Sam. No harm done to nobody, so you can come out of it and let's have a friendly word." Sam moved out of the shadow by the door. "Got a brick in your hand?"

"My fist don't need no brick," muttered Sam.

"Come clean, now," said Caglieri, snapping his lighter. "Since it seems your lady boss hadn't nothing to do with it, who was it done that Riggs job?"

"I did," said Sam promptly, "and what are you going to do about it?"

"Me, too," said Caglieri with a queer little smile. "We all done it, Sam. His uncle, Mrs. Maxon, McNeir, the sweet little blonde, and Red O'Malley, you and me—we all put Hugh Riggs away. He's one guy that's going to stay buried for the good of the world and the sake of his own soul."

With the rest of them gone, O'Malley was surprised that Mrs. Maxon persisted in her impenetrable withdrawal. His curiosity was aroused to such a point he drew in his feet and with elbows spearing his knees leaned toward her. He was troubled that she should still be troubled, and his eyes took on a look a puzzled dog gives his master.

"What are you thinking?" he asked.

"That it's fifteen years since I had my picture taken," she answered promptly.

"Naturally I thought of that," said Red, "and I'm sorry nobody asked to see it." He took a photograph from his pocket and held it up in front of her. "Take a look."

Marcia's diffused gaze perceived a blur, then her eyes came to focus and she sprang erect in amazement. She seized the photograph. It was not only herself, it was herself as she had been dressed on that fatal day, exact to the least detail. Her frock, her gloves, her hat! Of course, the face beneath the drooping brim could be anybody's, but the illusion was so complete that the single flaw never occurred to her, nor would it to anybody else.

"How," she stammered; "how——"

"Easy," said O'Malley. "I picked my model carefully and dressed her in accordance with Caglieri's excellent files."

"But those girls!" breathed Marcia after a long pause. "I hate liars and lies."

"They didn't lie," said O'Malley. "It really happened exactly the way they said and on the day they said—only the affidavits manage to mix up the year."

"Blackmail?" said Red. "O, no; I thought of that, too. I feel sorry for her," he continued with a grin. "She thought it was for the news reels, and she's been spending all her pay a quarter at a time." But his lips straightened and quivered in distress as he saw tears well to the edge of Marcia's eyelids and her eyes assume the sadness of utter despair. "O, Mrs. Maxon, please. What is it? What's wrong?"

"Everything," she answered, looking straight at him. "I love Creighton Hadley and he loves me."

• • •

RED O'MALLEY stared at her and gradually a flush of anger stained his pale cheeks—anger not at her but against his ancient enemy. Controling himself, he leaned back and closed his eyes.

"Reality," he murmured "Reality," he repeated, "forever stubbing the toe of the stubborn blind!" Creighton came in alone and stood unnoticed, his eyes leaping from Marcia's rapt face to Red's.

"I thought you had the makings of a great woman," continued O'Malley. His voice gathered resonance as it continued: "But if you can't see that the dream is the thing, if you can't dream hope, love, and constancy, if you can't lift your eyes higher than the level of a finicking rule of thumb, then be an inchworm, crawl like an inchworm, keep on laying your belly to the ground with your back to the stars and be damned to you."

"I'm glad I heard that, Red," said Creighton, coming forward. "Do you mind clearing out?"

O'Malley opened his eyes, smiled, rose, and meandered toward the door. Creighton stood before Marcia. The photograph slipped from her lap to the floor, face up. He gave it a single glance and pushed it out of sight with his foot; then he took her by both hands and lifted her.

"We're both standing, Marcia."

"Yes," she said, her eyes fixed in his.

"On our own feet."

"On our own feet," she repeated as one who repeats a marriage vow.

"What O'Malley did," he continued, "means a lot for the children. He's rescued the unclouded sky of their youth and left them a legacy besides in the shape of an invaluable record, safely on file. But he did nothing for you and me. You and I don't need to lean on a lie."

"No, Creighton."

"I love you," he whispered, "and nothing else matters—nothing! I'm shackled hand and foot to this you in my arms. Right or wrong, I love the woman you are—all you've been, all you've done and are going to do. I love you, Marcia."

She lifted her face, her eyes blurred with adoration. Her lips opened, then trembled violently and were silent, powerless to mold her heart into words. Instead she pressed her mouth to his, her body to his body, as though she strove to live by his breath and flow through all his veins. Once more life had ended; here life began again.

An Open Letter to Robert Montgomery

ROBERT MONTGOMERY

Dear Robert: You have already experienced the beginnings of the biggest change in mental attitude which your life will hold—unless you live beyond the age of 112 years. From now on your character develops very rapidly, for you will be seeing many real meanings behind the outer symbols of the world, as you never have before. Some of this will be quite upsetting; but you are of a temperament elastic enough to accommodate yourself and your affairs according to shifting needs. In your dramatic work there will be increased depth, and I hope you get stories that will enable you to do all the new you will be capable of.

With best wishes, WYNN.

FRIDAY and SATURDAY: Look over money situations that depend on the coöperation of mate, associates, creditors, and debtors and consider your best course of action.

Chicago City Opera Stars to Sing in Grant Park This Week

By Cecil Smith.

Two of the leading lyric sopranos of the Chicago City Opera company and a prominent bass from the same institution are headliners among the Grant park soloists this week. The sopranos are Edith Mason, on Tuesday evening, and Marion Claire, on Saturday evening. The bass is Mark Love, whose appearance is scheduled for Friday evening. As always, all of the thousands of seats are both free and unreserved at these and all the other nightly concerts at the park band shell.

Miss Mason has chalked up a special and enviable record in the game of grand opera in America. No exotic imported diva, she was born in nearby St. Louis, spent many summers on a farm near Oskaloosa, Ia., and won nearly all of her operatic fame in an area bounded on the east by Massachusetts bay and on the west by the south branch of the Chicago river (or by the North Shore tracks, if you are thinking of bygone summers at Ravinia).

Her first major operatic rôles she sang with the now defunct Boston Opera company, a very good company in its day. Soon she moved to the Metropolitan opera in New York and to Ravinia. For the longest single stretch of her career she has been a member of the several Chicago opera companies which have followed each other in succession. She originally joined the Chicago Opera association. This in turn became the Chicago Civic Opera company, out of whose ashes more lately arose the Chicago Grand Opera company and its present successor, the Chicago City Opera company.

The list of operatic parts Miss Mason has essayed is too long to print here. Her performances in "Rigoletto," "Fra Diavolo," and "Martha" set a standard no other soprano in Chicago has reached since. Her Micæla in "Carmen" was enough to make one deplore the recent custom of saving money by employing minor singers for the rôle.

Miss Claire made her debut with the Chicago Civic Opera company on Nov. 1, 1928, at the Auditorium theater, with Antonio Cortis as her supporting tenor and Roberto Moranzoni conducting. The opera was Puccini's "La Bohême," and her success waranted the scheduling of three additional performances in the same season. [Continued on page three.]

'Pins and Needles,' 'Mister Jim' End Chicago Engagements

Western Play Rapid Failure at the Selwyn

By Charles Collins.

"Pins and Needles," a revue which was produced as occupational therapy for members of a garment workers' union in New York and became a box-office hit among the minor intelligentsia, left Chicago last night after a run of six weeks at the Grand Opera house. The company will carry its burden of social significance in song and dance to Los Angeles, where some of its members hope to become ex-garment workers and possibly capitalists through Hollywood contracts.

"Mister Jim," by which the federal theater project attempted to supply the needs of the inactive commercial theater on a $2.00 ticket scale, faded out of the Selwyn theater last night after a week's ineffectual operation. It was a total failure because of numerous and uncorrectable weaknesses in the manuscript. Such mistakes are common in the hit-or-miss business of dramatic production, and if followers of the professional stage feel any inclination to jeer at the WPA's misfortune, they should be reminded that about two-thirds of Broadway's annual output are as unsuited for the footlights as "Mister Jim."

Plays in manuscript are singularly deceptive for their readers. Some of them read well and act badly; others read badly and act well. The gift for discovering stageworthy plays on typewritten pages is extremely rare; it appears to require a high degree of imagination and also an instinct for feeling the pulse of dramatic action. It is the most valuable talent that can be brought to the theatrical business, but apparently no attempt is made to develop and educate it. One never hears of courses in play reading in the numerous schools of acting and stage technique; and also one never hears of impresarios who have followed an educational discipline that might aid them in their search for new material.

The formula for "Mister Jim" appeared to be a dash of "Tobacco Road" in a new environment; a liberal portion of "Of Mice and Men," and other studies of earthbound crackpots by John Steinbeck; and a central character who would recall the homespun humor of "Lightnin'." Its underlying thought was that no matter how shiftless and no-account you may be, don't worry, for if your heart is pure the government will give you a job writing guide books for tourists. This shotgun prescription apparently deluded Miss Hallie Flanagan, who runs the federal theater project, or some of her aide-de-camps, into the faith that a masterpiece had been discovered. When professional producers make such mistakes it is at their own risk and expense; but in this case the taxpayers will be charged for the guess work of Miss Flanagan et al.

P. J. Carolan, a leading member of the Abbey Theater company of Dublin and a participant in all of its American tours in the past fifteen or twenty years, died about two weeks ago without obituary notice in the American press except for a few lines in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Apparently the Dublin correspondents and press associations thought that his passing was a matter of no importance to the world at large, although his acting had been seen and admired by hundreds of thousands of Americans. Word of his death came by mail to distant relatives in Chicago, who informed THE TRIBUNE.

In nearly all the plays of the Abbey repertory, Carolan had important rôles. His line of characters represented the strength rather than the eccentricity of Irish peasant and middle class types. He had a full, rich, deliberate voice, and in the matter of diction he was probably the best man in the famous organization. Although only 39 years old, he was one of the seniors; his career ran back to the time of the disturbances in Dublin and the United States over "The Playboy of the Western World."

During the last Chicago engagement of the Abbey Theater company, about seven months ago, Carolan appeared in the following rôles: the blind father in "The Far Off Hills" [his masterpiece]; the hired man in "The New Gossoon"; the angry father of the seduced girl in "Silver Jubilee"; Fluther Good, the eccentric janitor in "The Plough and the Stars" [a rôle in which he succeeded Barry Fitzgerald]; and the tavern keeper in "The Playboy of the Western World" [also inherited from Fitzgerald]. He had acted a score or more of other rôles in Irish drama before American audiences; and had a wide personal acquaintance in Chicago. He was also, in recent years, the stage manager of the company.

Two baronial volumes in moss green buckram binding, fresh from the Random House press, have added "The Complete Greek Drama" in English translations to my book shelves. This noble adventure in publishing offers the reader, for the first time in history, the complete corpus of Attic dramatic literature, as it has survived, in a single work.

The editors are Whitney J. Oates of Princeton and Eugene O'Neill Jr. of Yale, past performances unknown to me and unrecorded in "Who's Who." It is possible that this O'Neill is the son of the dramatist and has inherited a bent toward Greek drama from the author of "Mourning Becomes Electra." But whether these classical scholars be youths with their doctors' hoods still to win or graybeards on the faculties of seats of learning, they have done a superb piece of work in editing this collection.

In their introduction they state that they sought the best available translations, demanding essential correspondence to the Greek originals as a whole and in detail. They had no bias toward prose or verse, but after they had arranged their material, prose was the winner. Of these forty-seven dramas, thirty are in prose, fifteen in verse, and two in combinations of prose and verse.

Here is a summary of the translators:

Works of Sophocles: Five by R. C. Jebb, one by R. C. Trevalyan, one by Thomas Francklin.

Works of Euripides: Twelve by E. P. Coleridge, three by Gilbert Murray, two by Robert Potter, one by Richard Aldington, one by F. M. Stawell.

Eugene O'Neill Jr. had the handling of Greek comedy and treated its many obscene passages and allusions in the modern manner; that is, he refused to suppress any of the four letter words. Thus the English reader gets, for the first time, the full measure of dirtfall in the plays of Aristophanes. Where Gilbert Murray had modified or omitted certain flagrancies in his translation of "The Frogs," Editor O'Neill restored the blushes in footnotes which reveal what Aristophanes really wrote.

Mr. O'Neill discusses the obscenity of Aristophanes in the introduction as follows:

"Equally astonishing is the pervading obscenity of the Old Comedy. This is so abundant and so varied that it cannot be ignored or excised. It is so closely interwoven into almost every part of these plays that to expurgate is to destroy. . . . The misguided hypocrite who salves his conscience and saves his face by misrepresenting Aristophanes' bawdiness as something too healthy to be prurient does the poet a disservice more subtle and more harmful than the honest and busy expurgator. There is no escaping the fact that Aristophanes wrote just as obscenely as he could on every possible occasion."

N. Y. Opens Its New Outdoor Opera Houses

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—We finally have our two huge open air opera houses going. Stadium theaters, I suspect they should be called. The one at Jones beach, which is forty miles down Long Island, opened on a windy Saturday with one of those Fortune Gallo-J. J. Shubert revivals of "Three Waltzes." Very nice, too, except neither the scenery nor the ladies' skirts would behave in the wind.

When the stage hands tried to move what is technically known as a "flat," meaning the side of a house, or a row of trees, or the painted interior of a room, from one side of the stage to the other the wind would pick them up and a-sailing they would go. They didn't move scenery, they just broke it out, as though each piece was a balloon spinaker.

As for skirts: The prima donna had to sing mostly without gestures, the chorus girls held their hats on with one hand and their skirts down with the other, singing nervously and frequently off key.

Funny about chorus girls. Put them in tights, or merely in trunks, and they switch themselves around the stage with defiant abandon and no thought of self-consciousness. But put skirts on them and turn on the wind and they immediately revert to sex and become fearfully agitated lest they be caught in an unmaidenly pose with their knees showing.

There were, despite the weather, some ten thousand persons in the stadium and probably half that number of motor cars parked in the asphalted field nearby. The auditors had a grand time. Not only did they head perfectly, the microphones bringing the voices clearly across the water, but they had the excitement of speculating as to which moment the troublesome skirts would balloon and dump a couple of singing girls in the bay.

In fact, during intermission the gondoliers who paddle past the audience and sing tropical songs to amuse the crowd came within an inch or two of capsizing their gondola and being forced to swim for the shore in makeup.

Everett Marshall, lusty baritone, and Lucy Monroe, soprano, had the leads in "Three Waltzes," which ran the better part of last season with Kitty Carlisle and Michael Bartlett in the leads. Miss Carlisle, incidentally, is up at Mount Kisco playing her first straight dramatic rôle in "French Without Tears."

Tuesday night, after two postponements, the Gallo-Shubert promoters were able to get Jerome Kern's "Show Boat" off the ways at Randalls Island. This is a huge stadium, seating something like 25,000 persons when it is all in use. The operatic folk use only one end of it for an auditorium, setting the stage in the infield beyond a vista of flowering shrubs and a spraying fountain that is shut off when the performance is on.

"Show Boat" did not have weather trouble at the opening. The night was warm and starry and the microphones brought both singing and speaking voices nicely to an audience of about 5,000.

Being stranger to the musicalized version of Edna Ferber's story, as Oscar Hammerstein III. had adapted it, you might not realize that "Show Boat" is really the best book and probably the best score of any of the American musical comedies yet staged. It is a little difficult to get proper dramatic or comedy values across a two acre field, with the faces of the players reduced to miniature. But it still is a good entertainment.

Good cast, too. Natalie Hall sang Julie, Bettina Hall was the Magnolia, William Kent had the Charley Winninger rôle of Capt. Andy, and Zelda Russell carried on as Parthy Ann where Edna May Oliver left off.

They are satisfying enterprises, these city sponsored shows. The city, at least, furnishes the setting and shares in the profit, if any, without being obligated to pay any part of the losses. The price range of seats is popular, which offsets the cost of travel. The best seats cost $1.10.

On the island they are trying the experiment this season of putting tables in the infield just in front of the stadium rail and selling beer, pop, sandwiches, and such there. A 10 cent service charge is added.

The only feature that I do not like about both these summer places is the sale of programs for another 10 cents. Patrons are entitled to a free program when they buy a seat, it seems to me. If the management wants to add what is known as a souvenir program, with art studies and written blurbs about the singers, and charge for that, all right. But there should be at least a printed slip giving cast and characters that goes with the purchased ticket. Greedy, these showmen, and terribly shortsighted, too.

Meantime the spread of summer opera goes on. This same Gallo-Shubert combination is opening seasons in Cleveland and Louisville this week. Cincinnati has started, or is about to start, and there are rumors that bring Fort Worth, Tex., and San Francisco, Cal., into the circuit within the next few weeks.

And the No. 1 enterprise of them all, which is St. Louis' own municipal opera, reports three weeks of bad weather, but, despite that, audiences averaging 65,000 persons a week and the usual enthusiasm.

Eugene O'Neill's firstborn son, Eugene O'Neill Jr., co-editor with Prof. Whitney J. Oates of Princeton of "The Complete Greek Drama." Two fat volumes of 1,250 pages each, containing just all the Greek drama there is extant—forty-seven plays, exclusive of fragments—seven of Æschylus, seven of Sophocles, nineteen of Euripides, eleven of Aristophanes, and three of Menander—are pretty impressive. The volumes are boxed and sell for $5. Random House is the publisher.

Not much has been heard of young Mr. O'Neill and this sudden emergence will doubtless attract the attention of his father's friends. He is the son of the dramatist's first wife, Kathleen Jenkins of New York, whom the playwright married in 1909. The boy was born in 1910 and his father and mother were divorced in 1912.

Eugene Jr. has made a record in scholarship at Yale, being one Phi Beta Kappa to whom the faculty pointed with pride at his graduation. In editing the present work, I was interested to learn, O'Neill "revised the translation and prepared the individual introductions and notes for the plays of Aristophanes, as well as that portion of the general index which deals with comedy and the comic parts."

If the son of the somber leader of all our dramatists can take to comedy by natural preference there is hope for him. Prof. Oates edited the text and prepared the individual introductions and notes for the plays of Æschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides.

The translations were jointly selected and include those of E. D. Morsland, E. P. Coleridge, Gilbert Murray, Robert Potter, and L. A. Post, together with several that are anonymous, including that of the "Lysistrata" of Aristophanes, which we saw played a few years back in what we thought was an excellent translation by Gilbert Seldes.

Your interest in Greek drama is probably no more compelling than my own, but if it should happen that you are eager to acquire a better and more complete understanding of what you do know about it, these volumes will prove not only helpful, but good reading as well. Putting one or both volumes in the tonneau of the car and dipping into them after you get where you are going, you should come home practically educated in a fortnight.

Well, the ways of labor are the ways of labor. Over the Fourth of July holidays the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union production of "Pins and Needles" gave the usual holiday matinée and night performances, with the busy buttonholers dancing their heads off. But the government sponsored WPA federal theater productions of "Prologue to Glory" and ". . . One-third of a Nation . . ." gave no shows at all. We still have thirteen of the winter's output of shows playing for the entertainment of visitors, but they will begin to fall off next week, when both "I'd Rather Be Right" and "The Women," long run successes, bow out.

Martha Raye, movie comedienne, leads the program of stage entertainment at the Chicago theater this week. Other performers on the bill are: Tommy Trent, the Honey family, Lowe, Hite and Stanley, and A. Leon Adrian's orchestra. Bookings at the Chicago for later in the summer include Tommy Riggs, radio star; Betty Lou, Zasu Pitts, Rudy Vallee and orchestra, and Veloz and Yolanda.

The Palace theater's bill of footlight amusement this week is given by the floor show performers who recently ended an engagement at the Royale Frolics café. They include Sid Tomas and the Reiss brothers, Mark Fisher and orchestra, Florence Hin Low, Chinese acrobatic dancer; Jane and Adam Di Gaetano, ballroom dancers; Jackie Hilliard, singer; Joyce brothers and Dean, tap dancers; and a ballet of 30 girls.

Milt Douglas, stage and radio comedian, and Yvette Rugel, prima donna, are the headliners of the current variety bill at the State-Lake theater. Douglas is assisted by Priscilla and Perry Mayo. Others on the program are Dare and Yates, Jack Gregory and company, Little Jeanie and Billy Mahoney, Verne Buck, and a group of dancing girls.

Toscanini Aid

To assist Arturo Toscanini in the preparation of his broadcast symphony concerts next season, his sponsors have engaged Hans W. Steinberg, one of the conductors of the Palestine orchestra, as assistant conductor. He has worked with Mr. Toscanini before, for he went to Palestine in 1936 to prepare the newly formed orchestra for its concerts under the great Italian conductor. Mr. Steinberg is a native of Cologne, Germany, and at one time was assistant to Otto Klemperer [now conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra] at the Cologne opera. He later filled positions as operatic conductor in Prague and Frankfort.

Juvenile Plays

The Jack and Jill Players, who have been active for twelve years under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley, will give their productions in the Chicago Civic theater next season. Performances will be given every Saturday morning, starting at 10:45, from Nov. 1 to May 1. A new play will be produced every month.

The members of the company will range from 6 to 18 years of age, and all of them have been jack-and-jilling for some time. The Civic theater, seating 900, is at the north end of the Civic Opera House building, on Wacker drive. It was opened in 1929 by Fritz Leiber's Shakespearean company.

Canadian Tour

"Whiteoaks," which had a run of 112 performances on Broadway, will be seen in many Canadian cities next season. A tour begins at Halifax on Aug. 22. This company will travel to the Pacific coast, dropping down into the United States occasionally for engagements that will total about a month.

What Are Functions of Music Teacher? Critic Explains

Irrelevancies Befog Subject, Is His Charge

By Edward Barry.

In a series of articles whose modest purpose is to explain all the explicable mysteries of music there is surely a place for a discussion of the functions of the teacher. This subject is befogged with irrelevant considerations and, although it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of choosing the right teacher, an instructor is too often selected who is expected to do much more [or sometimes much less] than can reasonably be demanded.

No sane person will attempt anything without first inquiring as to whether some predecessor faced with the same problem has not been able to devise an especially easy and effective way of solving it. To build a house by the trial and error method, testing for yourself every method of keeping the walls upright and the roof fastened on, means a mad expenditure of time and money. And the whole thing will probably blow away the very first time that you settle cosily down for an evening of reading inside.

An architect or a carpenter can give a client the benefit of his own experience, and of the accumulated experience of his predecessors, and can save a great deal of time and money through his knowledge of the fact that the best ways of doing things have already been determined by laborious trial and error methods and through his understanding of the means by which these various solutions may be applied to the particular problem at hand. So a teacher can use his own and his predecessors' accumulated experience to protect a student from the vast waste which the task of building a technique independently would most certainly involve.

This is the prime function of the teacher of music—to provide a student with the proper technical equipment as quickly and economically as possible. The word "proper" here is recognition of the fact that there is no such thing as a standard technique which can be fitted onto anybody like a volume production gas mask, and that the excellence of a teacher's purely technical services may be said to vary directly with the amount of intelligence which he brings to the task of equipping each differing individual.

The broad handed, short fingered pianist requires one sort of training, his brother with the fine long talons another. The tenor who all but chokes to death when he sings above a mezzo piano cannot profit by the methods which have enabled the I-love-life-give-a-man-a-horse baritone to bring his volume down to a point where he can safely perform in a moderate sized amphitheater.

A technique is more than the ability to play or sing in an accurate, reliable, smooth and tonally acceptable manner. It is rather the ability to translate into sound any expressive effect which the performer's imagination demands and which his sense of the music's character approves.

So much for the comparatively simple matter of technique building [simple to explain, that is]. A first class issue is raised when we look a little farther and inquire into the musical duties of a teacher. The problem sure to be encountered may be stated as follows:

Should a teacher encourage a technically well equipped student to allow his own sense of the musical significance of a piece to determine the manner in which it should be played or sung, or should the teacher drill his pupil constantly in the finest details of nuance [subtle effects of color, phrasing, tempo, dynamics, etc.] in the hope that an intelligent and meaningful performance will result?

The problem is insoluble as it stands. The first method will permit in many cases the most grotesque distortions of the music, while adherence to the second will frequently result in performances as utterly mechanical as those of a student who has never heard of nor ever even conceived of such a thing as nuance. If one pupil doggedly learns and memorizes notes and another equally doggedly learns and memorizes both notes and inflections, the musical values of their presentations will not differ in the least.

This brings us to a statement of two more things which a teacher may reasonably be expected to do and of one duty which must under no circumstances be required of him. He should certainly try to infect a student with his own sense of the excellence of the music—should try to inflame him to the point where its inner meaning, hidden under the composer's notes and signs and tempo marks, becomes apparent—and he should be generous in providing information as to how such and such a passage is traditionally sung or played. If all of this does not result in a personal, highly inflected, and yet reasonably plausible performance, there is nothing else that the harried instructor can do.

For he cannot be expected to make a musical nature out of an unmusical one—to endow with interpretative talent a young man or woman to whom nature has vouchsafed quite other gifts. To conceive and suggest and mark out every nuance is not only a gargantuan task but it is a thankless one. The resulting performance will be exactly as significant as the one your sailor uncle's parrot gives of the first eight lines of the Aeneid.

RAVINIA SOLOIST

On Thursday evening Mario Chamlee, noted American tenor, will return to the scene of his earlier operatic successes at Ravinia Park to sing arias with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Willem Van Hoogstraten conducting.

Ravinia to Hear Final Rodzinski Concert Today

After this afternoon's concert at Ravinia park, Artur Rodzinski departs from the local scene, leaving behind a host of newly made admirers. Willem Van Hoogstraten, Dutch born conductor, will be his successor, directing four concerts on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evening and next Sunday afternoon.

Willem Van Hoogstraten.

For Mr. Van Hoogstraten's first concert Thursday the Ravinia board has obtained the services of Mario Chamlee, tenor, as assisting soloist. Mr. Chamlee is no stranger to old-time habitues of the north shore park for in the last years of Ravinia's operatic régime he shared the chief tenor assignments of every summer season with Edward Johnson and Giovanni Martinelli.

Mr. Chamlee's voice is on the boundary line separating the two domains known as lyric and dramatic. He was, therefore, a useful and versatile member of the opera company.

Perhaps his best achievements, however, were in the field of comedy. His performance with Elizabeth Rethberg in "The Bartered Bride" was deft and clever. Best of all, to many of his auditors, was his characterization, in Rabaud's oriental fairy-tale opera "Marouf," of the simple-minded cobbler of Cairo who fell in love with Princess Saamcheddine [Yvonne Gall], married her, obtained a huge caravan and great wealth by rubbing a magic ring, and lived happily ever afterward. His singing of the exquisite oriental serenade in this opera was probably the high peak of his vocal career at Ravinia.

Mr. Van Hoogstraten, like Mr. Chamlee, is a familiar figure in these parts. In 1934 he directed a brace of concerts at A Century of Progress. In 1936 he conducted one week of concerts in the first Ravinia festival. Meanwhile he has continued his regular duties as conductor of the Portland [Oregon] Symphony orchestra.

• • •

Mr. Van Hoogstraten lands in New York from Europe today. Unless he changes his mind at the last moment, the programs herewith appended are final in form. Note especially the Mozart concerto for flute and harp to be played Saturday evening by Ernest Liegl and Joseph Vito, two of the orchestra's star first desk men:

Current Music News

Seventy-one per cent of the 1937 subscribers already have renewed their reservations for the 1938 season of opera, according to word received from the Chicago City Opera company. The season opens Oct. 29 with Verdi's "Otello," sung by Helen Jepson, who is learning the rôle of Desdemona at her New York state farm this summer; Giovanni Martinelli, and Lawrence Tibbett. One of the important revivals of the autumn will be Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounoff," in which Alexander Kipnis will be heard for the first time in America. Kirsten Flagstad will add Elsa in "Lohengrin" to the list of her Chicago rôles, and Lily Pons will sing Rosina in "The Barber of Seville," likewise a new rôle for Chicago. Grace Moore will appear as Louise in the Charpentier opera of the same title; her singing of this part goes back to her pre-Metropolitan days at the Paris Opera.

First aid stations are maintained at the band shells in Grant, Jackson, Lincoln, and Garfield parks during the free summer concerts. Attendants and equipment are furnished by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, under the direction of D. Melville Carr.

All the newest technical developments in the manufacture of musical instruments will be displayed at the music trades' convention and trade show in the Stevens hotel from Aug. 1 to 4. More than two million dollars' worth of instruments, "ranging from piccolos to pipe organs," will be on exhibit. Sales records show that the piano, the guitar, and the piano accordion are the most popular instruments.

Serge Prokofieff, famous Russian composer and pianist, now is at home in Moscow composing the score for a motion picture, "Alexander of Neva," a historical film depicting the invasion of Russia by German soldiers in the thirteenth century. Mr. Prokofieff will be heard in the Musical Arts piano series in Orchestra hall next fall.

In Pasadena, Cal., an audience of 25,000 heard a late June performance of Verdi's "Aïda" in the famous Rose Bowl. The stage was raised twelve feet above the ground to provide an unobstructed view. Principal singers included Eva Turner and Bruna Castagna, both listed for the 1938 Chicago opera season; Jesus de Gaviria, and Richard Bonelli.

Chicago Opera Stars to Sing in Grant Park

Before coming to Chicago she had undertaken a rigorous course of study in Germany and had sung in the major opera houses of Berlin and Dresden. Her versatility is shown by the variety of operas she has starred in, ranging from Italian and French works to Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Wagner's "Lohengrin," and Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier."

Her versatility does not stop here, however, for she has also made a name for herself on the stage, particularly in the spectacle entitled "The Great Waltz," and has appeared with Bobby Breen in the motion picture, "Make a Wish." Last summer she was a featured soloist at the Chicagoland Music festival in Soldiers' field.

To the large number of Chicagoans who listen regularly to radio programs the name of Mark Love is a familiar one, for he has made it one of the biggest names in the Chicago broadcasting area. In the last few seasons he has received an increasingly large number of assignments at the Civic Opera house and has developed an extensive operatic répertoire. On one tense occasion eighteen months ago he jumped into the breach at the last moment when another baritone was unable to appear, and gave a confident, vigorous performance that wholly concealed his lack of rehersal.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Francis Boott prize of $100, awarded annually at Harvard university for the best composition in concerted vocal music, has been awarded this year to Everett B. Helm, of Minneapolis, Minn.

Many improvements have been made in the Wilmette bowl, which is located at the foot of Washington street in Washington park, where the Illinois Symphony orchestra is playing a Wednesday night series. Additional trees, ferns, and shrubbery have been planted and extensive landscaping has been completed. The parking spaces have been increased in capacity, and chairs have been added to enlarge the seating capacity of the bowl, Izler Solomon will conduct both at Wilmette Wednesday and at the University of Chicago Thursday.

Navy pier is the scene of free band concerts each Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evening at 8:30 and each Saturday and Sunday afternoon at 3:30 during the summer season.

The third summer faculty concert of the American Conservatory of Music will be given in Kimball hall Wednesday afternoon by Marie Sidenius Zendt, lyric soprano, and Edward Collins, pianist. Mrs. Zendt's accompanist is Charles Lurvey. She programs the aria "Lasciatemi morire," from Monteverdi's "Ariana," and songs by Schubert, Grieg, Schierbeck, Charlotte Caldwell, Walford Davies, and Coleridge-Taylor. Mr. Collins will play the prodigious Beethoven sonata, Opus 109, a Chopin-Brahms group, and modern pieces by himself, John Alden Carpenter, Charles Griffes, and Leo Sowerby. The final American Conservatory concert July 20, will present Heniot Levy, pianist, and Edward Eigenschenk, organist.

Recitals by faculty members of other schools also are scheduled. Sergei Tarnowsky, pianist, and Richard Czerwonky, violinist, will give a sonata recital at De Paul university Tuesday afternoon. At the same school the Czerwonky String quartet will play Thursday. The Chicago Conservatory of music announces a Kimball hall recital July 20, by Hans Hess, cellist, and Marston H. Pearson, bass.

The first event on the fall schedule of the Musical guild will be a recital of German lieder in Fullerton hall Oct. 11, by George Newton, basso cantante, of Indianapolis, Ind.

The Philadelphia orchestra, to play here in the Auditorium theater on Nov. 2, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, has booked an unusually extensive series of tours for next season. Dates outside Philadelphia include a series of ten subscription concerts in New York and five each in Washington and Baltimore. Beside visiting Chicago in November, the orchestra will go to Harrisburg Pa., Fort Wayne, Ind., Toledo, O., and Pittsburgh, Pa. A December tour takes the group to North and South Carolina. In January the orchestra will penetrate even farther southward, playing at Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville, Fla., Atlanta, Ga., Knoxville, Tenn., and two concerts in New Orleans, La. Later in the winter the schedule calls for a New England tour. Mr. Ormandy will conduct for the larger part of the season. Other conductors, for shorter assignments, are Georges Enesco, Vladimir Golschmann, Saul Caston, and possibly Leopold Stokowski.

Hepburn's Promise.

Katharine Hepburn is under verbal agreement to act for the Theater Guild next season if she can find a play she likes. Thus far she is not liking them.

College Heads Air Views on Scholarships

By the Rev. John Evans.

"I have read your article in the June 5 issue of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE on 'Hobo student problem a major college worry.' I think it is a splendid thing to call attention to this type of student migration from college to college. We are not greatly troubled with it, however.

"Our greatest concern has been the competition which we get from sister colleges outbidding us with scholarship aid for students. Sometime I suggest that you take a fling at the policy of buying college students through all kinds of subsidies."

It is, of course, no business of this department "to take a fling" at the scholarship or student subsidy policy of any college. But this college president raises a point that is interesting to all who follow college and university doings. Moreover, even a casual glimpse at the whole question discloses a vast literature of correspondence, presidential speechmaking, and magazine articles.

Definite but conflicting policies have been adopted by at least two institutions concerning what the Association of College Representatives now calls the "scholarship racket." One policy is that of Augustana college, Rock Island, and the other was recently announced by James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard university.

The former says that the question will be solved by refusing both scholarships and student aid to all freshmen. Dr. Conant, whom the Association of College Representatives seems generally to favor, says that only needy students of high scholastic attainments should be given scholarship funds or student aid; students of high scholastic attainments from wealthy or well to do homes should be given scholarship honors but no money.

The difference between scholarships and student aid was described by Edward W. Hale of Beloit college, president of the representatives' association. Financial aid given to students of the upper 10 per cent of their high school graduation classes, he said, may properly be called scholarships; financial aid given to worthy students who did not achieve such high scholarship is just student aid, with no special recognition other than general worthiness involved.

The propriety of college administrators using income from scholarship or other invested funds for "buying" students or for outbidding other colleges for students is now being hotly debated in the collegiate world.

For instance, the following letter was addressed to a well known college:

"Dear Sir:

"I graduated from ——— high school this spring and my principal asked me to write to several colleges and universities to see if I might get a scholarship. He said that the more scholarships we could get for our class the better it would be for the standing of our high school.

"I am all-state full back and play basketball. My grades are in the upper 20 per cent of my class. I have received two good bids so far and I will be glad to hear from you."

The director of admissions replied as follows:

Another college cited a well to do young suburbanite girl of good social standing but of ordinary scholarship. She applied for scholarship aid in a well known institution and was refused on scholarship grounds. A few days later the suburban press announced that she had been granted a $600 scholarship at a salt water woman's college which is trying to build a central west constituency.

The question in these cases and many others now under debate is this: Do grants to these students represent the educational intentions of the donors to the institution's endowments? Or, are not funds so used being diverted to the promotional program of the colleges rather than to the cause of higher education?

High school principals who wish to show patrons how well their schools are recognized are blamed by the representatives' association for a good deal of the present scholarship racketeering.

Good Morning!

Though Ginger Rogers still seems a bit lonesome without her Fred Astaire, she plays up amiably and brightly to Mr. Fairbanks' little boy, Douglas, who also gives a good account of himself.

A large, loud and flourishing summer camp, catering to shop girl trade, backgrounds most of the action.

Hither—bound from her everyday life of crowds and confusion at home and in business, comes Teddy for a rest.

Instead of the private cabin she'd anticipated, she finds herself bunking with three other girls, eating in jammed dining rooms and expected to follow a hectic entertainment schedule.

It's all not much fun until she falls in love with young Chic, one of a number of college men who are gigolo-ing at the camp for board, room and a bit of money to help keep wolves from doors in the fall.

The romance between Teddy and Chic is depicted rather sweetly. The action has some laughs, some nice scenery, and several unique situations.

It should, I say, be pretty popular with the masses, though I thought it not up to the usual Ginger Rogers' output.

See you tomorrow.

SIMONE SEEN AT GARRICK

Playhouse History

The new play by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, authors of "You Can't Take It With You," will probably be called "The Fabulous Invalid." It deals with a generation in the history of a playhouse which sinks from the first class into the burlesque business, then becomes a movie house, then reverts to the "legitimate." The theater itself appears to be the central character in the story. Thursday, Oct. 6, has been fixed as the date of the New York première.

They Never Quit.

Frances Starr will appear on the New York stage next fall for the first time since 1935. She will have the leading rôle in a play called "The Good," by Chester Erskin. She was popular as a dramatic star during the heyday of David Belasco's career.

Actors' Vacation

John Golden has put an unusual footnote into the contracts for the company that will support Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God," on tour next season. It stipulates that: "The party of the second part hereby agrees to take a minimum of four weeks' vacation before reporting to Stage Manager Robert Burton on or about Aug. 1, and it is further agreed that said vacation will be spent in a calm and restful way so that the personnel of the company will be in tip top condition for the new season."

This play will come to Chicago in September for an extended run.

Above: Mrs. George L. Plamondon is not making plans for a summer holiday because she and her family moved from the city to Wilmette this spring to make their home. Mrs. Plamondon is an active member of the Chicago board of the Arden Shore association which is planning a fall benefit for the night of Oct. 8 at the autumn opening of dancing at the Drake.

Left: Miss Marion Riordon will spend the summer with her parents, the James K. Riordons, at their Lombard home, Brookhaven Farms. She has been studying at the Harris Schools, but will go away to school in the fall.

Voyage Aboard Luxury Vessel Thrills Writer

By Cousin Eve.

Crossing on the Normandie isn't like an ocean trip at all, but something very special in life like getting married or inheriting a million or so. I used to think that people raved rather extravagantly about the French ship, but now I know that they were not exaggerating.

New York struck me as exciting in the few hours left me by a train wreck and delay. Count and Countess Charles Ferry de Fontnouvelle asked me for a cocktail party at the St. Regis, where they are living now. I found them with a circle of twenty friends on the top terrace of the hotel, including M. and Mme. Garreau-Dombasle, commercial attaché of the French embassy in Washington, who also were sailing on the Normandie. Charles has great popularity and acclaim as consul general in New York, social and otherwise. To his credit is the new Lycée Franéaise, with several hundred pupils, already a brilliant success. Countess de Fontnouvelle, tall and charming Anglaise, lately has had a baby, which, owing to a quaint old French custom, entitles her husband to at least five more years in the diplomatic service.

One of the prettiest women at this party was Mrs. Sosthenes Behn, once a Miss Berwind of Newport, who has a summer place at St. Jean de Luz near the Spanish border. She had talked that morning on the telephone with her husband who was in Spain. Mrs. Behn dropped me at my next date which was a farewell dinner. Among the guests were the lovely Gladys Werlick of Washington and Vernon Bailey the artist and his wife, who had just come from playing around in Hungary with the Szechenyis, Gladys Vanderbilt's in-laws.

After dinner we went to see "Two Bouquets," a musical comedietta written by the grandchildren of Joe Jefferson. It seems the veteran actor had a large collection of ditties which he was wont to sing, and the grandchildren salvaged these quite rococo gems and have made a plot around them. As an evening's entertainment it might have been very mild, if not tempered with bustles, hoopskirts, and a gorgeous audience. In front of me sat the President's daughter, Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, with a party, and behind me blazed and scintillated the beautiful blonde Mrs. Vivian Woolley-Hart of London, whose jewels are worthy of her multimillionaire gold mining husband. And another luminous personality utterly hypnotizing her neighbors, Mrs. Frederick Payne, wife of a wealthy New Yorker, was done up à la chinoise, slanting eyes, slick black hair, high cheek bones, gold kimono, and everything. She isn't any more Chinese than I am, but looked and acted the part, and they all went afterward with us to an Arabian Nights sort of place where there was a marvelous skating show. One marvelous feat followed another. The thing one remembers best was the ballet done up entirely in swan's down with sashes and caps of sapphire blue.

The Normandie lay at her pier like a great black swan. I was thrilled at her beauty, and thoughts of that 160,000 horse power. But oddly enough, no sense of her great bulk ever assails one, except perhaps when sitting in the cinema theater, with its hundreds of red velvet seats, its golden walls, and sweeping velvet curtains.

To describe the Normandie properly would take much too long. For example, there are seventeen elevators, those of the cabin being of gilded metal in meshwork of heavy golden shells. There is an inner swimming pool of green marble with instructors and life guards on hand. I took a run over the ship one day to see the kitchens, the tourist class This is terraced delectably at the stern and full of charming people. The fire station is fiery red and, manned by twenty-five sagacious "Pompiers" from Paris, who have all sorts of gadgets to detect and locate the slightest whiff of smoke. There is, however, no inflammable stuff in the ship outside of rugs and hangings.

One fixes one's habits aboard ship. My charming stateroom, in beige and brown, had a fascinating woolly rug, curtains of heavy apricot silk, a sofa, armchairs, and lots of mirrors and armoires. I liked it better than the Grand Duchess Marie's, which had, however, a sunny veranda. Mrs. Woolley-Hart and I sat together in luxurious deck chairs. She is a fascinating woman; was formerly Countess von Bernstorff, daughter-in-law of the pre-war German ambassador at Washington. On our right was venerable Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and the tallest woman aboard, her daughter, Margaret Rutherford, now Princesse Charles Murat, whose enormous bright green eyes are like electric lights among eagle features.

To the left was a fellow from the state department who had many a bean to spill. So quick and painless was the voyage one never quite caught up with the procession.

One felt always like an ancient Babylonian in the dining room, so marvelous was this immense oblong with 40 foot ceiling blocked off in varying reds. Its empurpled metal walls were striped by shining pillars of indirect lighting and from the gleaming black parquet chandeliers sprouted of the same moonlight luster. Dozens of golden doors led to the service corridor flanking the restaurant.

Thelma, Lady Furness, asked me for cocktails the first night out. She is a woman of great allure, very pretty and with the loveliest white arms and hands imaginable. Her hair is black, parted in the middle; she is tall, with a good figure, and her frock that night was white crêpe of Greek simplicity. Lady Furness wore no makeup and no jewels. She was having her portrait painted aboard ship by the latest London sensation in portrait painters, Herbert Gruschner.

Lady Furness recently has written a book on the subject of her friendship with the duke of Windsor, nicely illustrated with photographs and royal letters. It will not be published just yet, but at some psychological moment later on.

Among the ship's gilded youth were Woolley and Jimmy Donahue, Woolworth heirs, wonderfully tailored men with round boyish faces. There was dancing nightly in the Ritz grill, with its broad sightly windows at the stern. There seemed to be half a dozen orchestras on the ship, and this lot played all night long. It was wonderful to see the modern traveling deb in the dance, pecking occasionally at her partner's face in a butterfly kiss, and the long, lean titled men cavorting.

There were opera singers aboard—Gladys Swarthout, good looking brunette, and Marian Anderson, the colored contralto, whose physique is gorgeous as well as her voice. There were half a dozen princesses; many dowagers of high society, with trains of servants—Mrs. Whitney Warren, Mrs. Beverly Robinson, Millicent Rogers and her husband, Ramon Ramos.

Probably the most agreeable and brilliant people aboard were the new British peer, Lord Stamp of Shortlands and Lady Stamp who entered into everything with spirit. The great English economist was merry as a schoolboy on a holiday. The Stamps, like true Britishers, did gymnastics and rode mechanical horses twice every day.

The growing flowers in the ship were divine and one night there was an up to the minute sensation in the rose lounge with its golden walls, when we found a prize ring set up after dinner. You have to hand it to the French that they do things with distinction. Even this prize fight was chic.

Meanwhile we bristled along at 700 miles a day in a sparkling sea like millions of aquamarines. But it seemed more like floating in space on a swift cloud, than in cleaving the Atlantic with a giant plow. The water was smooth as cream, the air like wine.

Finally it was England and Mrs. Woolley-Hart got off, also Lord and Lady Stamp and the lovely Thelma Furness. We all wished the voyage was just beginning instead of ending. Soon it was France and the passport men were snorting over our passports, and the gallant douaniers were inquiring if I had any cigarets.

It was a hard wrench to leave the marble halls, the shining beauties of the Normandie and her superquiet elegance. Perfection, which is rare here below, was there, and we were kissing it good-by.

Never had France looked lovlier. It was the most dazzling late afternoon imaginable and the country was radiantly green. Poppies flamed in the wheat fields, villages had an up and coming air of new life, and apple trees of Normandy charmed me as they have charmed humans since William the Conqueror.

The Seine wove about capriciously between leafy trees branched oddly, as only French trees know how to grow, and we saw people fishing in small boats on its silver tide in the setting sun. Then Paris! If Normandy were dazzling in its rural beauty, what of Paris at half after eight of a June night arrayed in all the beauty of its historic treasure? The king and queen of England were coming on a four day visit, and France had let herself go with all the artistic resources at her command.

The Madeleine stood forth, its Roman pillars backed with ruby velvet and the golden sheaves of France. Rue de la Paix, Place Vendôme, Rue Castiglione are hung with rich red velvet banners, and their columns swathed in the velvets and golds of old royal progresses. Laurel leaves in thick ropes span the great column celebrating Napoleon's victories. The Champs Elysées blazes with bright lights by night and dazzling colors by day. A new railroad station will admit the king and queen to this gorgeous welcome, north of the Arc de Triomphe. The coats of arms of England and France occupy the center of the stage in the Place de la Concorde. At the Rond Point are twelve tall pyramids of glass, and beautiful mannikins in classic attire will pose there on the great day.

The program of entertainment is also worthy of France. The president, Albert Lebrun, gives a magnificent garden party and reception at the Elysée palace. The Quai d'Orsay gives an evening party of the most gorgeous. For the first time in history the Salle des Glaces at Versailles will be used for a magnificent luncheon, and two rooms will be furnished as in the days of Louis XIV., a room for the king, and a room for her majesty, with furnishings to the last detail of those days, and servitors in the old liveries.

A great garden party will be given by the Polo club at Bagatelle and the grand gala of the Grand opera has seats for 1,200 guests, while 5,000 wish to come.

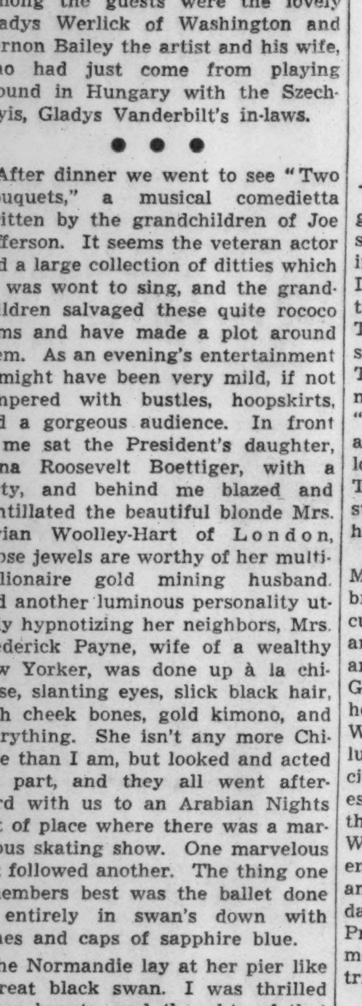
There is to be a boar hunt, six fully caparisoned hunts with horses and hounds, the pick of France, in the Jardin d'Acclimatation, followed by a hunt ball, for which the ballroom has been specially built, and that isn't the half of it. The wire pulling, not to mention hair pulling, as to who shall attend these parties is beyond words. Every man in the chamber of deputies intends to be present with all the éclat possible.

I was lunching with Count Serge Fleury, lovely Mme. de Herrera, and a tremendous swell, chef de Protocol, when news came of the death of Queen Elizabeth's mother, the Lady Strathmore. I heard the news at a ball at the American embassy that night that the royal visit had been set back one month.

WILL BE WED IN FALL

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kahn of 7324 Oglesby avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Lois, to Leonard Laser, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Laser of 6849 Crandon avenue. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Little Solomon



By Eleanor Jewett.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Daddy plants seeds in our garden
And watches with anxious eyes
To see what color they come up
And how each plant does for size.

He worries a lot with his garden,
The flowers weigh as much as the seeds
On his mind—I have to wonder
If God fears as much for His weeds?

They grow, the daisies and thistles,
The milkweed and dandelion,
So GLADLY—and I bet God thinks:
"Now, there's a good job of mine!"

I doubt if He worries a minute
About even one of His weeds;
If my dad would do more as He does
He'd get lots more fun from his seeds!

Clubs Prepare for Arrival of Princess Here

The arrival of two distinguished Swedish women, Crown Princess Louise and Mrs. Maja Sandler, wife of the Swedish minister of foreign affairs, will make this one of the interesting weeks of the summer for members of a number of organizations.

The Midwest Horticultural society will visit the Walter S. Brewsters' estate in Lake Forest Saturday afternoon, afterward touring other gardens of the suburb. Members will leave the intersection of Milwaukee and Elston avenues at 2 o'clock. Mrs. R. W. Jaquith, 6647 Onarga avenue, is in charge of reservations.

July Weddings Fill Calendar in Pasadent

By Ruth Billheimer.

June well past . . . and they are still going down the aile to Lohengrin!

PASADENA, CAL.

Susan Haradon will be the next. Her wedding to David Lasley, brother of Mrs. Botsford Young of Lake Forest, is set for the fifteenth of this month in the little Church of Our Savior. Betty Hall of Chicago, a cousin of the bride elect and daughter of the C. B. Halls, formerly of Pasadena, is coming on to be a bridesmaid. Mrs. Young and her two sons may be present at the wedding.

Miss Haradon has chosen her sister, Mrs. Howard D. Kisner of Berkeley, as matron of honor. Another cousin, Miss Julia Childs of Riverside, Cal., and Mrs. Ward Poulson will be bridesmaids. John Lasley will be best man for his brother and the ushers will include Howard Haradon Jr. and Frederick Matson, the bridegroom's cousin from New Mexico.

Mr. Lasley is the son of Mrs. Montgomery Lasley, formerly of Detroit. His fiancée is the daughter of the Fritz Howard Haradons of this city.

From San Diego comes news of another summer romance: The engagement of Miss Ethel Wanner, daughter of Mrs. Karrick P. Collins of La Jolla, to Frederick Emery Janney, son of Laurence Janney of Stamford, Conn., and Mrs. Cornelius Lynde of Winnetka. The betrothal was announced at a cocktail party for 200 guests recently in La Jolla. A toast to the young couple by Mr. Collins revealed the news. Miss Wanner attended the Finch school, New York, and is a graduate of the Bishop's school, La Jolla. Her fiancé was graduated last year from Annapolis.

Among the guests here for the wedding on June 30 of Adelaide Finkbine and Alex Hixon was the former Miss Finkbine's house guest, Miss Celia Coit of Winnetka. The two attended Ecola Coeur Maintenou at Cannes. The wedding was one of the most brilliant of the season and the couple departed for a European honeymoon. They went first to Del Monte, thence to San Francisco, and sailed yesterday from New York on the Saturnia for Venice. They will motor through Italy and other countries and will make their home eventually in San Antonio, Tex.

A novel feature of the wedding reception held in the home and gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Finkbine of South Oak Knoll avenue was the gigantic white candle that topped the wedding cake. "Adelaide and Alex" was written upon it in gold letters, and twenty-five gold rings circled it to mark two hours' burning upon each anniversary until their twenty-fifth.

The bride's gown was a copy of an original Molyneaux in eighteenth century bouffant style, made with shirred seams which extended into the petal shaped train. She carried a shower of white butterfly orchids falling from a white prayer book and the same blossoms were superimposed upon a satin halo for her headdress. Little Barbara Hunter, niece of Mr. Hixon, was flower girl and wore a flounced tulle frock which was a duplicate of that worn by the bridesmaid, Miss Helen Finkbine, a sister of the bride.

Two weddings of the day previous were those of Miss Helen Wig and James Elgin Jr. and Ruth Halderman Birdsey and William Fairfield Burr of Dobbs Ferry. The latter couple is motoring to Dobbs Ferry to reside, and all four young people are Pomona college graduates.

Miss Birdsey chose an afternoon garden wedding at the home of her parents, the Charles Robert Birdseys, formerly of Hinsdale, and was married among old-fashioned flowers growing against an English laurel hedge. Her sister, Elizabeth Varney Birdsey, was her only attendant. Mr. Burr's parents, the George Linsley Burrs, were among those present.

The Elgin-Wig wedding took place in the evening in Pasadena Presbyterian church and the bride's two sisters, Mrs. J. Stanley Johnson [Mary Wig], recently at Oak Park, and Miss Winifred Wig, were her attendants. A reception followed at the home of her parents, the Rudolph J. Wigs in San Marino. Mr. Elgin is the son of Mrs. Lou Orebaugh Elgin of Cincinnati.

Pasadena hardly saw Miss Helen Montgomery of Evanston during the week she spent in southern California with her sisters, Mrs. Richard M. Illsley and Mrs. Herbert G. Clifford, for it was her first trip to this state and sightseeing supplanted practically all parties. She and her mother, Mrs. Harry Montgomery, who has been with the Cliffords all winter, left Thursday by motor for Seattle and other northern points.

NORTH SIDE NEWLYWED

Mrs. Robert Ball Emery is the former Margery Garvy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William John Garvy of 3100 Sheridan road. Mr. Emery is the son of Mrs. John T. Emery of Elmhurst. Their wedding took place June 29.

Little Traverse Ferry Jaunts Amuse Colony

The ferry trips on Little Traverse bay which began this week have been amusing resorters.

PETOSKEY, MICH.

The Mascot makes a leisurely circuit around the bay, stopping at resorts along the shore. It whistle, which changes from the first impressive notes of an organ prelude to the voice of a very gruff old gentleman, has caused no end of merriment, especially among the younger set at Harbor Point, Roaring Brook, and Wequetonsing. Young Sally Ryan, accompanied by her nurse, is one of the devotees of the whistling ferry boat and enjoys watching it come to anchor in the harbor. Sally's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill Ryan, are arriving shortly to be at their Harbor Point cottage for the season.

Since the holiday officially inaugurated the season at Harbor Point you meet Chicagoans at every turn walking through the winding wooded road with the charming view of Little Traverse bay on one side and expansive, blue Lake Michigan on the other, working in their gardens, just visiting or looking up a fourth for contract. The speed of automobiles is temporarily forgotten, for if you would ride at Harbor Point you must choose a bicycle or travel in sedate style in a carriage. The horse has triumphed over the automobile and cars are banned at the entrance to the Point. The Michigan Outboard regatta, run off this week on Little Traverse bay, brought out all the privately owned craft and the bay was like a blue and white figured print, with yachts, sailboats, and speedboats in evidence. A number of the Chicago club members came up from Charlevoix for the races.

Flower Show Scheduled at Maine Resort

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, prominent members of the Chicago colony who spend the summer in Bar Harbor and vicinity, arrived at Hare Forest, their estate located on the shores of the picturesque Frenchmen's Bay this last week.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

Mrs. Palmer is assisting with the arrangements for the annual flower show which will be held at the Building of Arts on July 19 and 20. The show is sponsored by the Garden Club of Mount Desert. Mrs. Palmer is vice chairman of the affair, which is one of the largest and most interesting functions of the summer.

Of particular interest to Chicagoans is the recent purchase of East Point, the former estate of Mrs. D. H. McAlpin of New York, by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who are expected to arrive around the middle of the month to occupy it for the summer. With them will be their three sons, Deering, Roger, and Brooks. East Point is a lovely, dark brown, shingled house with green trimmings, located directly overlooking picturesque Seal Harbor, and affording a panoramic view of the harbor and the open Atlantic. A splendid view of the famous Cadillac mountain is also a scenic part of the estate. The McCormicks are enthusiastic yachtsmen and show keen interest also in swimming, tennis, and riding.

Mr. McCormick is owner of one of the new sailing vessels, known as the international, which was delivered recently from Norway. The only other fleets, except the Northeast Harbor fleet, which have these craft are the Long Island fleet and the Royal Bermuda Yacht club.

Other purchasers of the new international one design class yacht include Edsel Ford, Nelson Rockefeller, Elliot Wadsworth, W. Barton Eddison, Vance McCormick, Harry G. Haskell, Henry G. Brooks, Herman G. Hessenbruck, William F. Cochran, and Phillip Wallis, all well known personalities in yacht racing circles.

Clifford W. Barnes of Lake Forest arrived this week to occupy Cairn-Wood, his summer estate on Peabody drive in Northeast Harbor. With him at Cairn-Wood is his daughter, Lilace Reid Barnes, president of the Chicago Y. W. C. A., and Miss Margaret Duryee of New York, who drove from Chicago together this week. They will spend the summer at Northeast Harbor and will take part in the social life there. Miss Ella Barnes, sister of Mr. Barnes, of Pasadena, Cal., is arriving soon at Cairn-Wood also to spend the season.

Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick of Chicago has as her house guest at Burnmouth on Eden street her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Collier of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Collier were among those entertaining at the first buffet supper of the Bar Harbor club, swimming, tennis, and social rendezvous of the residents of Mount Desert island this week. The Colliers had at their table the Misses Grace and Elinor Collier and James Mitchell Jr. of New York and Antonio Y. Stewart of Philadelphia.

After an absence of one season Mrs. Harold A. Howard of Chicago has returned to Bar Harbor and opened her estate, Mossley Hall, for the summer months. She is being fêted with a number of luncheon and dinner parties by other prominent members of the summer colony. She was a guest at the buffet supper of Mr. and Mrs. William McNair of New York. Also attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart of Washington and Chicago and Mrs. Robert H. McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McGiffert and their daughter, Ellen, of Chicago have arrived at their summer residence in Somesville. Mr. McGiffert recently returned after attending the twenty-fifth anniversary of his class at Harvard. Mr. and Mrs. John Alton Duncan of Alton, Ill., are at Nasturtium Cottage, Seaside Inn, at Seal Harbor for an indefinite stay. Mrs. R. P. Society Gives Attention to Local 'Doings'

By Judith Cass.

The arrival of mid-July finds Chicago society settled down to its annual summer round of country club sports and dances, to which are added currently the concerts at Ravinia park and horse racing at Arlington Park. Of particular interest this week will be the arrival of Price Bertil, son of the crown prince of Sweden, on Thursday. He will be here three days.

Willem Van Hoogstraten, conductor of the New York stadium concerts, will lead the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia park on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon. The Arlington Lassie Stakes on Saturday afternoon will be the featured race of the week, and with $10,000 added to the purse the race should attract not only the swiftest of the two year old fillies, but also large crowds to watch them run.

The Post and Paddock club at the track will be the scene of a luncheon meeting of the Chicago committee of the Arden Shore association tomorrow. The committee is planning a benefit dance Oct. 8 at the Drake.

Another meeting planned for tomorrow will be held by the Garden club of Barrington, for which Mrs. Frank Hecht is opening her home, "The Meadows." Alfred C. Hottes will lecture on "A Garden of Herbs and Simples."

Mrs. Charles W. Wrigley is opening her Wilmette home on Wednesday afternoon for a garden tea and musical for the benefit of the Woman's Symphony orchestra. Marie Morrisey Keith, contralto; Charlotte G. Caldwell, pianist, and Porter Heaps, organist, will give the program.

A postcript to the announcements sent out for Chicago's official celebration of the national French holiday, July 14, Bastille day, next Thursday, paints an alluring picture of the banquet and ball to be held at the Webster hotel as a climax to the day's activities: "The hotel is situated on Lincoln park—the Grand ball room is on the 14th floor—all of the windows open on the park, even on the north side—consequently the temperature there will be agreeable."

René Weiller, consul general of France, will preside at the banquet. This is Chicago's 80th observance of Bastille day.

Chicagoans who will spend their summer vacations in the west during the last two weeks of the month are interested in the Central City Opera house in Central City, Colo., which is opening Thursday for the summer season. Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas," a melodrama of old Spain, is the play to be presented. The play festival will last through July 30. Bramwell Fletcher, Helen Chandler, William Sauter, Percy Waram, and Nance O'Neil are in the cast.

The fire in the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest was the subject of conversation in town and on the north shore during the last week, for the inn has been a part of Lake Forest life for many years. The building that burned Wednesday was only ten years old, but for many years before the new inn was built there was a Deerpath inn.

The old one was a big frame house just east of the tracks in Deerpath, which preserves the name that was given to it years and years ago when it was a hunting trail. The old inn, built in 1870 as a residence by Col. Johnson and occupied by him and his family for a number of years, was on the site of a hunter's cabin.

From the Johnson family the property passed into the hands of Mrs. Mary Patterson, a genial Irishwoman who soon became society's most popular landlady. Just when she acquired the house I do not know, but as far back as about 1900 she and her daughter and son, Miss Kate and Roy Patterson, were running it as a hostelry.

There many of the notables who lived in Lake Forest or who came there for long or for short visits, stayed. The late Mrs. W. K. Nixon spent many summers there; so did Mrs. George W. Meeker and her son and daughter, Lawrence and Margaret Meeker. The latter now is Mrs. James B. Forgan and has a beautiful house in Ahwahnee road in Lake Forest.

The new inn, built in 1928 west of the tracks, was much more pretentious and able to accommodate many more guests than its predecessor. It was the home of many Lake Foresters who had given up or leased their own homes and during horse shows, dog shows, etc., it always was jammed with visitors.

"It's too bad; it made jobs for so many people," said an employé as the fire burned. Many of those whose home it was sat calmly in garden chairs watching the blaze at first, sure that the fire soon would be put out. Soon, however, they started making efforts to rescue their belongings. Several of the occupants had furnished their apartments with what they had kept of the furnishings of their own large houses, and they made especial effort to get those things out of the building, but few of them succeeded.

Miss Jane Laverne Eklund Bride of Peter C. Weinert

The wedding of Miss Jane Laverne Eklund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Eklund of 1818 Summerdale avenue, to Peter C. Weinert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weinert of Harrison, N. Y., took place on June 25 at the First Presbyterian church in Baton Rouge, La. Mr. Weinert and his bride will make their home in Trinidad, B. W. I., for the next six months.

HONEYMOON IN EUROPE

Mrs. Vincent D. Andrus is the former Miss Dorelle Moulton. She was married on June 27. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Moulton of Kenilworth. After a two months' wedding trip to Europe, Mr. Andrus and his bride will live in New York.

Women's Club Leaders Pass Up Vacations

By Betty Browning.

Just because the club calendar has dwindled to a minus quantity, hotel meeting places are deserted and organization minded women, like their more frivolous fellow citizens, are scattering to holiday haunts, let it not be imagined that work has stopped.

For the first flight of leaders on whom devolves the task of keeping the clubs going the summer becomes a round of letters, letters, letters. And the point of this industry? Next year's chairmen must be appointed, with all the conferring that that entails. Next year's program must be planned. Year books announcing the results must go to press.

Most important, summer is hatching time for new plans, new projects. The minority of club members which belongs to business and professional women's organizations makes a particularly industrious showing, for vacations usually are combined with a trip to a convention.

Eastern leaders of Quota International are arriving in Chicago this week-end for a brief visit before taking a special train Tuesday for Banff, Alberta. The organization's annual convention will open there Thursday, to continue through Sunday, with problems of the older business woman as its chief preoccupation.

Miss Emma Menke, president of the Quota club of Chicago, and her fellow members will give a breakfast for the out of town visitors today at the Hotel Sherman. Miss Kathleen Condon and Miss Menke will be Chicago delegates to the convention. Miss Lois Kellogg, another Chicago member, is first vice president of the international organization. Before returning to Chicago Miss Menke will vacation for six weeks on the west coast.

Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar.

From Washington, D. C., comes word that Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has already appointed a number of department, division, and committee chairmen to help take over direction of her vast organization. More than 100 posts must be filled this summer.

Principal appointments made so far include Mrs. F. H. Clausen of Horicon, Wis., as American citizenship chairman; Dr. Josephine L. Peirce of Lima, O., as American home chairman; Mrs. Wiley Morgan of Knoxville, Tenn., as education chairman; Mrs. Carl L. Schrader of Belmont, Mass., as fine arts chairman; Mrs. Frederick Beggs of Wycoff, N. J., as international relations chairman; Mrs. Davis S. Long of Harrisonville, Mo., as chairman of junior club women; Dr. Clara B. Burdette of Pasadena, Cal., as chairman of the committee on history and continuation, and Mrs. H. Gilbert Reynolds of Paducah, Ky., the former Grace Morrison Poole, as extension secretary for international clubs.

To vacationing members of the Illinois League of Women Voters, Mrs. George G. Bogert, league president, is relaying from her summer home near Three Oaks, Mich., the message that it is not too soon to begin preparing for election day. From Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, first vice president, has come a call to local leagues to concentrate on candidates for congress with a view to consolidating recent gains and further extending the merit system and civil service.

A large group sailed last week-end bound for two meetings abroad. First the American delegates go to Edinburgh, Scotland, for the jubilee of the International Council of Women, which opens tomorrow and continues through July 22. New professions for women will be among the matters considered at this conference.

Women's International week in Budapest will bring many of the Americans to Hungary in time for a few days of sightseeing and informal interchange of ideas with outstanding women from other countries before the third congress of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women opens there Aug. 1. This six day meeting will have "Business and Professional Women and the New Social Order" as its theme.

Fencing Classes Meet Under Famed "Dueling Oaks"

Under the gnarled "dueling oaks" in New Orleans where hot-blooded young Creoles once speared each other with rapiers for insults and similar offenses, dueling of a minor sort still goes on.

High school boys and girls feint and lunge at each other almost daily with weapons made comparatively harmless with rubber buttons on their points.

They don't take their fencing so seriously these days, however. When a rain come up, classes are called off.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

ESCORTED TOURS

DETOUR . . .

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

Somebody has said that memory is the greatest of artists. . . . It colors the high moments we capture in life and, as the years roll on, its paintings mellow our dreams of the past. . . . That may not hold true in all phases of activity, but certainly it is true of travel.

This observer returned recently from a cruise all the way down to the southern tip of the southernmost continent. . . . We sailed the seas in a floating white castle, and we saw about everything worth seeing from the West Indies to the antarctic. . . . We found, in South America, lands of almost unbelievable contrasts—civilization and savagery, jungle and desert, ancient monuments and modern skyscrapers. . . . And, now that we're back at the grindstone, it is difficult to believe it was real.

● Nassau, on a brown rock in a sapphire sea; Havana, a new world Paris with Spanish seasoning; Panama, crossroads of the world; Lima, the city of kings; Rio Blanco, high in the Andes; Valparaiso, vale of paradise; Santiago, with its views from Santa Lucia and Cerro San Cristobal; the Strait of Magellan, with its air of unworldliness; rugged and unconquered Tierra del Fuego; Buenos Aires, with its hurrying millions; Montevideo, with its beaches and its internationalism; Sao Paulo and the trip over the "coffee railway"; Rio de Janeiro, finest jewel among the world's cities; Bahia, with its two levels and its weird shopping center alongside our ship; Devil's Island, not viewed by one traveler in ten thousand; Trinidad, with its East Indians and its endless variety of tropical flowers; Martinique, with its Mont Pelee and its dazzling drive over the mountains; Bermuda, with its pink beaches, white coral houses, and turquoise sea—all these were visited with a minimum of discomfort and a maximum of time for sightseeing and recreation. . . . They are no longer mere places on the map. . . . Memories of their quaintness and their beauty will last a lifetime.

● A cruise southward from North America gives the traveler a realization that—as one of them has put it—"South America is no back end of Africa, full of malaria and savages with blowguns, but a vast and diverse continent, with scenery and cities that rival anything the rest of the world has to offer." . . . One of our fellow passengers on this cruise, Judge Sherman D. Callender of Detroit, expressed it in another way at a Masonic luncheon on board ship. . . . "Travel does more than anything else to take the conceit out of us," he said. . . . "Now that I have seen all of the leading countries of South America, I have less conceit about—but not less admiration for—my own country. I am much less sure that we have in North America everything worth while in the western hemisphere."

● Our trip was taken on the Swedish American Line's Gripsholm, a friendly, 18,000 ton motorship designed with the grace of a yacht. . . . In spite of the fact that there were several long stretches between ports of call there was no monotony. . . . That was partly due to the fact that Thorsten Hanson of Chicago was cruise director and Don Robertson of Winnetka was a member of the cruise staf. . . . Most travelers demand excitement, and on this journey they got it in the form of deck sports, contract bridge, swimming, foreign language lessons, movies, concerts, and amateur theatricals. . . . Others, who wished nothing more than to rest and watch the dash of the spray and changing hues of the billows, got just that.

Some travelers choose the superliners; others like the smaller ones. . . . The Gripsholm is not the largest of liners, but, at that, it easily accommodated its 440 passengers in one sitting at deck dinners under the open sky. . . . Furthermore, at every South American port except Punta Arenas its size enabled it to anchor at the dock, thereby doing away with the bothersome service by tenders. . . . At Rio de Janeiro it anchored at the foot of Rio Branco, five blocks from the heart of the business district. . . . At each port the shore excursion was ably handled by Thomas Cook & Son, with offices throughout the continent, and, so far as we could learn, there wasn't a bobble in the whole series of rather difficult undertakings. . . . The entire journey was planned not to see how many miles and places could be accomplished in a given time, but to see how much relaxation there could be in travel.

● Previous cruises in both the old world and the new had given us the idea that this form of travel is pretty close to perfection. . . . Now we are firmly convinced of it. . . . Cruises to nearly all the foreign lands are being operated the year round, with every major steamship line participating. . . . Last winter there were more than ever to and around South America, and next winter even that record probably will be broken.

This is the opinion of a globe-trotting expert, writing in the house organ of one of the leading travel agencies: "The pleasures of cruises, as such, are numerous and well known, but they have one advantage of particular moment in times such as these: they can be sent anywhere and everywhere. Hence, when it seems unwise, for one reason or another, to travel to certain parts of the world, cruise routes are carefully designed to avoid those parts. This is a matter of great concern to the traveling public. People are determined to travel and to travel in greater numbers. It has become apparent that travel is now looked upon much as people look upon a higher education. They are prone to consider both as indispensable in order to live in and understand the complexities of this modern civilization. Travel, then, they will. But where? The experience of the last few years shows conclusively that they will go almost anywhere on a good cruise ship which follows an attractive route. Perhaps the best illustration of this trend is the tremendous increase in cruise travel to South America, to which continent people are going in numbers never dreamed of ten or twelve years ago."

Oriental Sarajevo.

An overnight train from Belgrade, Servia, lands the traveler among the oriental mosques and bazars of Sarajevo. Here daily at noon and at sunset the cry of the muezzin may be heard resounding from the slender minarets. Veiled women pass along the narrow streets and old Moslems hammer brass and copper into souvenirs which tourists bring back to America from the only true bit of the orient to be found in Europe.

Boat Service to Milwaukee Began Eighty Years Ago

Tomorrow will mark the eightieth anniversary of the starting of steamship service between Chicago and Milwaukee.

On July 11, 1858, Capt. A. E. Goodrich, owner of the Goodrich Steamship company, placed the steamship Planet in operation on Lake Michigan. The tiny craft was 110 feet long, weighed 150 tons, had one deck, and was run partly by steam and partly by sail.

These facts were unearthed yesterday by Capt. Edward E. Taylor, owner of the Chicago-Milwaukee Steamship company, successor to the Goodrich line. Capt. Taylor pointed out that, in contrast to the Planet, the steamship Grand Rapids, now operating between the two cities, has a tonnage of more than 3,000, is 326 feet long, and has four decks.

Nauvoo Offers Land for State Historical Park

Illinois is going ahead with the plan to make a state park of Nauvoo, starting point of the Mormon trek westward more than ninety years ago. Robert Kingery, chairman of the state planning commission, said yesterday that several tracts of land have been assembled by the people of that town and are being offered as a nucleus of the proposed park.

"In the Illinois park, parkway, and recreation plan presented to Gov. Horner last March by the national park service and our commission," said Mr. Kingery, "special attention was given to the preservation of the state's rich history. Recognition of this historical background is being given not only by the state itself, but by many local agencies.

"New Salem, the home of Lincoln, has been restored. Fort Chartres, site of the old French fort on the Mississippi river, has been preserved and in some measure restored. The old Cahokia courthouse foundation has been excavated near East St. Louis, and plans are under way to return the building to its original site from its present location in Jackson park, Chicago. The Logan county courthouse, formerly at Mount Pulaski, has been acquired and is being restored and repaired.

"Among the projects now being studied by the state division of parks is the site of Nauvoo, on the Mississippi river, where some important chapters of early Illinois history were written by the Mormons before they left for Utah. The parks division is enlisting the coöperation of local people and organizations in ceding a substantial acreage of land to the state."

Vacationists visiting Banff National park in the Candian Rockies this summer will find 260 miles of motor roads leading to mountain lakes, glaciers, canyons, and rivers. But perhaps of even wider interest to the average holiday maker will be the range of outdoor sports to be found in that playground.

At Banff there is a golf course winding around Mount Rundle and following the course of the Bow river. There are two swimming pools adjacent to the hotel, and tennis, boating, and archery are available. Bridle and foot paths run in every direction.

At Lake Louise—regarded by many travelers as the world's most beautiful body of water—there are hiking, riding, tennis, and swimming. Trails lead to the two sister lakes higher up, and over the Saddleback to Victoria glacier and Paradise valley.

Motoring west from Louise, the visitor comes to the Great Divide, where the water of a tiny stream separates, to flow at last into three different oceans. The Spiral tunnels wind in a figure 8 under two mountains, and nearby is the rocky chasm of the Kicking Horse river. On the left are Mount Cathedral and Mount Stephen.

Snow Peak avenue, a fir bordered road of nine miles, leads to Emerald lake. This lake is of a darker green than Louise, but most tourists deem it to be almost as beautiful.

By-Products of Travel.

A common by-product of a pleasure trip is the satisfaction of seeing some place or object which all one's life one has wanted to see, writes Helen Dean Fish in "Invitation to Travel." "As a child," she says, "I heard a fascinating visitor, just home from England, describe the charm of a little fishing village, with a single cobbled street too steep for wheels, that little burros clambered up and down. I had never heard of it before but from that moment Clovelly became a place I intended to see some day. And when I descended that cobbled street 20 years later, some of my pleasure was in fulfilling a resolve made so long ago."

GOING SOMEWHERE?

Under a new arrangement worked out by the Furness Lines, vacationists will use their ships as hotels during their stay in Bermuda. Starting with the sailings of the Monarch of Bermuda and the Queen of Bermuda next Saturday, the staterooms and dining rooms will be available to the passengers in between the sightseeing programs on shore.

Word received last week by Charles Kozminski, general western passenger agent of the Red Star Line, had it that, on sailings between Sept. 4 and Oct. 2, that company would have an excursion rate of a fare and a half for the round trip to Europe. The excursions will last twenty-eight days, with a departure from New York each Saturday.

James Boring company announced yesterday that it had chartered the Iroquois of the Clyde-Mallory Line for a cruise from New York to New Orleans, via Florida and Cuba, in connection with the National Eucharistic Congress. The ship will sail Oct. 11; the congress is to be held in New Orleans Oct. 17 to 20.

This year's "Old Spanish Days" fiesta at Santa Barbara, Cal., has been set for Aug. 10, 11, 12, and 13. Old-time costumes, customs, and tunes are to be revived in a series of pageants and parades.

W. C. Morrissey of Chicago has originated a plan whereby travel folders and other literature are available to students and teachers. The material is obtained from the various agencies and distributed by the Educational Travel Literature service at 309 West Jackson boulevard.

With an initial sailing next Saturday from New York, the Iroquois of the Clyde-Mallory Lines will make four cruises this summer to Quebec, the Saguenay, the Gaspe peninsula, and Bermuda. Each trip is to last thirteen days.

The huge Seeandbee liner of the Cleveland and Buffalo Transit company was taken over by station WAAF Wednesday and Thursday nights for guest cruises out of Chicago by moonlight. There were 2,000 passengers the first night and a capacity load the second. In each instance an elaborate floor show was given in the course of the four hour journey.

A birthday party, designed to capture some of the color and romance of the coast guard, oldest military service in the United States, will be held in Grand Haven, Mich., Aug. 3 and 4. This is the second event of the kind sponsored by Grand Haven, home port of the cutter Escanaba and headquarters for the tenth district. The coast guard has had a station there for almost 100 years.

"Miss Excelsior Springs."

Twenty-one year old Evelyn Young of Chicago was chosen "Miss Excelsior Springs" in a beauty contest held at the Missouri spa over the Fourth of July week-end. Dr. B. E. Kohler and Herman Rosenthal of this city were members of the judging committee.

Retirement of Capt. R. G. Latta, general manager of the Canadan Pacific steamships, was announced last week by Sir Edward Beatty, chairman. He will be succeeded by Capt. R. N. Stuart, V. C., D. S. O., general superintendent at London. Capt. Latta was the first master of the Empress of Britain and commodore of the Canadian Pacific fleet.

On July 28 the new Mauretania will slide down the ways at Birkenhead, across the river from Liverpool, and on Sept. 27 the Queen Elizabeth, the world's largest ship, is to be launched. The Mauretania will have 36,000 gross tons and the Queen Elizabeth 85,000, giving a combined new tonnage of 121,000.

Under the leadership of W. N. Robb of Chicago a group of travelers will leave from Montreal July 29 on the Canadian Pacific's Duchess of York for a tour of Scotland. Mr. Robb, a native Scot, has made thirty-five Atlantic crossings.

"Sixty Summer Vacations" is the title of a folder published last week by Thomas Cook & Son. Trips of one, two, and three weeks' duration are described.

It is now possible to fly from Chicago to Maracaibo, in the heart of Venezuela, in 24 hours. Pan-American Airways has started its third trans-Caribbean route and its fifth link between the United States and South America. The flight from Miami to Maracaibo requires ten hours.

The Leipzig Trade fair in Germany will hold its 1,980th session from Aug. 28 to Sept. 1, maintaining an unbroken schedule for more than 700 years. It will include 6,000 exhibits of art and industrial products and be attended by 250,000 business men attracted from seventy-four countries, thus making it the largest, as well as the oldest, industrial exchange in the world. Two new exhibition buildings have been added to the forty-two already in use.

"Gayway" is the name chosen for the fun zone of the 1939 Golden Gate International exposition, to be held of San Francisco bay, and the winner of the $1,000 award is Mrs. Amos Grenland, a housewife of Seattle. More than 1,700 persons submitted the name, and a run-off slogan contest, confined to this group, was held. Mrs. Grenland's slogan was: "The Gayest Time Since Forty-nine."

Wisconsin's Fish Planting Passes One Billion Mark

Madison, Wis., July 9.—For the second consecutive year Wisconsin's fish planting program, which aimed at the goal of one billion, already has exceeded that figure, with the season's work only partially completed.

H. W. MacKenzie, state director of conservation, said today that 1,101,114,500 fish of various species had been distributed to lakes and streams throughout Wisconsin by June 10.

It is predicted that the 1938 total will exceed this figure by many millions, in view of the fact that the report is incomplete with respect to muskellunge, trout, perch, and crappies, and does not include final large mouth and small mouth bass, bluegill, and sunfish operation totals, which will not become available until autumn.

Up to June 10 the state had hatched and distributed 17,437,112 muskellunge fry. In addition, several thousand young muskies are being held in rearing ponds for distribution as large fingerlings in the autumn.

In point of numbers of fish planted, wall eyed pike led the list, with 809,800,867. Another species to exceed the 100 million mark was the perch. Its total was 213,467,520.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

TRAVEL IN JAPAN.

Dwight, Ill., July 6.—To the Travel Editor: The most interesting country, and one of the cheapest in which to live, is Japan. The people there are cultured, refined, polite, and clean. Nearly every one is honest. You will never be overcharged, short changed, or gypped.

You can go there from San Francisco as cheaply as from New York to Europe. Third class fare on the ship I took was $95. Third class is nice enough for any one. The food is excellent, the cabins comfortable, and you have a lounge, writing and card bar, swimming pool privileges, ping-pong and deck games, movies twice a week, and dancing at night. Your fellow passengers will be artists, writers, students, professors, and tourists.

Tokio is where you should spend most of your time. Just to give you an idea of prices there: Taxi fare up to three miles, 9 cents, three to seven miles, 15 cents; bicycles, new and fully equipped, $8 rates at the Imperial, one of the finest hotels in the world, $1.80 a day; meals in the best restaurants, not more than 21 or 22 cents; talkies in English, 9 cents; movies with stage show, 15 cents; street car fare, including transfer, 2 cents; subway, 1 to 3 cents, according to station; cigarets, equal in quality to American brands, twenty for 3½ cents; a furnished apartment with automatic elevator, radio, telephone, shower, and tub, $17 a month.

Tooth brushes are so cheap you use a new one every time you brush your teeth, and matches are given away free by most places of business. With an income of $50 a month, American money, you are wealthy and can afford almost everything. Japan is the only country in the world where you really benefit by the exchange.

If any of your readers would like information on other places I have visited, such as France, Italy, Virgin Islands, Porto Rico, Mexico, or Tahiti, please ask them to inclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. I will be in the hospital for some time and I enjoy answering letters. Address Veterans' hospital, Dwight. BRENT ALFORD.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Kansas City, Mo., June 25.—To the Travel Editor: Please add the name of Miss Reba Mitchell, Mount Carmel hospital, Pittsburg, Kas., to the list to receive mail from travelers. Infantile paralysis has caused this young woman to be confined to the hospital for the last two years, and she probably will be there for some years to come. The future does not look very bright for her; so any mail your readers send her will be gratefully received. Her condition will not permit her to reply, but it would cheer her so much to receive cards, letters, and travel folders. L. M. M.

Delavan, Wis., June 21.—To the Travel Editor: Will you please put the name of Jacob Lusinger, De Pue, Ill., on your list? He is 94 years old and a civil war veteran—the last in his county and the last in his post. Keen of mind and eyesight; a grand old man. Glarus, Switzerland, was his birthplace. He would appreciate cards from travelers. Any one JULIA BARLOW.

Nomad School Made of Poles and Moss Sod

By Mason Warner.

ABISKO, Lapland, Sweden.—[Special.]—There were nineteen tourists on board the commodious motorboat Abisko [Capt. S. R. Winstrom] when we started from this town for Laimolahti, a Lapp summer camp thirty miles away, at the eastern end of Torne Trask.

Twelve families make their summer home in Laimolahti. It is one of the largest nomadic Lapp camps north of the Arctic circle, but at a distance from the shore Laimolahti did not look as if it contained as many huts as Palnoviken, which is only half as large. Only three or four huts could be discerned as the boat made its way to the landing. The camp is situated on the edge of vast tundras—marshy plains with morasses spotted with pushed-up-hummocks of moss and small ferns.

The pilot cautiously steered through a narrow channel between submerged rocks. There was nothing that resembled a pier or a wharf, but the boat nosed to within a few feet of the rocky beach, where it was moored, the gangplank placed, and the passengers disembarked.

Laimolahti's entire population was gathered on the shore to greet us—at least thirty or forty men, women, and children; all except the servants, away in the mountains with the feeding reindeer herds. It was the first time the Abisko had called at Laimolahti for more than two weeks.

The natives formed a picturesque, lively throng surrounding the visitors. The men's caps, with waving red pompons; the women's gay bonnets, the decorated blue coats, blouses and trousers, vari-colored braided yarn puttees, red belts and other bits of bright color, rapidly moving in and out, might cause one to think he had just stepped back stage during the production of a handsomely costumed light opera and was mingling with the chorus.

Any such fleeting impression was banished by the sight of the snow-topped mountains beyond the tundras. The scene was in the polar region, far north of the Arctic circle, but it was summertime in Lapland and the tourists were carrying their topcoats on their arms.

Cameras were unslung. The Lapp women rushed to get out of range. The men registered displeasure—not anger. Some of the older children, sophisticated by contact with other strangers, were not so reluctant to be photographed. One of the travelers, the wife of a Princeton university professor, had brought along a box of chocolates, and she distributed the confection to good advantage among the children.

The young gentlemen doffed their tasseled caps and bowed as they took a piece; the young ladies curtsied in a charming manner. None was forward. None looked longingly at the sweets. Indeed, no; they were not interested, did not see the box; they looked the other way—until the chocolates were proffered directly to them and they were invited to partake. It was an impressive example of the training given in the nomadic schools.

After the chocolate had been passed and each youngster had received his or her share, the professor's wife obtained two or three snapshots. She was entitled to reward for her resourcefulness and none of the other tourists endeavored to take advantage of her standing with the children—much to the relief of the watchful and silently objecting fathers and mothers.

I joined a trio going to visit a nomad school hut, a mile and a half from the boat landing. Laimolahti's twelve huts are far apart, scattered a distance of three miles along the lake shore and three miles inland. The school was in the center of the camp. In front of it was a flagpole from which flew the flag of the kingdom of Sweden.

The school was like all other Lapp huts, only a bit larger. The walls were of birch poles, leaning inward from the ground to meet at the rim of the overhead smoke exit. The outside of the birchpole framework was veneered with a twelve inch wall of moss sod, cut in squares and laid in tiers from ground to smokehole.

The school was deserted; the teacher and children had gone down to the boat. The door was open; so we went inside. There were no windows. The interior was a circular room about 18 feet in diameter on the ground, with that measurement diminishing rapidly as the walls inclined inward.

Two slender birch logs were placed on the floor, about four feet apart, leading from the door to the fire. This might be termed the hall of the school. It resembled a cinder path. The floor, except that space between the logs, was covered with small branches of birch, two or three inches deep.

One-half of the hut was the teacher's dwelling. There was no partition, not even a curtain. Her bed was there, cushioned with birch branches, piled a few inches higher than the regular level to afford a comfortable sleeping space. The bedding was not on the bed. The bolster and the reindeer skin furs were hanging out to be aired on a birchpole rack at the rear of the school.

At the head of the teacher's bed were two shelves, upon which, neatly arranged, were kettles, pots, pans, dishes—not a large assortment of kitchen utensils and dining room furnishings. There was not a chair, tables, or desk in the combined school and living quarters. The nomad Swedish school teachers deserve a special story and it will be written later.

On the student's side of the room was a small blackboard, a row of about twenty thin textbooks, an aquarium, a meteorological chart, finely detailed; maps of the reindeer grazing grounds in Sweden and Norway, and a limited supply of cardboard squares, such as used in kindergarten work.

The aquarium was an ordinary goldfish bowl, containing tadpoles, frogs, worms, and other specimens of native water life, but no fish. On the meteorological chart the students had recorded daily the state of the weather, temperature, rainfall, and direction and velocity of the wind. From the simple but practical equipment of the school, one would infer that Lapp children received useful if not ornamental education.

European Travel Goes Into High for the Summer

Travel to Europe has gone into high gear, thereby contradicting last spring's forecasts that it might not get beyond the second gear stage this summer.

Between June 29 and July 3 five ships of the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd took out 5,125 passengers. The Bremen alone carried 1,870. Other trans-Atlantic steamship companies reported similar business.

"Our four leading ships are booked to capacity throughout August, with indications of a sell-out in September and early fall," George C. Gaede, passenger trafic manager of the American Exports Lines, said yesterday. "Our company is ignoring superficial factors while it increases salaries, adds to its staf, and goes ahead with its program of building ten new ships."

"Much of the recent travel movement is due to increasing confidence in continued peace in Europe," said Harold P. Borer, general pasenger manager of the Cunard-White Star Line. "Our company has been insisting for months that this year the European countries are outdoing themselves in their hospitality to visitors from America. We have found it necessary to expand our summer cruise program and run it well into the autumn."

Kindly let me have a brief description of New Brunswick as a place for a summer vacation.—F. A. H.

New Brunswick, largest of Canada's maritime provinces, has splendid hotels, rustic resorts, wild country, sleepy farmland, a picturesque seashore, and facilities for all kinds of outdoor sports. Although it has been settled for at least 300 years, three-quarters of its area still remains unspoiled. It is easily reached by rail and bus from Chicago.

Just what is the significance of the use of the carp of the Boys' festival held annually in Tokio?—F. N.

The carp is the Japanese youths' symbol for audacity and the manly virtues. Its boldness is seen when it leaps a waterfall, an act often portrayed by artists. Its unflinching resignation in the face of death is observed when it is laid on the carving board and touched with the flat of the knife; it stops wriggling. In every house where there is a boy the parents attach at the end of a long pole in the garden or to the roof of the house a balloonlike carp made of cotton or silk, and black, yellow, or red in color. The wind fills this out, making it swim in the air. One carp is hoisted for each son: a large one, perhaps 15 feet or more in length, for the eldest; others smaller, and a tiny one if there is a baby boy in the family. This custom began more than 250 years ago and is repeated at the boys' festival each May. It originated as an expression of rivalry on the part of the common folk against the armed classes who used to display outside their dwellings war streamers, lances, long handled scimitars, and other arms. The burghers, who could make no show of arms but were none the less concerned for the welfare of their male children, are said to have hit upon the idea of hoisting paper carp which, if not exactly awe inspiring, could be made in any dimensions and therefore be more imposing than anything in the samurai's armory.

Kindly give me a brief description of the Buddhist Feast of the Dead in Japan.—C. K. McN.

The Feast of the Dead, or O-Bon, will be celebrated throughout Japan this year on July 13, 14, and 15. On those days the souls of the dead will return to the homes they once knew, and live and feast with the ones they left behind. The O-Bon has its own rites, many of which are picturesque, and all of which are comforting to the heart. Signal fires are lighted in front of the gateway to guide the spirits back, and lanterns are hung in the graveyards. As the festival ends, lantern-laden boats are set adrift upon the waters.

Noted Gallery Gets New Work by J. T. Johnson

By Eleanor Jewett.

One of the most interesting permanent public art collections in Chicago is that housed in the Vanderpoel gallery, Beverly Hills. Mr. Vanderpoel, for whom it is named, was one of Chicago's earliest prominent painters. At his death this gallery was established in his memory. The paintings it contains are gifts of the artists and the entire collection is outstanding for its beauty and interest.

Sometimes, in fact often, a painter grows with the practice of his craft and later pictures by him are finer than his earlier work. Something like this was true in the case of J. Theodore Johnson, one of whose paintings, "Central Europe," was owned by the Vanderpoel Memorial gallery. In 1927 Mr. Johnson was one of the most prominent of the younger men the Art institute was backing. He fulfilled various promises made for him by turning out many unique portraits and attractive studies of young women. This "Central Europe," a landscape, suffered by comparison. The matter was recently brought to Mr. Johnson's attention and he saw the point immediately with the result that he has given to the gallery "Music and Mood," a brilliant painting which will represent him as he should be represented.

Above the younger woman's head there is a shimmering crystal-green glass bowl, two-thirds full of water, in which a brilliantly red goldfish is seen. The background of the canvas is a soft greenish-brown lit by the bright spot of red in the bowl. At the left of the picture, almost out of it, is a dark brown flower pot. It rests on a stand very light in color. A rubber plant of vivid green rises from the pot carrying the color note through the top of the canvas against a background of brown. The rhythmic use of browns and greens by the artist gives the painting its value, that and the admirable composition.

The Chicago Art institute has at present three traveling exhibitions touring the United States. The International Water Color exhibit is made up of 160 entries. It closed in Minneapolis today and from there will go on to St. Louis, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, and Urbana, Ill.

The Florence Dibell Bartlett exhibition of Guatemalan costumes and textiles is now at Columbus, O., and will go on to Janesville and Toledo.

The 6th Annual Lithograph and Wood Engraving exhibit has been at Andover, Mass., and will be seen in Milwaukee, Rochester, New York, and Toledo before coming back to the Art institute.

One of the interesting societies identified with the Art institute, with its headquarters in Hutchinson Wing [a place, by the way, filled with the most fascinating variety of art objects, from tapestries to tiny jade gods] is the Needlework and Textile Guild. It was organized in 1927 as a society of the institute. The objects of the guild are to stimulate interest in needlecraft and enable amateurs to produce embroidery of a high standard of workmanship. One would not imagine that a little known society, such as this guild, would carry more wools than any other organization in the country—that it has in stock 30,000 skeins of silk, 500 yards of canvas, and 500 yards of linens, beside a large stock of needles, frames, etc. Its growth is indicated by the number of designers it now employs. Formerly there was but one, working two afternoons a week; today it has five designers and one instructor from the Royal School of Needlework, London. Its present membership is about 300 women who live in all parts of the United States and abroad. Among the members are the wife of the Argentine ambassador to the United States, and the wife of the lieutenant-governor of Canada.

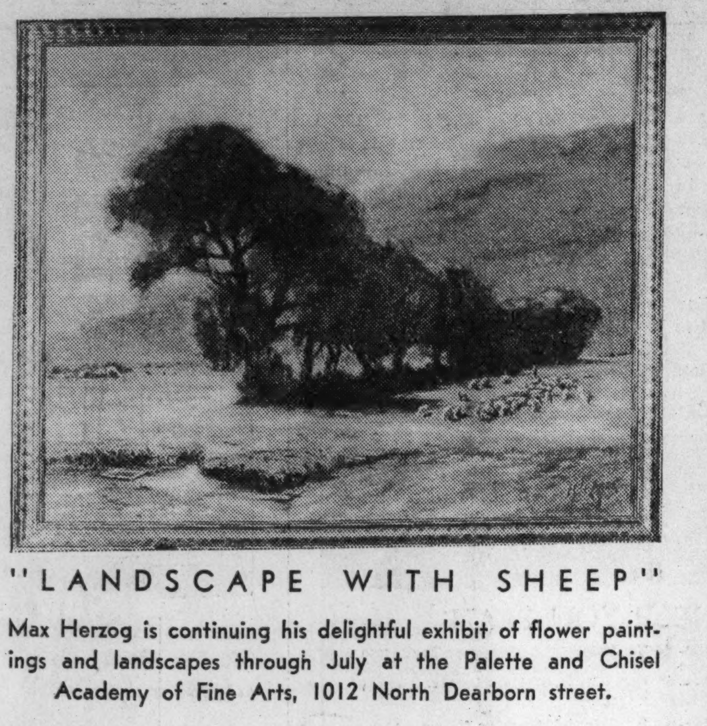
The Chicago Society of Artists, whose membership of about 100 painters includes most of the modern contingent in the city, has elected Beatrice Levy as president for the current year. Todros Geller is vice president; Elise Donaldson, secretary; Andrene Kauffman, assistant secretary; Ethel Spears, treasurer. On the board of directors are Kathleen Blackshear, Edgar Britton, Julio de Diego, Carl Hoeckner, Clara MacGowan, Peterpaul Ott, John F. Stenvall, Morris Topchevsky, and Joseph Vavak.

In addition to its regular exhibition of oil paintings planned for the coming season, the society will hold a pre-Christmas show of small works and will publish a block print calendar for 1939.

Exhibit of American Art to Go on Tour in Europe

An exhibition of American industrial arts and crafts, sponsored by the Philadelphia Commercial museum, will be shown in Scandinavian and other European cities this summer. The exhibit includes products from forty firms, and was assembled under the direction of Edgar S. McKaig, president of the museum's board of trustees.



"LANDSCAPE WITH SHEEP"

Variety Marks Diversions at Beverly, Mass.

For Chicagoans on the north shore, there is an alluring variety to the diversions. This week they included the Massachusetts Open Golf championship at the Essex County club in Manchester, the tennis tournament at the Myopia Hunt club in Hamilton, a polo match at Myopia, and yacht races at Marblehead, Manchester, Beverly, and Gloucester. There were movies and dancing Thursday night at the Essex County club, an entertainment at the village hall in Annisquam the same night, and an animated cross word puzzle and fashion show at the Magnolia casino last night.

The little theater is as popular as ever on the north shore. The Gloucester School of the Theater opened its season Friday evening presenting "Bill of Divorcement" at the Rocky Hill playhouse. The Marblehead players opened last night with the presentation of "Tovarich." Sunday night there is to be an illustrated interpretation of yacht racing rules at the Annisquam Yacht club. Model yachts will be used.

Next Friday night a moonlight dance is to be given at the Essex County club to benefit the north shore branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. In the Myopia district the Christ church fair on Wednesday will offer many novel attractions. The Cape Ann Garden clubs will have their first flower show of the season on Wednesday and Thursday in Gloucester city hall.

Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, the crown princess and his 26 year old son Prince Bertil are scheduled to be on the north shore tomorrow as guests of Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago, for ten years America's minister to Sweden, and Mrs. Morris at Eagle Head, their Manchester summer home.

Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett of Chicago, whose summer home, White Hall, at Beverly Cove, is noted for its charm, is one of the smartest dressers on the shore. At a recent north shore function, Mrs. Bartlett wore a natural linen dress, with full skirt and long full sleeves, and a very wide red belt studded with brass and nickel horseshoes, whips, and stirrups. Her hat was a coolie shaped affair of natural straw and was tied under her chin with a navy grosgrain ribbon. Her linen gloves were of red matching her belt.

Arthur Morse Jones Jr. has returned to his home in Chicago after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Jones, at their summer home, Willowbank, in Magnolia. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Jones have come to the north shore from Honolulu where they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Restarick Withington.

Mrs. William Kennard Kenley of Chicago has arrived at "Hyghe Contente," her West Manchester summer home, for the summer.

Airplanes are as common on the north shore as automobiles were 35 years ago and many of the colonists have their own craft. An airport at North Beverly is large enough for several of the largest to land at once. It is on good motor roads and less than thirty minutes from the tip end of Cape Ann. Thomas Leiter of Chicago, who summers at Beverly Farms, has one of the finest planes, an amphibian, which can come down in water opposite Edgewater Mansion house and taxi up the beach to the Leiter lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Groverman Ellis of Chicago are at Kellybracken, their estate out on Eastern Point, Gloucester. The Ellis family has been coming to the north shore for many years.

Miss Margaret E. Enders of Chicago is with Mrs. William H. Moore of New York and Chicago for a stay at her lovely Rockmarge estate at Prides Crossing. Miss Enders winters in Florence, Italy, and during her stay here has been much fêted. One of the largest affairs for her was a dinner party given by Mrs. Walter D. Denegre of Washington at Villa Crest, her Manchester summer home.

Mrs. William A. Robinson [Florence Crane], daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane of Chicago, has recovered from injuries received in an auto accident in the ship building town of Essex, which adjoins Ipswich, where the Robinsons summer.

Miss Evelyn Lilly, daughter of Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett of Chicago and Beverly Cove, was one of the bridesmaids yesterday at the wedding of Miss Eleanor Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge of Manchester, and Frederick Burnham Chapman of New York. The wedding took place at St. John's Episcopal church, Beverly Farms.

Buffet Supper Week's Event in Door County

in the Garden, the Door county home of the Peninsula Players. "At Mrs. Beam's" will be presented Thursday evening, the opening night.

About 150 summer and local residents have been invited to a buffet supper at the Garden theater tonight to give them an opportunity to meet the members of the cast and production staf as well as the brilliant young director, Richard Wylie Fisher, who spends the winter months studying at the University of Chicago. Again this summer one of his original plays will be produced. Another play on their schedule which is expected to prove exceptionally interesting is "Twelfth Night," which will star Caroline Fisher Rathbone, a co-director of last season, and will be directed by Constance Collier, both of whom will come from Hollywood for this feature presentation.

Miss Janet Matter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Matter of Winnetka and Ephraim, has joined the production staf of the players for the season. She has just completed her junior year at Wellesley, where she made theatrical scenery effects a part of her curriculum.

Even those who have not counted yachting among their major interests were thrilled last week-end while witnessing the impressive appearance made by the score or more of sailing yachts anchored or cruising about in picturesque protected Eagle harbor under ideal weather conditions. Among the larger power yachts were the Seaforth of Milwaukee, with Herman Falk and his nephew aboard, and the Who of Chicago, with Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis and their guest, Mrs. Swigart Burrows, aboard. The Seaforth was returning to its home port after a fishing trip in Lake Superior waters and the Curtis yacht has been cruising in Green Bay and Lake Michigan waters.

The fast sloop Jibugee, owned and sailed by Dr. C. H. Bourne of Marinette, not only led the field in the first leg of the Escanaba-Ephraim-Marinette sailing race in spite of a late start, but also placed first in both events in the local harbor on the Fourth. Second place in the triangular race was won by the Oslo, formerly owned by the crown prince of Norway, but now a prized possession of John Mitchell of Escanaba.

The Vivi II., which placed fourth in the first leg, was sailed out of Eagle harbor Wednesday morning on the second leg by Malcolm Vail Jr., Roger Sherman Vail, both of Highland Park; J. Marshall Rogers Jr. of Evanston, and James Worrall of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Rogers are now in Ephraim for the balance of the season after making frequent trips north since early spring to supervise the remodeling of the home they bought here last fall. Mrs. Morris K. Nicholson of Cleveland Heights, O., is expected to arrive tomorrow to visit Mrs. Rogers.

Most of the cottage owners in the village entertained house guests over the long holiday week-end. Mrs. William Trout and her daughters of Northbrook were with Mrs. Warren T. Davis and her sons, Robert and Warren Jr., during a part of last week. Mr. Davis and his mother, Mrs. R. C. Davis, joined them Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Hicks of Winnetka entertained their week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Jones of Racine, by taking advantage of perfect boating conditions and spending one day at Washington Island and another at Chambers Island. Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Tourtelot, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Hunter Lindsay of Evanston were week-end guests at the Anderson hotel on one of their frequent trips to the county.

Mrs. James A. Field and her niece, Miss Mary Paul Welling, were in the village last week to prepare the Field summer home for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Robbins and their family of Chicago, who are occupying it during the month of July.

The Fish Creek Thorp colony of Chicagoans has grown rapidly during the last two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Waller of Winnetka, with their daughter, Nancy, and their son, Harold Jr., arrived recently and had Miss Christine Baumann of Winnetka as their week-end guest.

Marvin Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Harris with their daughter, Ann, of River Forest, and Miss Gladys Anderson of Chicago motored up to spend the Fourth with Mrs. May Harris and her grandson, William Harris Jr., who are in Fish Creek for the summer.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Dear Julia: I have written you before of the game dinners given by John B. Drake. They began when he was proprietor of the old Tremont house, and he has continued them at the Grand Pacific hotel, of which he is now head. Such an institution they are now that we old residents wouldn't like to miss one, so Will and I went last evening and found the great banqueting hall of the famous hotel ablaze with electric lights and redolent with the perfume of roses, which, added to the garlands of evergreens and smilax, formed a bower of beauty.

Perched above the greenery, their wings outspread, were stuffed birds and fowl of every sort. From forest and prairie these wild things had come . . . ruffed grouse, redwinged blackbirds, quail, redhead ducks, yellow throated larks, plovers and reed birds. Then, to complete the picture, red and gray squirrels were placed in the forked branches of garlanded trees, while the beady eyes of 'coons flashed the reflection of the incandescent bulbs all about. It really seemed as if we were in the forest.

Jolly Sam Parker and cheery John Drake hurried forward to meet us. Mr. Drake is the personification of the welcoming host of yesterday.

"We've come to taste your dinner once more," said Will.

"You'll be disappointed in just one thing," answered Mr. Drake. "We couldn't get any buffalo meat. Of course, we could have bought a tame . . . a captured . . . buffalo, but that would'nt have been in the tradition of the old game dinners. Wouldn't have been fitting." And as we turned to greet Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Leiter and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Blair, who had come in just behind us, we agreed that it was better to dispense with the bison, since it has disappeared from the plains of America.

However, there was enough other game to make up for the lack of buffalo meat. The Black Hills furnished black bear, antelope and deer. From the Rockies came mountain sheep; from the Maine woods, elk; from the south, 'possom and 'coon. [I can't bring myself to write of eating O-possum and Rac-coon. It must be 'possum and 'coon.]

I am told there were more than 400 people present at the dinner . . . lawyers, doctors, judges, merchants, packers, musicians, insurance men . . . it was a cross section of the well-to-do citizens of Chicago. But there were no speeches. Mr. Drake says when people come to his game dinners they want to discuss the dinner, and he is right. There is enough to talk about in the menu.

I won't weary you by setting down each item put before us, but I want to list some game in every section of the long list.

MENU (Partial)

No more for this evening.

Love to my dear Julia from MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

The Rev. William J. Ohan, minister of the Bethany Presbyterian church, 1847 Humboldt boulevard, writes:

"Thanks for today's 'When Chicago Was Young' letter, which brought memories of my college days. I entered the Syrian Protestant college in 1899, when Dr. Daniel Bliss was president. A year later his son, Dr. Howard S. Bliss, was graduated. My class [1903] was the first to be graduated during the presidency of the younger man. The description of him given in the first part of the letter [of Martha Esmond] is a perfect characterization of the man."

Virgil E. Foster, assistant minister of Pilgrim Congregational church, St. Louis, writes:

"The letter concerning the Blatchford and Bliss families in 'When Chicago Was Young' is of great interest to me. An additional item . . . concerns a son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard S. Bliss, who taught in Beirut, Syria, before his marriage, and has been on the staf of St. Louis Country Day school for several years. He recently has been appointed head of the English department of the American college at Sofia, Bulgaria, and will take up his duties in the autumn. . . . The youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Bliss bears the name Alice Blatchford."

Victory Shop's Annual Sale to Be Tuesday

The garden room overlooking a terrace and ravine at Mr. and Mrs. Morton G. Schamberg's home in Highland Park will be the setting for the annual north shore sale of the Victory workshop from 10 to 5 o'clock Tuesday. The white Georgian house, less than a year old, is interesting for its combination of the classic and the modern in decoration.

No high school or vocational training was available to deaf and hard of hearing boys and girls five years ago when Mrs. M. Clarence Goldman founded the Victory workshop. With the coöperation of the Chicago Woman's aid, the National Council of Jewish Women, and Johanna No. 9 United Order of True Sisters, Mrs. Goldman interested the board of education in providing rooms at the Haven school, 1472 South Wabash avenue. A teacher was supplied by the Works Progress administration, and the young people were taught sewing, cabinet making, and other trades by which they might make a living. A number of students have found work with the help of this training.

Besides paying for the materials used by its students, the Victory workshop supplies them with carfare, and milk at noon and helps them to dispose of their handiwork through sales. The three organizations that founded the shop contribute to its support.

The Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women is interrupting the summer recess to prepare for a drive for 1,000 new members. On Tuesday afternoons throughout July the committee directing the drive will attend instruction periods conducted by national and local leaders.

◆

Today the Lechem Loaniem Ladies' Aid society will give its annual picnic at Elm Tree grove, 6541 Irving Park boulevard. Proceeds go to the organization's philanthropies. Mrs. Ella Rosen is chairman of the event, Mrs. Anna Harris is president.

◆

Mrs. Harry J. Myerson, national director and immediate past president of the council, will direct the campaign, which is to bring the membership to almost double its present total of 1,500. Mrs. William H. Sahud is vice chairman and Mrs. Joseph G. Slottow, secretary. Mrs. Morton Hoffman and Mrs. Joseph Einhorn Jr. are co-chairmen for the south side; Mrs. Max L. Loewenberg, chairman of Lakeview; Mrs. Harry Salk, chairman of Albany Park; Mrs. Edward Weinstein and Mrs. Herman Silvertrust, co-chairmen of Ravenswood and West Rogers Park, and Mrs. Wilford Newman, chairman of the north shore.

Art Notes

One of our well known older painters, who has recently returned from many successful years abroad, is Fred Oswald. Mr. Oswald has taken a studio on the tenth floor of the Fine Arts building. He is perhaps best known in water color, a medium that he handles in a brilliant fashion.

◆

Four delightful new etchings in color by Leon Pescheret are to be seen in the O'Brien gallery, 820 North Michigan avenue. The most intriguing is "Winter." "Spanish Tocca, Arizona," "Coachwhip, Arizona Desert," and "Palm Springs, California," are attractive.

"The Roll Call of the Last Victims of the Reign of Terror," a painting by Louis Mueller (1815-'92) of a scene in the Conciergerie prison, Paris, in 1793. The painting now is in possession of Rosary college, River Forest, Ill. It was placed at the college by Thomas A. Cusack III. Formerly it hung in the museum Luxembourg in Paris.

In the Shadow of the Guillotine

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

THROUGH the terribly hot days of July, 1794, the high-born inmates who were waiting for death in the prison of the College du Plessis in Paris strove as best they might to comfort each other. Hope had deserted them. The Terror was at its height. Each day a batch of twenty prisoners, whose crime was that they were aristocrats, were sent to the guillotine by order of the spidery Robespierre.

● Most of the information that seeped in to them was of a tragic nature and was received and passed about in stoic calm. But there were times when nerves broke. The Duchesse de Duras, whose husband had been beheaded, wept as she told a frail, beautiful woman who passed her days and nights in prayer that the Vicomtesse de Noailles, the Duchesse d'Ayen, and the Marechale de Noailles had been executed.

● "God have pity on me!" cried the poor prisoner.

● She was the sister of the vicomtesse, the daughter of the duchesse, the granddaughter of the old marechale. Her maiden name had been Adrienne de Noailles. She was the wife of Gilbert Motier, Marquis de Lafayette, hero of the American revolution. No name was more execrated then, in the councils of the bloodthirsty revolutionaries who ruled Paris, than his.

America Saves the Life of a Friend

● Had it not been for the unceasing efforts, the threats, and the pleas of the American republic, the Marquise de Lafayette probably would have lost her head, too. It was, indeed, forfeit. She was marked for death not only because she was noble but because she never wavered in her support of her husband's policies.

● The Noailles at the end of the reign of Louis XV. were the greatest family in France. Yet it was not regarded as an unequal match when Adrienne was betrothed to the gangling, red-haired young Lafayette. Like his ancestors, he had adopted a military career. The dauphin, later Louis XVI., looked with favor on him; he and the Comte d'Artois, younger brother of Louis, attended the same riding school.

● Moreover, Lafayette was rich. In 1772, at

JOE LOUIS successfully defended his heavyweight championship by tearing down Max Schmeling in two minutes. Ralph Guldahl successfully defended his United States open championship and then carried on by winning the Western open to perpetuate his hold on that trophy. It seems to be a good year for defending champions, and that is probably of interest to Spencer Tracy, who this year must defend his position as the Academy award winner of 1937.

Tracy started out almost as fast as Joe Louis in the first round with his performance in "Test Pilot." The Milwaukee winner of the Academy award looked every inch a champion in that film, and if he failed to do anything else this season that characterization as the mechanic would have to be considered in any 1938 balloting. He follows it up almost immediately with another forceful rôle, that of the priest in "Boy's Town," and if you will recall the priest he brought to the screen in "San Francisco" you can rest assured that this next rôle, now in process of creation, will add new luster to his standard.

It is a Tracy twenty pounds lighter whom you will see in his other films this year. The minor operation he underwent either persuaded him to thin out or gave him the opportunity to do some concentrated dieting. The twenty-pound slimming should be tremendously effective. His eyes are brighter, and he shed five years in shedding the avoirdupois. Girls will like this new edition of Tracy, and it will be interesting to hear their comments when they see him in this next production.

M-G-M is awaiting the picture eagerly for this reason. In "Captains Courageous" Tracy won the Academy award, and his effectiveness was heightened by working with Freddie Bartholomew. In "Boy's Town" Tracy will be working with young Mickey Rooney, and these two should team sensationally.

As champion Tracy is still the same easy-going chap that Hollywood has known in the past. In one respect he hasn't changed. He still dreads each new script handed to him, because Tracy, like most actors, can't tell a good script when he reads it. He is always doleful while a picture is being made, convinced that the story is bad and that his performance is frightful.

Probably as champion his fears on this score have been heightened, but you need have no fear that he will tighten up or become tense under the strain. He still works as easily as ever, underplaying scenes that other actors would overplay, refusing to wear makeup, insisting on smoking the pipe that is as typical of him as the wrinkles in his forehead.

You can bet that he won't be far away when the Academy judges start voting on the 1938 champion.

The film future of dark, exotic Merle Oberon is not quite clear at the moment. After a spectacular success in "These Three," Merle drifted off to London and has just recently returned. Hollywood is agreed that if she would stay on this side of the pond and concentrate on her American career Miss Oberon would carve out a great name for herself. This, however, is not practical, as she is involved in a five-year deal that calls for her alternately to make two pictures for Sam Goldwyn and then two pictures for Alexander Korda in England.

At the moment the Oberon lass is before the cameras for Goldwyn in "The Lady and the Cowboy," in which she is playing opposite Gary Cooper. At the conclusion of that picture this month she'll make "Wuthering Heights" for Goldwyn.

Her deal with Korda is completely understandable. It was Korda who took her out of the extra ranks and made her a star. At the time she was working for Paramount in London, at the British-Dominion studios, for $10 a day. Korda gave her the lead in "Wedding Rehearsal" opposite Roland Young. It was in Korda's "The Private Life of Henry VIII." that her unusual beauty attracted international raves.

Her full name is Estelle Merle O'Brien Thompson, and she was born on the island of Tasmania. Her father died three months before she was born. She worked as a hostess at the Café de Paris in London and then drifted into extra work at the Gaumont studios. It was there that Korda saw her and started her on the high road to stardom.

Nelson Eddy was born in Providence, R. I. His earliest ambition was to be a trap drummer or a doctor, but he compromised by starting as a telephone operator in the Mott iron works. Then he became an advertising salesman on the Philadelphia Press and in between times learned to sing from phonograph records.

Eddy, now a star at M-G-M, made his first appearance in Joan Crawford's "Dancing Lady" in 1933. It was to be an important incubator of stars, that picture, because it was in the same film that Fred Astaire made his first bow. However, Astaire was luckier than Eddy, because Fred had an RKO contract and went to work immediately.

"I kept waiting for something to happen, but nothing did," he said. "At first I wanted to knock on the doors of the executives and demand to know why I had been sidetracked. They weren't making musical pictures, of course, but was that any reason I couldn't do a job of acting?

"One night I sat down and took stock of myself. And the solution to my problem dawned upon me. Why not talk to Louis B. Mayer? I could tell him I simply wasn't ready to be a motion picture actor! I could sing, certainly, but I had to admit what I knew about acting was very little.

"When I finally went to see Mr. Mayer I pleaded with him to allow me to break my contract. But he refused flatly. And instead of letting me go he gave me some of the best advice I had ever received about pictures in general. After my talk with him I was greatly encouraged, and I left his office with the assurance that I'd have my big chance when the right picture came along.

"The next day, acting on Mayer's advice, I engaged a dramatic coach and began to study the technique of acting for the screen. That same day I discovered how little I really knew, and I've been studying ever since."

From the day of his talk with Mr. Mayer, Nelson Eddy refused to be "forgotten." He was permitted to go on a concert tour. Returning, he sang a musical number in "Student Tour." From the moment that picture was previewed people started to talk about Nelson Eddy. Still month after month elapsed after the picture was released and he remained idle. Eddy again became discouraged. Again he went to Mayer.

"I'm not wanted in this business," he said. "Please let me go."

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Recently I saw "Her Jungle Love" and "Mad About Music." They were both grand, but I have a complaint about "Her Jungle Love." It was too much like "The Jungle Princess." The plot, the beginning, and the ending were almost identical. Also I think we ought to see more of Ray Milland—he's a grand actor, and his personal appearance is as attractive as that of other more prominent actors. Please print a little picture of him and a short biography. Thank you.

RAY MILLAND
Ought to see more of him, says fan.

Think you also have such a nice column.

GENEVIEVE MARCLUSE.

Editor's note: A lot of folks think as you do about Mr. Milland. Here are the picture and biography you request. Glad you like the column.

Mr. Milland's real name is Jack Milland. He was born in Drogheda, Ireland, Jan. 3, 1905. He's 6 feet 1 inch tall and has black hair and brown eyes. He appeared on the stage before entering motion pictures. He's married.

Dear Mae Tinée: Referring to L. W.'s letter in regard to my letter panning Annabella, I guess we can start a nice little feud between us. I was dumfounded to see my original letter in print in its entirety, but why cry over spilled milk? There's enough water in it already.

For L. W.'s information, I do not dislike Claudette Colbert nor Marlene Dietrich nor Garbo, but they speak clear and comprehensible English — don't they? You know what's going on all the time, and you don't have to strain your ears, and besides they are really lovely to look at and highly skilled in acting. To my way of thinking Annabella is none of those things —just hasn't got what it takes as far as I am concerned. However, if L. W. wants to spend her money on her pictures, far be it from me to say she shouldn't.

I would like to give a nice little laurel wreath to Maureen O'Sullivan for her performance in "A Yank at Oxford." She really did a beautiful job. By the way, how old is she, and what is her next picture going to be? It seems to me she should be in line for some nice big juicy parts after that success.

Your reviews have been wonderful lately, Mae, and you do have a grand sense of humor. May your column never die!

ALYCE M.

Editor's note: All right, girls. Now get busy and talk about something else. You, Alyce M.: I'm so glad the column pleases you. Maureen O'Sullivan was born May 17, 1911. Her next film will be "Hold That Kiss," opposite Dennis O'Keefe.

Dear Miss Tinée: I just had to write and tell you I did not agree with Edith Fabin in her letter about Edith Fellows. I think Edith has a very sweet voice and it would be a shame to conceal it from the world. When I listened to Edith sing in "Little Miss Roughneck" I was very much surprised and thought her voice somewhat like Deanna Durbin's.

EDITH FELLOWS
Her voice is likened to Deanna Durbin's.

Thank you so much. JUNE FORSYTH.

Editor's note: It's these little differences of opinion that make life interesting. Edith was born in Boston, Mass. She has dark brown hair and blue eyes. Educated Lawlor's school and grammar school in Hollywood. Hobbies are sewing and clay modeling. She's been in pictures eight years.

Dear Miss Tinée: Let's all stand up and cheer! What for? "Lost Horizon."

I wish to extend my sincere appreciation for a most intriguing picture. And hope that Ronald Colman will appear in more pictures. What's his next? Please.

This was one picture that I felt completely relaxed at. A truly great masterpiece. (Like your column.)

I hope every one can see it. I am sure that it will run a long time in Chicago and elsewhere.

Thanks again for your swell previews and the cast, director, author, artists, photographers, designers, extras, sound men, etc.

I appreciate the hard and arduous task of all actresses and actors who bring us all a grand two hours of entertainment and can tell what pictures to see by the "always right" column of yours.

Your sincere follower,

CARL SNYDER.

Editor's note: I'm sure producers and players will be encouraged by this letter. Mr. Colman's present film is "The Prisoner of Zenda." Come again.

Brave Kate Shelly

She Defied Storm, Flood to Save 200 on Train

Kate Shelly

By CHARLES COLLINS

WHO WAS Brave Kate Shelly? Why was she called brave?

These questions, if propounded in any "Professor Quiz" contest, would mow down competitors by the thousands. No one less than 60 years old, unless born and reared in the state of Iowa, would have the faintest idea about Brave Kate Shelly.

And yet they are fair questions, for Kate was a national heroine for a decade and her fame was bright in the land during the 1880s. She flashed out of obscurity in a storm-lashed night of flooded rivers and collapsing bridges to become an appealing character in that phantasmagoria of folklore and ideals which modern historians are fond of calling "the American dream." Every Girl Scout in particular ought to know about Kate Shelly and regard her as a patron saint.

At the age of 15, by quick thinking and resolute action, she saved a railroad train carrying 200 passengers from plunging off a wrecked bridge. She carried the alarm through flood and tempest at the risk of her life. She was uncounseled and unassisted. Her own dauntless spirit was the only voice that told her this thing must be done.

To accomplish her purpose she had to make her way in a breathless hurry in a blinding rainstorm over the railway ties of a bridge 600 feet long across which a turbulent current of flood waters was breaking. The night was murky, the storm was intimidating, and hell was loose in the valley of the Des Moines river. But Kate Shelly carried her message two miles to the town of Moingona and halted an express train that was ready to start toward its destruction.

The recent disaster in Montana makes her story timely and worth retelling to this generation. There is a myth abroad that the women of Kate's time, which was the Victorian period, were clinging vines, afraid of their own shadows, and mice, and men under beds, and other trifles. Kate Shelly wore dresses in the Victorian styles — when she could afford them—but she was not afraid of anything except the mortgage on her farm.

Her exploit fitted exactly into the pattern of melodrama with a happy ending that was prevalent in the 1880s. A naive country maiden; a dark and stormy night; a shattered bridge; a rescued railway train with hundreds of grateful passengers; a race between life and death, with the triumphant heroine fainting from exhaustion at the finish. It might have been invented, with spectacular stage effects, by Chicago's own Lincoln J. Carter, purveyor of dramatic thrillers for the masses. The entire picture recalls the theatrical billboard lithographs of the '80s and '90s. The story, however, is cold facts from yellow and crumbling newspaper clippings.

Kate Shelly was born in Tipperary county, Ireland, and when she was nine months old her parents, Michael and Norah, emigrated to the United States. The family settled on a quarter section of bad farming land near the town of Moingona, Ia., which was thriving then because of a coal mining boom, but which soon became deflated and forlorn. Michael Shelly built a frame cottage little better than a shack and settled down to till a portion of his sterile acres, but soon discovered that poverty was at his door.

Then he became a day laborer along the railroad tracks, and his industry soon brought him a promotion to section foreman. More children were born—Maggie, Mamie, Mike, and John. Twelve years of this drab but not unhappy life passed; then Michael Shelly was killed in a train accident on the tracks near the bridge over the Des Moines river. Not long afterward Mike, the elder boy, was drowned there while swimming.

Twelve-year-old Kate then began her apprenticeship as head of the family. The mother was broken in health and spirit, and this hardy girl plowed the fields and managed the household. She kept the children in school; she continued her own studies in the winters, in the hope of becoming a teacher; she fought every day and every hour a resolute battle against the fantom of poverty, always a cold, oppressive presence in that lonely unpainted cottage.

• • •

Near the Shelly homestead was a branch of the Des Moines river called Honey creek, usually a mere trickle in a deep, wide gulley. But after many days of heavy rains late in June and early in July, 1881, when Kate was "going on" 16 years of age, Honey creek became a furious torrent. The Des Moines and its tributaries were on a rampage. It is a watery stretch of land; there were twenty-one railway bridges between the town of Boone and the village of Moingona.

On the night of July 6 the train dispatcher at Boone ordered an engineer at Moingona to make the run between the two places to test the bridges. He took out "old No. 12," with his fireman, a brakeman, and a section foreman, and backed along the line. The Des Moines river bridge was crossed safely; then they came to Honey creek bridge. The section foreman, standing on the tender, gave the engineer the go ahead signal and shouted:

Under the weight of the locomotive the timbers of Honey creek bridge began to crack. The engineer threw on full steam to hurry across, but it was a fatal mistake. The bridge fell suddenly. The engineer said afterward:

"When the crash came and she plunged down into the water she screamed just like a lady."

Kate was out in the storm driving the family's live stock—an old white horse, a cow and its calf, and a litter of pigs—from the flooded barn to a field on high ground. She heard the crash at Honey creek bridge and understood what had happened. She also knew that a passenger train was due at the bridge in less than half an hour. She ran home, told her mother that she must try to stop the train, whipped an old shawl around her head, seized a lantern, and hurried away on her self-appointed errand of danger.'

She took a short cut through woods and underbrush, in which she lost her way for a few minutes, to the Honey creek bridge, and went out upon it until she reached the break. She clung there to the last tie, swinging her lantern and calling out.

She was answered by the voices of two men—the engineer and fireman. They were in the water, clinging to wreckage. Their two companions were dead. Kate urged them to hold fast, promising to bring help from Moingona.

Then she turned back along the track and presently reached the Des Moines river bridge with its 600-foot span, ties three feet apart, and no foot walk. Here was the place where her father and little brother had died—surely ill-omened. The river was already above its banks and foaming across the structure. A gust of wind extinguished her lantern. She dropped to her hands and knees and crawled across.

"I was frightened," she said afterward, "especially when the current drove driftwood against the bridge. I could feel it quiver from the shocks. The water came over me, and I was cold."

Her hands and knees were bleeding; she was almost fainting from exhaustion; but after she had crossed she ran a quarter of a mile down the track until she reached the Moingona station, where she told her story to the telegraph operator before she fainted. The passenger train arrived a few minutes later.

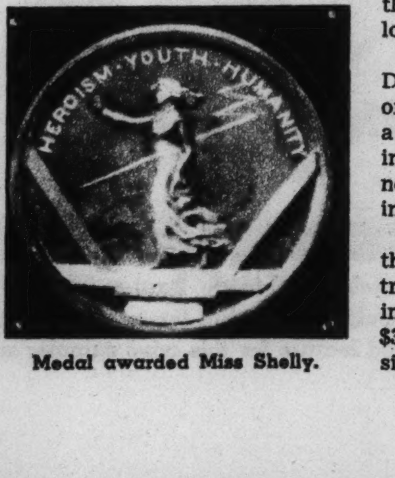
When Kate came to her senses she told the trainmen about the survivors of the wrecked engine in the waters of Honey creek. A rescuing party started out with Kate as its guide. She led them by a slippery path through side gulleys to a point on the bank from which the engine crew could be easily reached, and directed the life savers.

The passengers on the train collected a purse for her—a few hundred dollars. The state of Iowa gave her a gold medal. The school children of Dubuque gave her another.

The Chicago and North Western railway was also grateful in its fashion. It gave her $100 and a half barrel of flour and a half load of coal.

One of the passengers on the train was a certain Dr. Henry D. Coggeswell, who had an even more eccentric theory of expressing gratitude. Drinking fountains were his specialty and his hobby — impressive monuments with a cast iron statue of Dr. Coggeswell himself as pinnacle. He would give a Coggeswell fountain to any municipality that was in the mood to accept such an ornament, and thus advance his own fame as a philanthropist.



Medal awarded Miss Shelly.

He offered one of his fountains to Dubuque, Ia., as a memorial to Kate Shelly, and in a weak moment the city fathers accepted the donation. It was erected in the center of Washington park, close to the business section and the old homes of Dubuque pioneers, and was inscribed as follows:

"Presented by Dr. Henry D. Coggeswell, a citizen of San Francisco, Cal., to the citizens of Dubuque, and dedicated to Miss Kate Shelly, who," etc.

This curious work of art had an amusing history. It stood there for a number of years, under the terraces of Rhomberg hill and close to the mansion of Jesse P. Farley, an early industrialist of the "Key city." It was under the watch and ward of Malachi O'Laughlin, believed to have been the first "sparrow cop" in the middle west. He guarded the effigy of Dr. Coggeswell faithfully, but not well enough to prevent certain mysterious characters from trying to destroy it with a bomb. These iconoclasts may have been admirers of Kate Shelly or merely enemies to stuffed shirts in cast iron figures; at any rate their anarchic deed seemed to express the feelings about the Coggeswell fountain of a large portion of Dubuque's population.

• • •

Dr. Coggeswell was a fanatic on the subject of total abstinence from alcoholic beverages, and his fountains wherever erected bore an inscription proclaiming his faith in "pure water for man and beast." Dubuque's brewers refused to see the point. Finally a pavement contractor named Jack Lee, replacing the plank and asphalt walks in Washington park, overthrew Dr. Coggeswell's effigy and fountain by night and buried it in the park. Its disappearance was a civic mystery for a time. It has never been exhumed.

Charles McLean, an old citizen of Dubuque and manager of the Key City Gas company, describes the vanished memorial as follows:

"As represented by the statue Dr. Coggeswell had the beard of the prophet and the pose of a tribune of the plain people calling on heaven to witness the nobility of his purposes respecting services to mankind."

This forgotten character in the gallery of American eccentrics was a dentist who arrived in San Francisco in 1848 with $3,000. He practiced his profession and speculated in real estate so successfully that he became a multimillionaire. He scattered Coggeswell fountains all along the Pacific coast and in a number of midwestern cities. All of them have been removed by municipal action in response to the protests of citizens. The last to disappear was San Jose's, in 1934. The American Legion was the complainant in this case, strongly maintaining that the esthetic sensibilities of its members were offended by the effigy of the donor.

Her exploit inspired many amateur poets to the composition of pseudo-epics. The best known verses on the theme were written by Eugene J. Hall, whose style may be sampled from his first and last stanzas, which follow:

She was only fifteen, but a woman in size,
With a figure as graceful and lithe as a doe,
With peach blossom cheeks and with violet eyes,
And teeth and complexion like new-fallen snow.

Ah, noble Kate Shelly, your mission is done;
Your deed that dark night will not fade from our gaze.
An endless renown you have worthily won;
Let the nation be just and accord you its praise.
Let your name, let your fame and your courage declare
What a WOMAN can do and a WOMAN can dare!

Another rimer, the Rev. Francis Schreiber of Havana, Ill., smote his lyre with violence and indited an ode of which the first, second, and last strophes will be submitted:

Near sunset, in their gloomy hue
The heavens portrayed a dreadful view;
Through dismal clouds the lightning flashed,
While thunderclaps through nature crashed.

In piercing shrieks the tempest swept
O'er land and lawn, o'er hill and depth,
Destroying in its mournful course
Trees, barns, and fences by its force.

Up to the station her steps she bent
To state the doleful incident;
And when she'd done and knew no more
She swooned and reeled and hit the floor.

But flattering poems and complimentary gold medals and memorial fountains produce no income, and the donation of $100, half a barrel of flour, and half a load of coal did not last long in the Shellys' impoverished household. Kate went back to her shanty near the tracks, to her old white horse, her plow, her school books, and the family she was trying to keep alive. Her fame lingered, but the hardness of her lot was not changed.

Nine years passed. Kate grew up into a clear-headed young woman with no pose of the heroine about her. She passed her examinations for a teacher's certificate and served for three years in a country school near her home at a salary of $35 a month. The family lived on this meager income, with the aid of produce from the farm.

In the spring of 1890 The Chicago Tribune learned that a mortgage on the Shelly farm covering a loan of $500—at 10 per cent interest!—would soon fall due, and that the family was in danger of ejection from the home it had occupied for twenty-three years. The editor took immediate steps to correct this condition.

The best writer on the staf was sent to Moingona to interview Kate Shelly, to retell the story of her gallantry in complete detail, and to call attention to her pressing need for funds. He was Vance Thompson, who later made a name for himself as a man of letters and became famous as the author of "Eat and Grow Thin." He did his work well, and his article from Moingona, a vivid character study of Kate Shelly, filled almost a page in The Tribune of April 5, 1890.

The public reaction was immediate. Contributions from readers to a Kate Shelly relief fund came to the Tribune office in every mail. In addition the paper started a contest of bids on the "Kate Shelly rug," which an Armenian named Garabed was weaving in the display window of Alexander H. Revell's furniture store at Randolph street and 5th avenue (now Wells street). This was said to be the first Turkish rug ever woven in Chicago and perhaps in the entire country. Its pattern was typical of the art of oriental rug designing, and no attempt was made to hybridize it with Kate Shelly ornament or lettering.

Kate Shelly Rug

Garabed. the Armenian, and the rug he wove, which brought $500 into Tribune's fund for the heroine.

After several weeks of bidding, G. Park Kinney, who had a carpentering business at 48-50 South State street, became the owner of the rug with an offer of $500—the full amount of the mortgage. The other contributions brought the fund to a total of $917.05. A Tribune writer named Nora Marks took a draft for this sum to Moingona, taught Kate Shelly how to open a checking account, and the mortgage was promptly paid. Miss Marks' account of the occasion makes exceptionally pleasant reading in the files.

This publicity transformed Kate Shelly's life. The state of Iowa voted her a grant of $5,000. A firm of textbook publishers (Appleton & Co.) put an account of her heroism into a "Third Reader" which was used for many years in the Iowa public schools. Kate gave herself a liberal arts education at Simpson college, Indianola, Ia.

After her graduation she was appointed bill clerk of the Iowa state senate. In 1904 she became station agent at Moingona. She held this position until her death in 1912 at the age of 46. Apparently she never married, for no husband was mentioned in the newspaper and magazine accounts of her career when she died. The New York Sun devoted more than a column to her obituary; the Literary Digest reprinted the article in its issue of Feb. 10, 1912.

Several years ago the Chicago and North Western railway abandoned its right of way between Boone and Moingona and removed the track and ties. A movement to convert the line into a motor road to be called the Kate Shelly highway never got out of the discussion phase, and most of the strip of land has reverted to the owners of the adjoining property. "Third Readers" which tell the story are exceedingly rare items.

Nevertheless Kate Shelly's place in American folklore is secure. Her gold medals may have disappeared, but the state historical library at Des Moines cherishes as a sacred relic the lantern that an intrepid girl carried across a dangerous bridge to save a train.

Rhapsody in Blueberries

BLUEBERRY TORTE

(Serves 8-10)

1⅓ cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup butter
⅔ cup sugar
4 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅓ cup milk
1½ cups blueberries
1 tablespoon sugar
Meringue or whipped cream

Sift dry ingredients. Cream butter and add sugar. Add egg yolks and beat until well blended. Stir in vanilla. Add flour mixture and milk alternately, beating until smooth. Spread in two well greased cake pans (8 or 9 inch); bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. If méringue is used beat whites of 4 eggs until fluffy and add ½ cup sugar gradually. Beat until stiff and spread over the hot cakes. Return to oven to brown. Cool and remove cakes. Mash a tablespoon of blueberries, add tablespoon sugar and a few drops of lemon juice, and mix with the remaining whole berries. Spread over méringue or whipped cream on one layer of cake and cover with the other.

2 Combine blueberries with fresh Bartlett pears, now appearing in the markets. A thin lemon French dressing would be an added feature for this crisp summer salad.

Polarization Removes Glare

A RECENT development in applied optics holds promise of exerting as great an influence on industry as the development of the vacuum tube. It centers about the production of an inexpensive material capable of polarizing light and thus releasing the phenomenon of polarized light for widespread commercial use.

Already this material is being used in anti-glare sun glasses and desk lamps, photography, illumination, stress analysis and strain testing in industry, and in eye surgery. For the immediate future it promises glareless automobile headlights, three-dimensional motion pictures in full color, and many other far-reaching applications in everyday life.

Before discussing how polarized light is used in practice it is proper to ask what is the nature of polarized light and how it is produced.

We shall explain polarized light by making use of an excellent mechanical analog. In Figure 1A is a pendulum swinging in a perfectly random manner, indicated by the crisscross path traced out by the pendulum bob. This type of motion is known as unpolarized motion. Ordinary light is unpolarized and its wave motion is of this random type.

If we were to limit the motion of the pendulum by forcing it to oscillate in a slot as illustrated in Figure 1B the resulting motion is then "plane polarized" and is characterized by a one-sidedness of the motion. What is of importance is that there is no movement at right angles to the slot. The slot is called a polarizer.

By placing another identical slot at right angles to the first one, as shown in Figure 1C, the motion is completely stopped or extinguished. This slot is called the analyzer.

It was Dr. William Herapath in 1851 who made the discovery that a certain crystal, a com pound of iodine and quinine sulphate called iodosulphate of quinine, could render ordinary white light one-sided or plane polarized. Although the phenomenon of polarized light has been known to physicists for many hundreds of years, nevertheless it was this discovery of Dr. Herapath that laid the foundation of modern polarizing materials, for other polarizing materials were either too expensive or too limited in area for commercial use.

This crystal, popularly known as herapathite, plays the same rôle in light that the slot did in the motion of the pendulum. This is illustrated in Figure 2. Ordinary light (A), characterized by a random motion, traverses the crystal, which absorbs all the motion in the direction CC and transmits with practically no absorption all the motion in the direction DD, at right angles to CC. The crystal here acts as the polarizer, giving rise to an intense beam of plane polarized light. If another crystal (the analyzer) identical to the first, but oriented at right angles to the first, is placed in the path of the plane polarized light, this light will be entirely extinguished. This fact is the basis for all the forthcoming practical applications.

The single crystals whose properties we have just described are so small and fragile as to have little if any practical value. In 1932 E. H. Land succeeded in taking a mass of herapathite crystals of such small size that they cannot be seen even with a high-powered microscope and orienting them so as to produce the same effect as a single large crystal. To orient the crystals the elastic mass is stretched, causing each tiny crystal to turn parallel to the direction of stretch.

The resulting film, known commercially as polaroid film, is a flexible cellulostic sheet, unlimited in area, in which are embedded some thousand billion polarizing crystals to the square inch, all lying parallel. The process of manufacture, though patented, is so simple as to lend itself admirably to mass production.

Any application of polarized light requires the action of two polarizing processes, one to polarize the light in the first place and the other to analyze the light, or, rather, recognize that it is polarized. Nature provides two common sources of polarized light which give rise to important applications involving only a simple sheet of polarizing material. These common though undesirable sources are reflection of light from nonmetallic surfaces and the scattering of light, say from sidewalks.

Almost all the glare seen on bright days originates in reflection or scattering of sunlight from surfaces such as sidewalks, street pavements, windowpanes, etc. This glare light is predominantly plane polarized. A pair of polarizing spectacles in which the polarizing material is oriented properly quenches the glare very considerably and creates a freedom from ocular fatigue that is difficult to describe.

Perhaps the most important single application of these principles is to eliminate automobile headlight glare. Every automobile would have its headlights and windshield equipped with polaroid screens uniformly oriented at 45 degrees from the vertical. The driver can then see ahead in the light of his own headlight, but his windshield screen would quench the direct light from the headlight of a car coming in the opposite direction. It is difficult to convey the astonishing impressions created by being able to read the license number plate between the headlights and to see the occupants of an automobile approaching head on!

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Up to Owner to Protect His Dog

IT IS estimated that there are between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 dogs in America. About 600,000 of them are registered. Many of these 600,000 appear in dog shows.

The dogs which can win shows and those that have been trained for their hunting ability have a definite and usually a pretty high value. But thousands of family pets which have no pedigrees mean so much to the owners that it would take a lot of money to buy them.

In other words, dogs have a great companionship value. In surveying the dog situation in America it is, however, impossible to ignore a discussion of the money value of dogs, because the business of owning dogs and breeding and showing them is big business. For example, there is one outdoor dog show in America (Morris and Essex) which brings together more than 4,000 dogs with an estimated value of $1,500,000. Parents at Christmas time may spend between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 on puppies for their children.

Dogs as companions, as show specimens, as hunting aids to sportsmen, as workers in many fields, as guards, and guides to the blind have an important place in America. This country truly is dog-minded. Yet hardly a day goes by that dog lovers are not worried by the attacks of those who apparently hate all dogs and by the agitation of individuals or organizations who want to see dogs removed from all communities. Unfortunately it's the careless, irresponsible dog owner who usually is responsible for the anti-dog crusades, the dog poisonings, and the feeling against all dogs. One owner who lets his dog run the street, who doesn't teach his dog correct discipline and good manners, and who lets his pet ruin gardens and lawns can bring condemnation on all dogs.

The following statement on the problem facing dog owners everywhere clearly outlines what we have in mind—the necessity for putting the dog owner's house in order. It is an editorial that appeared in a large daily newspaper as an advertisment for one of America's largest department stores. The lecturer referred to is the writer. Part of the editorial is as follows:

"'What can we do about people who hate dogs?' said a voice in the crowd.

"A hundred people looked steadfastly at the lecturer on the little raised platform in our book department. You could have heard a pin drop.

"'What can we do about people who hate dogs?' the lecturer repeated. 'I presume you're talking about those who carry their dislike far enough to express it in poisoned meat.' There was a murmur of assent—and again silence. Every person in that little audience was a dog lover — and in deadly earnest about the problem.

"'Well,' said the speaker slowly, 'the first thing I'd do about the people who hate dogs is reform the people who love dogs.' There was a gasp of surprise. The speaker went on:

"'You see, it isn't that people just naturally hate dogs—some do, of course. But mostly the ones who take active measures against them do it because those dogs' owners have been remiss in their duties.

"'You take the matter of digging in gardens, rolling in flower beds, chasing pet cats—and all the other things dogs are charged with. What do they all mean? Well, they mean just one thing: lack of discipline. And whose fault is that — the dog's?

"'If you love your dog as much as you say you do, then you'll teach him discipline—you'll let him understand where his rights end and the neighbor's begin. In case he forgets, you'll remind him — as forcefully as necessary. If you don't he'll come to grief—and all dogs with him. Give him a bad name and his whole tribe shares it. . . . One dog digging a hole in one flower bed brings hatred and trouble for all dogdom.'"

A 2,420-Mile Non-Stop "Flivver" Flight

Ship's Motor Proves Its Endurance

By WAYNE THOMIS

FLIVVER airplanes are just toys for flights around an airport, but now and then some one goes out and proves that you can take them almost anywhere any other plane will go and through almost any weather.

A recent example of such flights for a record was made between May 17 and 19 under sponsorship of the Piper Aircraft company of Lock Haven, Pa. Two company test pilots, Kenny Kress and Glen Englert, sat in a company plane for 63 hours 56 minutes to complete the round trip of 2,420 miles between Newark and Miami without a stop.

• • •

The plane is licensed for a gross weight of 1,000 pounds and weighs 574 pounds empty with a 40-horsepower Continental engine. For the stunt the company fitted it with a 50-horsepower Lenape Papoose radial engine and added a 24-gallon special fuel tank to the regular 9-gallon tank just ahead of the cockpit. The ship also carried an extra 5-gallon tin in the baggage compartment.

The extra instruments included a compass, a Lear radio receiver, battery, and a Kollsman sensitive navigation lights with a 200-hour altimeter. When the plane got away from Newark at 4:06 a. m. on the 17th it weighed 1,324 pounds.

A ground speed of 40 miles an hour was averaged for the 444 miles to Raleigh, N. C., where fourteen contacts with the ground crew refilled the tanks and the flyers struck out for Jacksonville, Fla., 397 miles farther south. They barely made it and kept an Eastern Airlines Douglas circling for five minutes while getting emergency fuel aboard. Then they started for Miami.

• • •

Fog and smoke from brush fires got them off track and they returned hours later to Jacksonville for a new fuel supply. They made Miami, 369 miles, against the strongest head winds of the trip. Taking aboard 45 gallons of fuel and new batteries, they started back. Again Kress and Englert refueled at Jacksonville, clipping the top of a tree with one wheel and nearly frightening themselves to death. This jolt awakened them so that they finished the trip without incident.

The flight was a demonstration of human endurance and a testimonial to the engine, which ran at full throttle the whole trip. It is rated to deliver 50 horsepower at 2,125 revolutions per minute and was allowed to turn up to 2,100 r.p.m. for the full 64 hours. It consumed 238 gallons of gasoline.

SIX MONTHS MARRIED

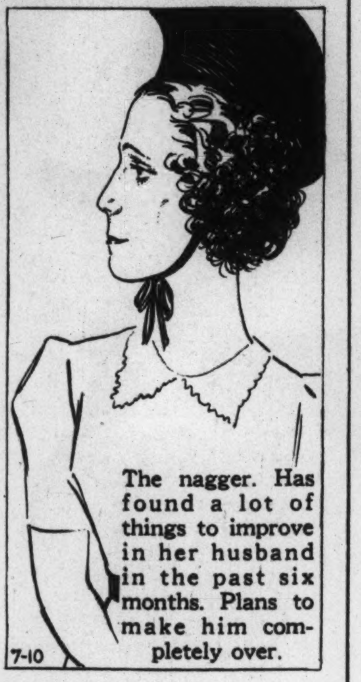
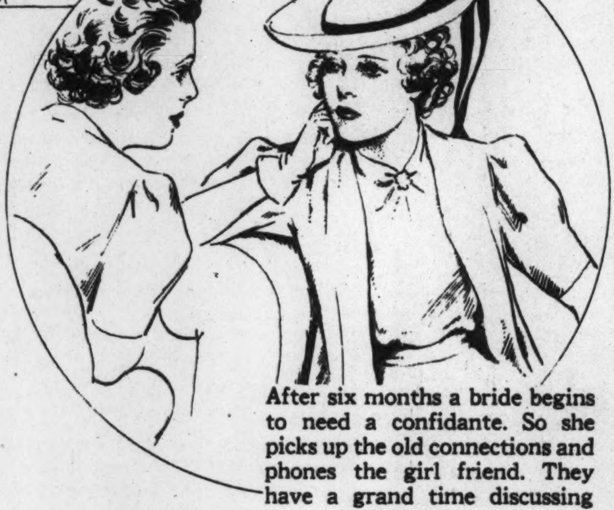
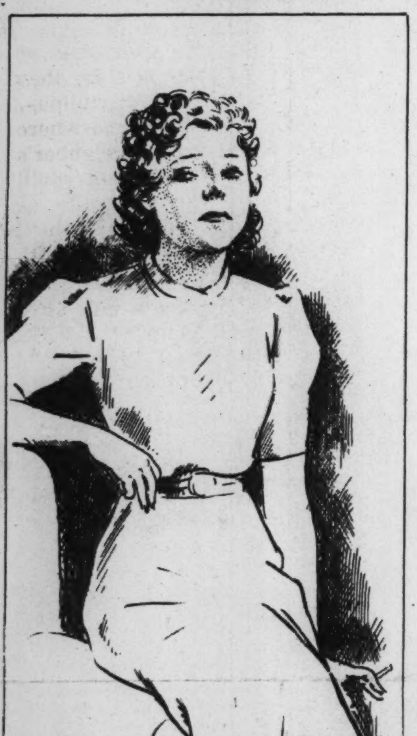
"They want us for dinner on Thursday. What shall I say? I said we both had colds the last time." This couple have got in a terrible rut, and stay home night after night. Their friends are outraged.



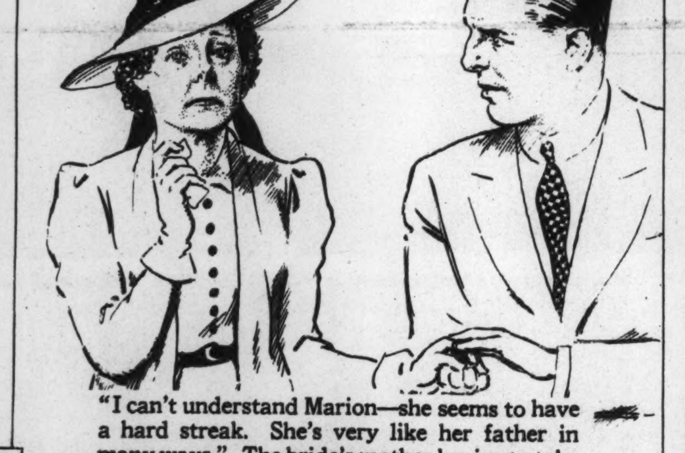
The nagger. Has found a lot of things to improve in her husband in the past six months. Plans to make him completely over.



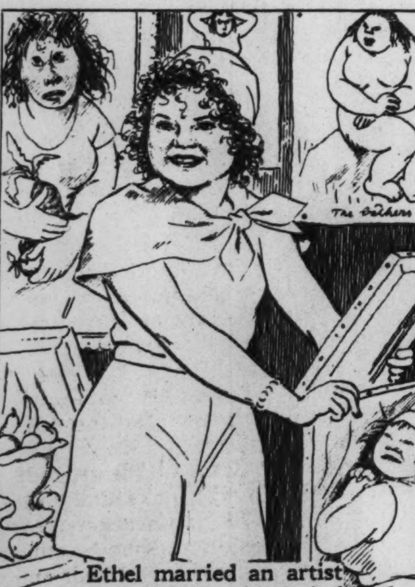
After six months a bride begins to need a confidante. So she picks up the old connections and phones the girl friend. They have a grand time discussing this and that.



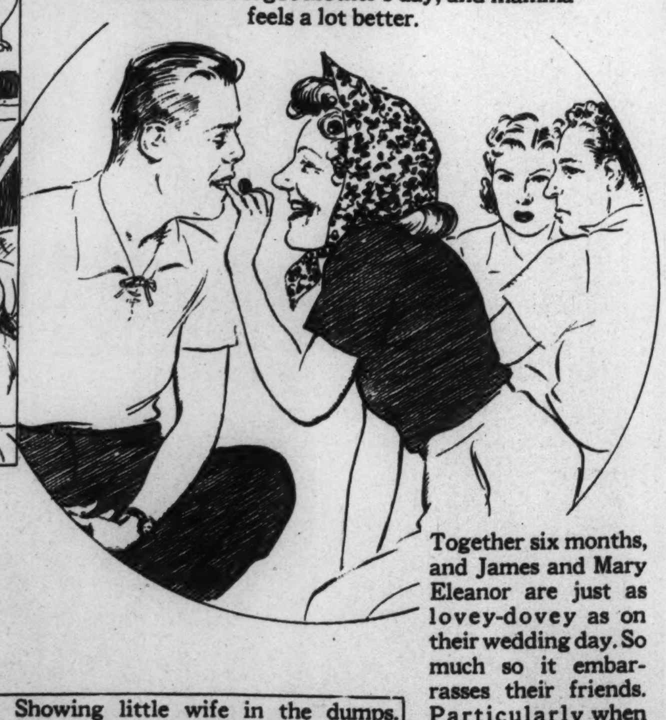
This little wife of six months and no more is beginning to notice her husband's irritating habits. It's all she can do to keep from screaming out loud when he makes that awful crunching noise (with toast), when he leaves his bridgework in the bathroom, or when he turns the radio on full blast when she wants to talk.



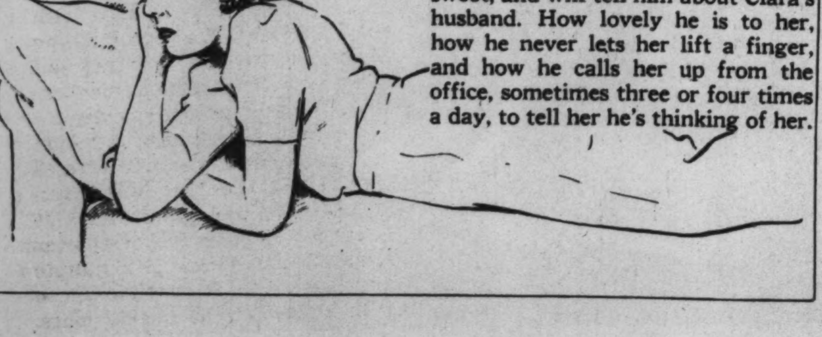
"I can't understand Marion—she seems to have a hard streak. She's very like her father in many ways." The bride's mother begins to take her son-in-law into her confidence, and opens her heart about her darling daughter's failings. Then he tries to explain his wife to her and convinces her that it was just thoughtlessness when Marion forgot Mother's day, and mamma feels a lot better.



Ethel married an artist and, after six brief months of wedded bliss, she has that disheveled look that artists' wives so often get. They grow to look more and more like their husbands' work, that's why.



Together six months, and James and Mary Eleanor are just as lovey-dovey as on their wedding day. So much so it embarrasses their friends. Particularly when they go cute, and Mary Eleanor feeds James a bonbon and James makes believe he's biting her finger off.



Showing little wife in the dumps. Sulks, hurt feelings, and all that. Honey forgot the good-by kiss when he left for the office. Tonight, when he comes home, she will be brave and sweet, and will tell him about Clara's husband. How lovely he is to her, how he never lets her lift a finger, and how he calls her up from the office, sometimes three or four times a day, to tell her he's thinking of her.

The Heroic Lafayettes

Their Lives Saved by America

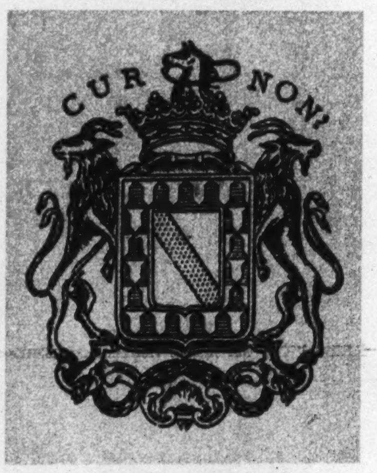
the age of 14, he had inherited the fortune of his grandfather, the Marquis de la Riviere, and almost immediately the Duc d'Ayen bespoke him for a son-in-law. The duc had five daughters; Adrienne was the second.

Had it not been for the objections of the Duchesse d'Ayen the duc and the marquis' great-grandfather would have married the 14-year-old boy and the 12-year-old girl at once. She said that they were too young, and her counsels prevailed. The wedding was delayed for two years. They were, however, happily married with all the pomp that their high estate required in April, 1774.

Adrienne's first child, a girl who was christened Henriette, was born toward the end of 1775.

Lafayette was a member of the king's bodyguard when late in 1776 he began making plans to go to America and help the colonists throw off the British yoke. He had become imbued with the new liberal ideas that were sweeping the salons, and neither the orders of the young King Louis nor the pleas of his relatives halted him. Evading the king's lettre de cachet, he sailed in the sumer of 1777 in a vessel fitted out at his own expense. Dodging English ships sent to capture him, he landed safely in South Carolina.



Lafayette's coat of arms.

His services to America are too well known to retell here. It is enough to say that no other foreigner, and few Americans, did so much to make the revolution a success. He fought bravely. He was wounded at Brandywine; he commanded brilliantly in the Virginia campaign that ended with the surrender of Cornwallis; he gave unstintedly of his private means to help congress and his great and true friend, George Washington. He became the most popular figure in France, the idol of America.

While he was away the faithful Adrienne, who had fallen deeply in love with the husband chosen for her by her father, waited in the Hôtel de Noailles for him. Her second daughter, Anastasie, was born a few months after Lafayette left France the first time; she filled the place made vacant by the death of Henriette. Early in 1779 the marquis went back to France on a diplomatic mission, and in December of that year a son, given the proud name George Washington de Lafayette, was born. Another daughter, Virginie, arrived in 1783.

• • •

The ancien régime still lived when Lafayette's American career was over. At 26 he had attained all the fame, all the honor that mortal man could ask. He was wealthy. He had half a dozen estates; Chavaniac, in Auvergne, his birthplace, was the one dearest to him. His wealth, despite the cost of his overseas adventure, was ample.

But Lafayette was driven by ideas. He wanted political liberty everywhere in the world; he wanted a France in which every Frenchman, regardless of birth or wealth, would have the same rights a free-born American enjoyed. That was why he helped bring on the French revolution.

France had made him a major general. The commission was revoked in 1788. He had been too outspoken in favor of the people. Marie Antoinette did not like his democratic notions.

Undisturbed, Lafayette was a member of the states general in 1789. In the same year he was elected vice president of the national assembly, to which he presented a declaration of rights based on the American Declaration of Independence.

High in the favor of the early fathers of the revolution, he was made colonel general of the newly formed national guard on July 15, the day after the fall of the Bastille. As commander he struggled, not always successfully, to preserve order. Neither the king, who was being pushed along by the popular tide, nor the revolutionaries kept faith.

The weak Louis broke his pledge to Lafayette and attempted to flee across the border. If the royal family had not been captured at Varennes and returned to Paris the marquis might have been slain. He already was too moderate for the extremists who wished to be rid of all royalty—and the Jacobins, the most extreme of all, were getting the upper hand. It was extremely difficult to protect the stupid king, who conspired with the nobility who had fled and with the other powers of Europe for an invasion of France.

Lafayette's attempt to save the freedom and the life of Louis XVI. was to have tragic consequences. He was in command of an army sent to battle the invading Austrians when on Aug. 19, 1792, the assembly, which was dominated by Jacobins, declared him a traitor to his country. He was marked for death, and to avoid it he fled across the Belgian border and took refuge in Liége.

He was a man without a country. He was almost a man without a party. The Jacobins hated him because he was too near to royalty. The French emigrés, the kings of all Europe, feared him as a revolutionary. In violation of accepted international law, the allied forces of the kings seized him and threw him into prison. It was to be five long years before he would be a free man again.

Lafayette's flight left Adrienne, jeered at as the wife of the "traitor," with serious problems. Never despairing, never weakening in her love and her determination, she strove to do three things: (1) assure the safety of her three children, (2) preserve as much as possible of the family property, (3) find her husband (his prison was a secret) and obtain his release.

After she retired to Chavaniac, where the loyal peasantry did everything possible for her, the government cut off her income and she was forced to appeal to Gouverneur Morris, the American minister to Paris, for funds. Without hesitation he lent her 100,000 francs.

"I run no risk in doing so," he said, "for if circumstances cause me to lose what I have advanced I know that the Americans will hold themselves responsible."

George Washington, hearing of her plight, sent Mme. de Lafayette a thousand dollars. He gave instructions to all American diplomatic representatives in Europe to assist in obtaining the marquis' release. Further, he wrote a confidential letter to the Emperor Francis of Austria pleading for the prisoner. (The emperor never answered; perhaps he never saw the message.)

Even with this help from beyond the seas, life was difficult at Chavaniac. The government in Paris, growing more inimical, seized some of the Lafayette estates. It restricted the freedom of Mme. de Lafayette, requiring her promise, which was faithfully kept, that she would not attempt to emigrate. In November, 1793, Adrienne was arrested and lodged in the cold, unsanitary little jail at Brioude. Spring brought the dreaded order for her transfer to Paris. At that time such a command was virtually a death warant.

Allowed to bid farewell to her daughters, who begged to accompany her but were refused, Mme. de Lafayette went to Paris under guard. For fifty days, in the prisons of La Force and Plessis, she awaited her doom.

Unquestionably the plan was to kill her, along with the rest of the incarcerated nobles. How, then, did she escape? To historians there is but one explanation—the pleas of Morris and his successor, James Monroe (later President of the United States).

General Pershing at the grave of Lafayette in Picpus cemetery, Paris. Behind the grill is the burial plot of 1,306 guillotine victims of the Terror.

(Chicago Historical Society photos.)

France then was at war with most of the European powers. Representatives of other nations were so disgusted by the brutalities of the Terror that they left Paris. Foreign trade was drying up, and the United States was France's best customer. The American diplomats boldly informed the committee of public safety that "every American is a Fayettist" and that the killing of the wife of the hero would bring on a great wave of anti-French feeling.

At least her execution was delayed. Then suddenly the Reign of Terror was over. Less than a week after the three courageous women of the Noailles clan mounted the scaffold Robespierre was guillotined. France was sick of bloodshed.

Mme. de Lafayette was not released at once. The committee sent a hater of aristocracy, Legendre, to Plessis to decide which prisoners should be freed.

When she announced her name, because a kindly usher dared not pronounce it, the interrogator became abusive. He cursed Lafayette and all connected with him.

"I am ready at all times," declared the marquise, "to defend my husband and my name."

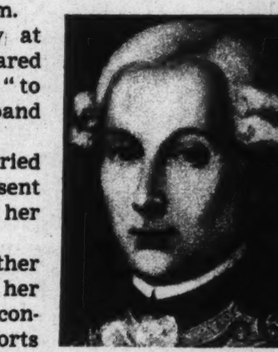
Monroe and other friends visited her there. They continued their efforts in her behalf, and in January, 1795, Legendre relented and granted the brave woman her freedom.



Lafayette at 20.

Ill, all but broken by the hardships of her long confinement, "la femme Lafayette" conceived a project more quixotic than any her husband had ever dreamed. It is one of history's marvels that she could carry it out.

She began by obtaining a passport for her son George, now 15 years old, and starting him under the care of a tutor for America. With him George carried a letter to President Washington, beginning, "Monsieur, to you I send my son." The old friend of his father welcomed him, advised him as to his studies, and entertained him hospitably at Mount Vernon.

Then Mme. de Lafayette begged another passport for herself and her daughters and went to Dunkirk. But instead of emigrating to America she took ship to Prussia and in a few days (in September, 1795) she was in Altona, where a little colony of French emigrés had settled, among them her sister Pauline.

All were astonished when she disclosed her determination to take her daughters with her into Austria and if it were humanly possible to join Lafayette in his cell and live there with him until his release—or his death.

She went to the American consul at Hamburg and got a fresh passport, made out to Mme. Motier of Hartford, Conn., and her children. This was no idle fiction. Connecticut was one of the American states that had naturalized the Lafayettes. With the precious document she set out.

By this time Lafayette's whereabouts were known. He had been confined for a time in Prussian prisons, at times in dank dungeons. Then he had been transferred to Austria, where the Emperor Francis thrust him into the fortress of Olmutz, gave him a number, and decreed that all who knew the identity of the prisoner should forget it.

He was harshly treated. His two good friends, De la Tour-Marbourg and Pusy, were also at Olmutz, but were not allowed to see each other. Their quarters were unsanitary, they were not allowed to write their friends in the world outside, they were forbidden the use of knives and forks—for fear they would commit suicide.

• • •

We can only gloss over the story of how a Prussian liberal, Justus Erich Bollman, found out where Lafayette was and with the assistance of a young American, Francis Huger, cooked up a plot for his escape. Toward the end of 1794 they put this plot to the test. They got Lafayette out, free of his guards, and set him on a horse. But unfortunately the marquis lost his way and was recaptured.

Thereafter things were worse for Lafayette. He was kept in solitary confinement, forbidden to talk to his guards, and deprived of all exercise.

Mme. de Lafayette knew this. It spurred her on. In Vienna she used diplomacy to obtain an audience with the emperor, and, strangely enough, he consented to let her go to the prison on condition that she would obey all the regulations, and assured her she would be delighted with her husband's treatment.

On Oct. 24, 1795, she came in sight of the towers of Olmutz, and wept.

For nearly two years the four of them lived in Olmutz. For the womenfolk the régime was as harsh as for Lafayette. Pestilential vapors from an open sewer floated through their windows. Soldiers were punished in the courtyard and they could hear the horrid strokes of the whip. They could not leave their quarters; like the male prisoners, they were forced to eat all their food with their fingers—and it was unsightly, unsanitary food of bad quality, although they paid for it themselves.

And so time passed. Came 1797, and Napoleon, with French armies, swept through Italy. Austria was whipped, and the Corsican, instructed by the directory in Paris, made Lafayette's release a condition of peace.

For nearly two years the Lafayettes settled in Prussia. When the ambitious Napoleon seized supreme power they returned to France. There Lafayette lived temporarily the life of a country gentleman.

Mme. de Lafayette rejoiced. The eight years that followed were the happiest of her life.

Shortly before her death in 1807 she remarked that she was glad her daughters were happily married.

"But," she told her husband, "I could not assure them such happiness as I have had. Only the power of God could do such a thing again. You are incomparable!"

Lafayette lived through another twenty-seven years, crowded with action. An old man, he returned to America in 1824, traveled 4,000 miles through a series of ovations, and was presented by congress with $200,000 and 24,000 acres of land. He wished that Adrienne could have been with him then.

And when he came to die on May 20, 1834, his last gesture was to kiss a little locket containing a lock of her hair and engraved with her last words: "Je suis toutes à vous" (I am all yours).

She, too, had been incomparable.

Rythm's the Word for the Rhumba

If You've Got It You Can Dance

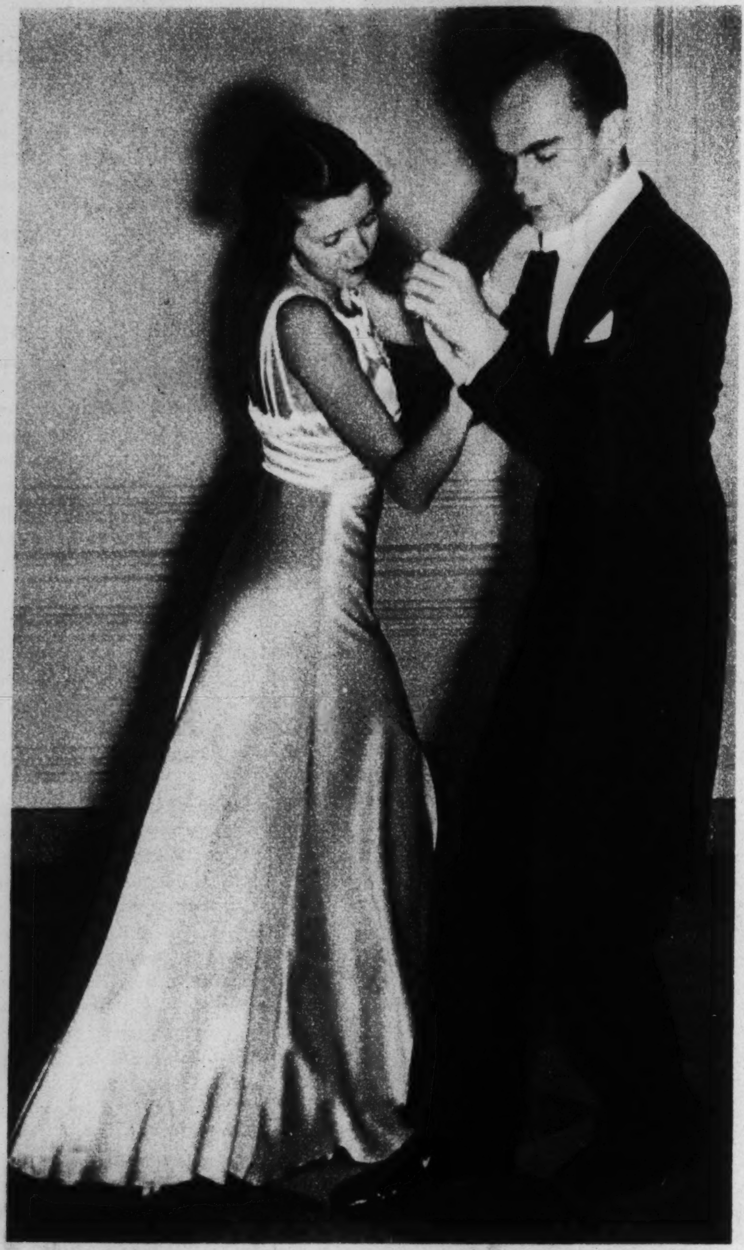
By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE RHUMBA, originally a symbolic dance vital to the tribal rites of the Nanigo slaves on Cuban sugar and tobacco plantations, has achieved respectability—plus the accolade of chic. It is the most fashionable dance in America today. Instructors are besieged with requests to teach it.

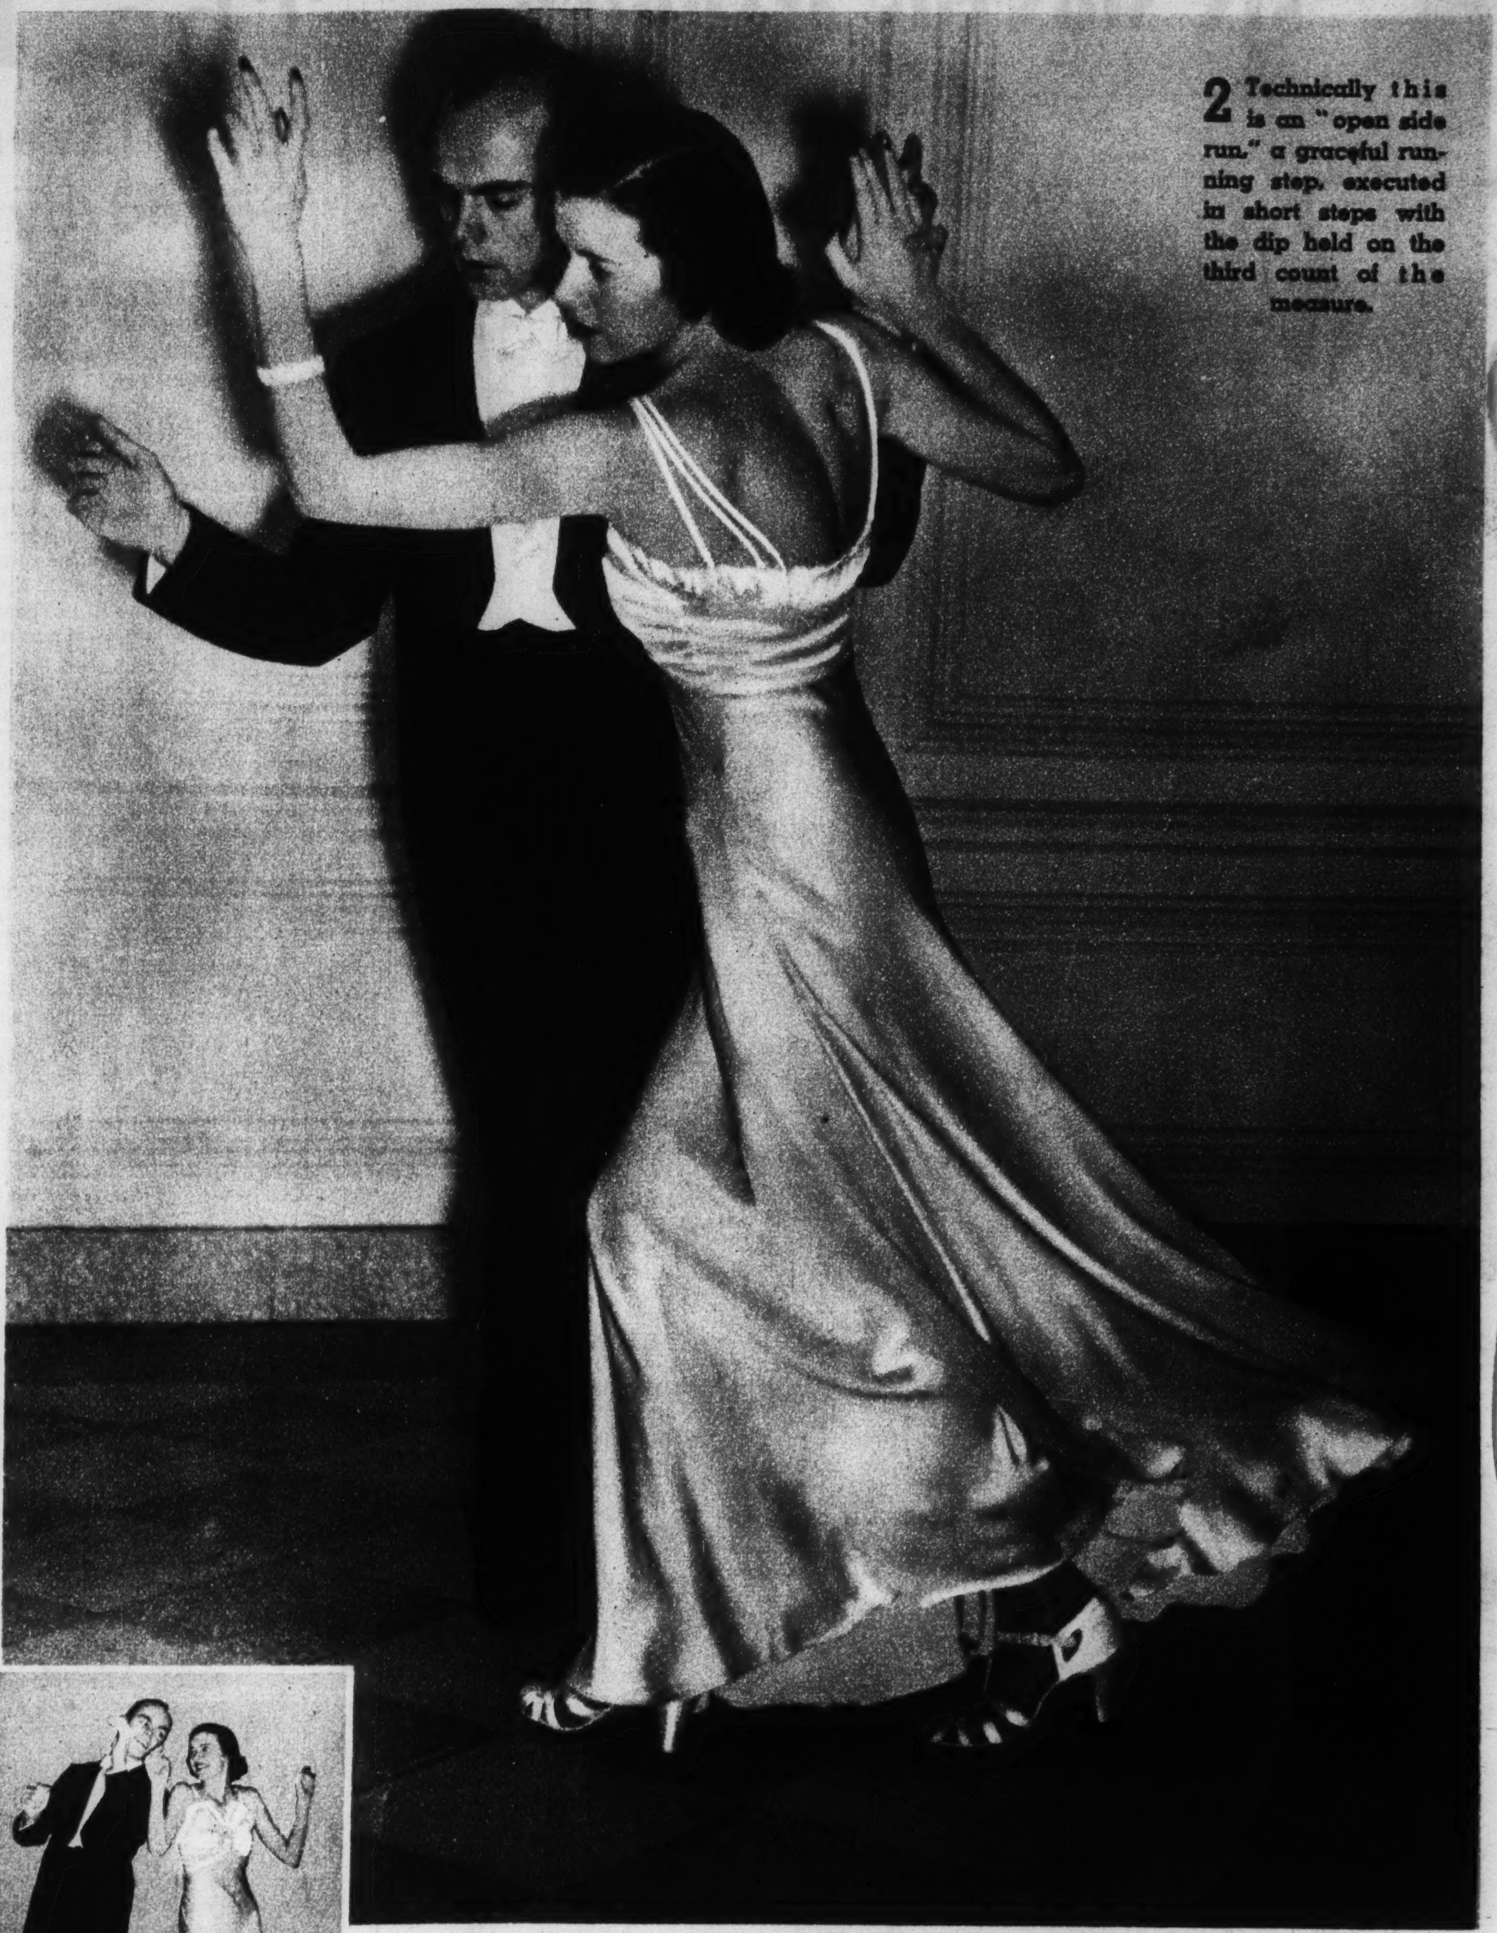
Only the uninitiated would attempt to do the rhumba to fox-trot tunes. "The Peanut Vender" is a favorite, with music that ripples a lot and wails a little. The best ballroom rhumba is like the "Son," the dance choice of Cuban aristocrats, done with the body erect, feet flat on the floor, the steps short rather than long, and the hip swing easy and natural. Only in its vulgar exhibition versions is the rhumba suggestive.

To learn the rhumba it is necessary to have a competent instructor. It is not "picked up," as more casual dances are. Once the dancer has learned to keep time—and in this it is important to remember that the dip, or the "hold," is on the third count of the measure—it is fairly simple even in its most complicated versions.

The rhumba is a favorite with the mature as well as the very young. It is a dance for the men and women who wish to perfect posture and grace. And besides that it is wonderful fun to step off to the rattle of maracas—gourds to you!



1 The ballroom rhumba as done by experts has no consistent sequence to speak of. The best dancers do rhumba routines as they choose. This is "La Cucaracha," a step that is a graceful break.



2 Technically this is an "open side run," a graceful running step, executed in short steps with the dip held on the third count of the measure.

3 After a side point, the dancers about to go into an open break.

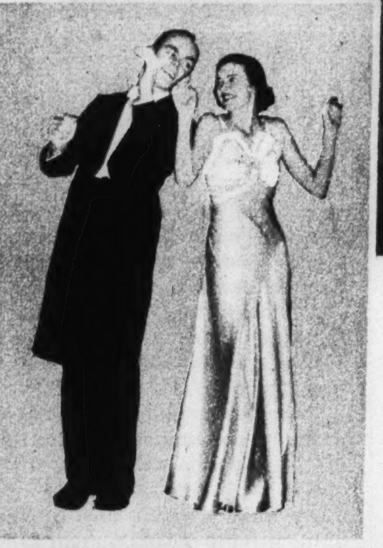
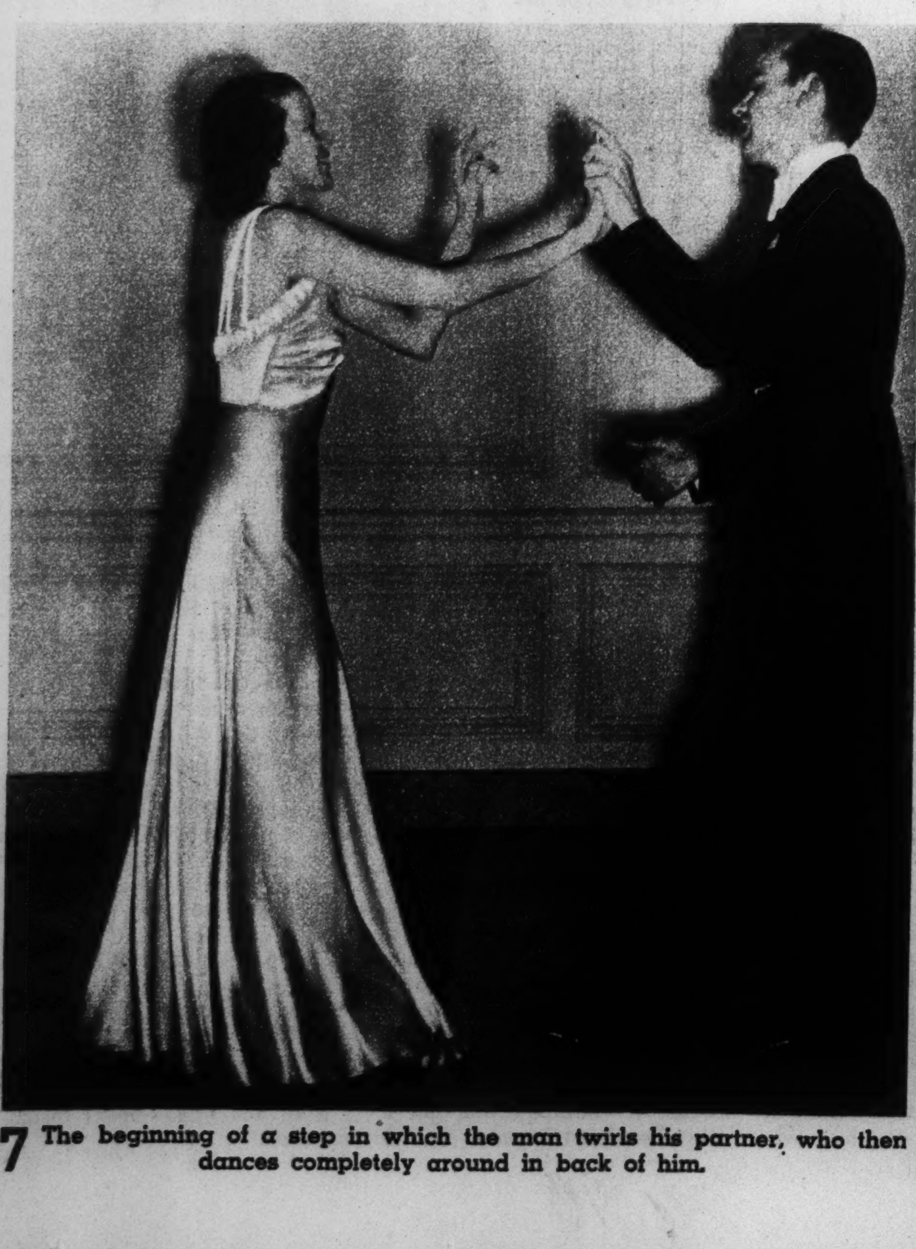
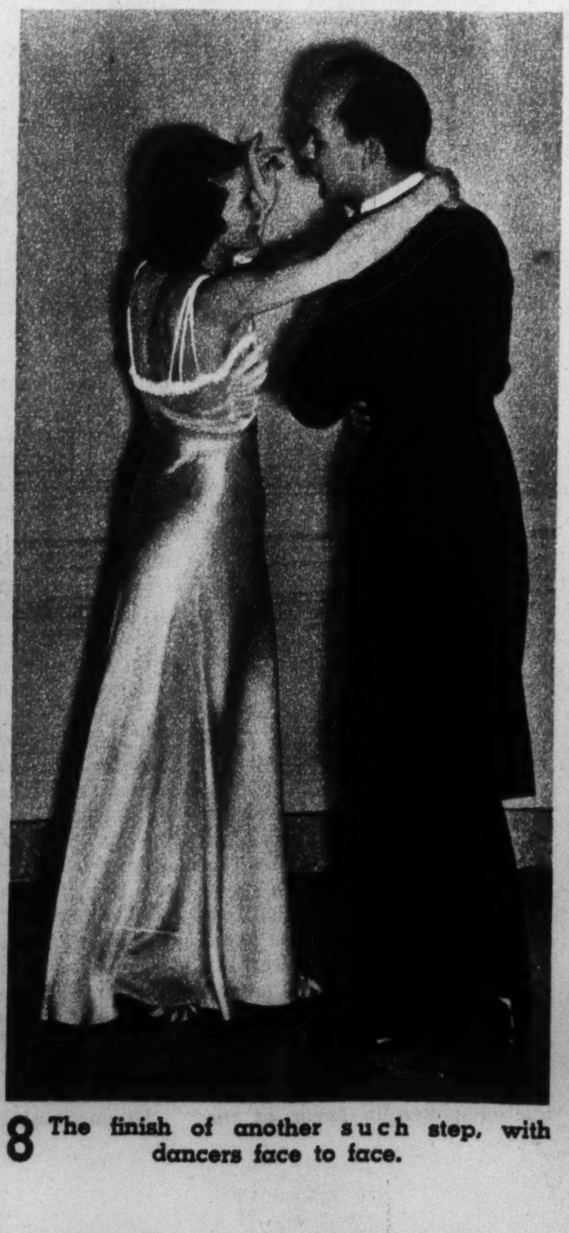
5 A continuation, which calls for complicated footwork by both dancers.



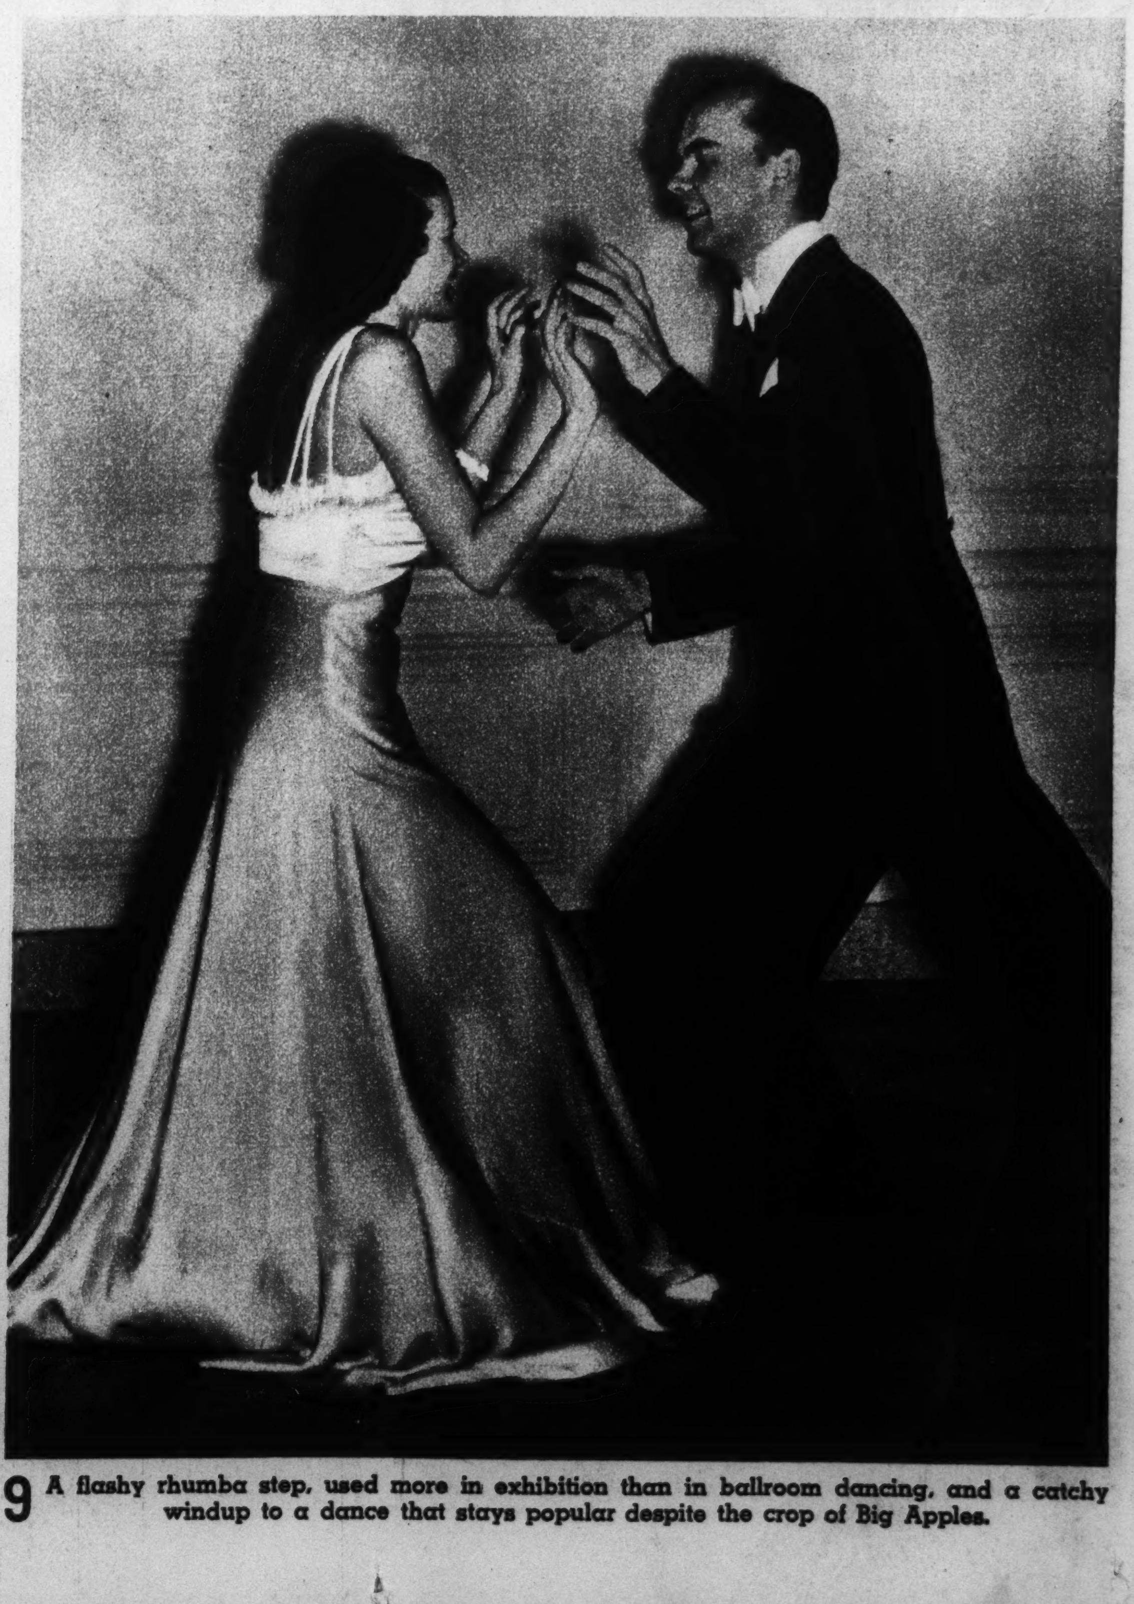
6 A flirtatious step in which partners break, turn, and end back to back.



7 The beginning of a step in which the man twirls his partner, who then dances completely around in back of him.



8 The finish of another such step, with dancers face to face.



9 A flashy rhumba step, used more in exhibition than in ballroom dancing, and a catchy windup to a dance that stays popular despite the crop of Big Apples.

DRY HEAT
DESTROYS PROPERTY—
ENDANGERS HEALTH

WRECKS FURNITURE

Destructive effects of too-dry air are both numerous and expensive. It dries out glue in joints so that furniture comes apart; it robs paints and varnishes of elasticity so they crack and peel off; it shrinks doors, mouldings and other woodwork, causing unsightly cracks at joints; it makes dirt-collecting cracks in floors; damage that would cost several hundred dollars to repair may easily be wrought in one season.

ENDANGERS HEALTH

Insufficient moisture in the air you breathe dries out mucous membranes, making them ideal breeding places for the germs of sinus infections, common cold, sore throat and various throat and lung disorders.

WITH A HOLLAND FURNACE!

I'D ALMOST SAY THE HUMIDIFIER ALONE IS WORTH ALL THE FURNACE COST— IT MAKES US SO MUCH MORE COMFORTABLE
AND IT SURELY IS A PROTECTION AGAINST COLDS
HOLLAND FURNACE CO. HOLLAND, MICH.
DRAFT CONTROL

AUTOMATIC HEATING—Holland Furnaces are ideal for all types of automatic heating—with coal, oil or gas. Ask about Holland's own special oil, gas or automatic coal burner units.

Famous
CASCADE
HUMIDIFIER
Works Automatically

TO INCREASE COMFORT AND SAVE YOU MONEY IN MANY WAYS

COSTLY damages of excessive dryness cease when a Holland Furnace starts heating your home. Its unique cascade humidifier can be set to moisten the air to the desired degree and, once set, automatically proportions moisture to heat. This moisture is in the form most easily absorbed by air, a vapor infinitely finer than the costliest atomizer can supply. This not only protects against the damages listed above, but also saves fuel. It takes much more fuel to keep rooms at 80° than at 70° yet you will be far more comfortable at 70° with proper humidity than at 80° with dry heat!

Only One of Many Holland Superiorities

But a Holland Furnace brings you many other exclusive features, every bit as important as its amazing humidifier. Its combustion principle, for example, featuring the famous Holland Coal-Roller cone-shaped grate, is not fully duplicated in any other furnace. It keeps the fire on the outside of the fuel bed right against the castings, so that you get quicker heat and more of it from every lump of coal you burn. More than a dozen other Holland features combine to reduce fuel consumption, cut down furnace tending and increase comfort.

Furthermore, this incomparably efficient furnace is installed by Holland's own expert mechanics according to plans scientifically designed by Holland's own engineer and fully guaranteed by Holland to assure you perfect heat in every room in even the severest weather. If, therefore, your present heating system is unsatisfactory, call in the local Holland engineer. Then you are sure of perfect home comfort at lowest possible cost.

3 YEARS TO PAY

Virtually make your own terms when you buy a Holland Furnace and no middlemen to divide responsibility. You deal solely and directly with the Holland Furnace Company.

AUTOMATIC
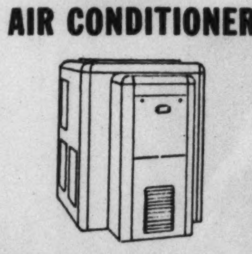
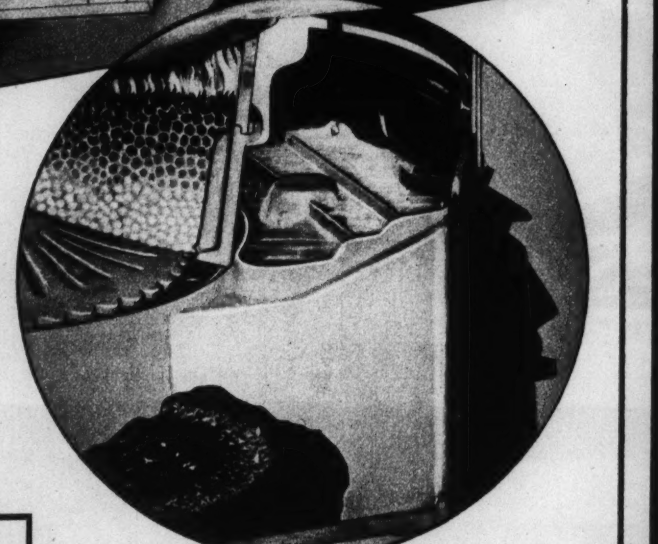
AIR CONDITIONER



This sensational new unit cuts costs materially on complete winter air conditioning with automatic oil or gas heat. Advanced engineering has created almost unbelievable efficiencies and economies. Get details from factory branch.



Furnace cut away to show how water is introduced on large casting surface, producing proper moisture in direct proportion to heat generated. Water can be regulated so overflow moistens ashes. Fire pot castings last longer, too, because no projecting water pan slows up air flow and reflects heat against castings.

CLEAN HEATING PLANT NOW

A thorough cleaning with the famous Holland Giant Power Suction Cleaner removes waste that damages equipment and will make your furnace more economical next winter. No muss or fuss in your home—LOWEST RATES NOW—Call nearest factory branch for quotation.
